SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

There's no month like September. Parents eye their six-year-olds as they take their first steps toward the school bus. Older students leave home for their first adventure in dormitory life. College and high school graduates find themselves looking for jobs. Year in and year out, September brings gradual and unusual changes in the lives of many of us.

Parents and students wonder about the personality and influence of a new teacher. Teachers do not choose their students and may find themselves in a roomful of strangers. The first days of school often reveal which students will test a teacher's intelligence, patience or perseverance for the ensuing school year.

September is a month of new things: books, tablets, pencils, prints, plaids, plains and, of course, blue jeans. It is a time to start again with new ideas, new activities and new friends.

What happens in a new school year has far-reaching effects on all of us. It matters not if we are eight or eighty, school is everyone's business...

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This might surprise you, but you're not always right about everything. A troubled loved one needs you to be less demanding and more understanding. Kindness encourages openness.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine instinct guides you well this week. A change of heart might be the wisest course to take. A trusted friend offers good advice — listen closely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be more sensible where money is concerned. An urge to splurge needs to be put aside for now. Later, you'll be able to indulge yourself with the things you want.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A past health problem recurs and needs attention. It might not be serious, but your family and friends deserve reassurance. You get news about a job opening.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A romantic encounter with a loving Libra could make the Lion a happily purring Feline this week. Be open to Cupid's encouraging signals. A workplace change is coming.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good week for mending fences with family and friends. Put those minor irritations behind you and rebuild those once-precious relationships.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An investment opportunity needs closer scrutiny. You're not getting all the information you should have. A personal relationship bodes far more positive potential.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone might try to get you to reveal a secret you vowed to keep sacred. Stick with your commitment to your promise, and reject all attempts to get you to give it up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good time to change some long-set routines. Let yourself be more flexible in adapting to new situations. You'll appreciate what happens.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A chance to travel opens up. Consider asking someone who has recently become very special in your life to go with you. Good things are always better when shared.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A neighbor is revealed as the source of some upsetting events, but you need to be wary of a confrontation until you have absolute proof. Other neighbors can help.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A business decision needs to be made. Be aware that what you decide will affect a close associate. Talk it over with him or her before making your move.

Oppose Dunkin' Donuts Near Adams' Birthplaces

A resolve co-sponsored by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico asks the City Council to oppose the relocation of Dunkin' Donuts from its 95 Franklin St. site to 138 Franklin St., which is directly across the street from the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Citing the birthplaces' importance as historic landmarks and the traffic, parking, litter, and aesthetic problems which would be caused by a the proposed 24-hour coffee shop with "drive-thru" window, the resolution calls for the council to petition the Quincy Historical Commission, the Zoning Board, and the License Board to oppose the proposed re-location.

"This is an explosive issue," Raymondi said, noting that a petition signed by over 1000 residents was already making its way through the neighborhoods. "This would have a devastating impact on the community and I'm asking city officials to scrutinize this proposal and protect the neighborhoods."

Raymondi and D'Amico have scheduled a neighborhood meeting on the matter Sept. 21 at Roche Brothers Community Room at 7 p.m.

Raymondi said he was hopeful the resolution would pass the Tuesday night City Council meeting given the strong support of both ward councillors affected.

According to the resolution, Mayor James Sheets and Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon are also opposed to the relocation.

Prior to its purchase by Dunkin' Donuts, 138 Franklin St. was the site of a Citizens Bank branch.

D'Amico Holds Up Used Car License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Before the License Board at Tuesday's meeting could vote for a used car license for Fadi Daher, owner of Water Street Petroleum, 376 Water St., Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico called for a review of current licenses now held in the area.

He also wants to have a neighborhood meeting.

Daher had requested a Motor II Used Car License with less than five cars on the premises.

In addressing the board, D'Amico said there are a large number of used car licenses in Water, Copeland and Willard Streets. He said he has received numerous complaints about the specific number of cars exceeding the number of used cars being sold on the premises.

He cited Smith Auto on Water Street which is supposed to have three or four cars and on a "regular basis" has 8, 9 and 10 cars.

He asked the board to take a closer look and said he has a development committee in place with guidelines on used car licenses.

Stating that he did not "disagree with the Water St. location, but with the number of cars.

Chairman Joseph Shea said it is "difficult to enforce" because it depends on the day of the week or the day of an auction. Shea noted that the weekly auctions now taking place in the West Quincy area with "success" has spiked interest to others who are applying for used car licenses.

Building Inspector Walter White said he would like a parking plan as well as the review of cars.

The board will continue the hearing on Sept. 26.

Sundae Party At River Bay Starts Assisted Living Week

River Bay Club in Quincy announces Sept. 10-16 is Massachusetts Assisted Living Week, as declared by Governor Paul Cellucci.

Sunday, Sept. 10 is also Grandparents Day and, as a kick-off for Assisted Living Week, a "Make Your Own Ice Cream Sundae" party is being held for all residents and their families. There will be clowns and music along with lots of ice cream.

It is estimated that about 300,000 of the brake systems are on the road, with 46,000 in buses made by Thomas Built, Blue Bird, and International and the rest used in tractor-trailers and large trucks.

Across Massachusetts inspections are being made of buses which make use of the braking system, a number estimated at 200.

Approval of a five-year lease for six new school buses for the Quincy Public Schools was scheduled on the Tuesday night agenda of the Quincy City Council. The lease would pay low-bidding Coastal Bus and Equipment Sales, Inc., of Rowley $40,000 the first year and $73,915.71 the remaining four years.

Mayor James Sheets said funds for the lease were already included in the school budget but that leases needed council approval.

The mayor said he foresaw no difficulty in approval although, he said, the matter would possibly go to committee for proper review, especially given the latest brake warning.

The five new buses would replace buses purchased in 1991.

Raymondi Plan Would Have DPW Collect Yardwaste Weekly

A resolution proposed at Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi would restore weekly curbside collections of grass clippings, twigs, and leaves during the spring, summer, and fall months, this time through the efforts of DPW employees.

Recent enforcement of a ban on yardwaste materials in Massachusetts landfills caused confusion this summer as BFI yardwaste pickups were initially discontinued and then restored on a monthly basis. City residents were urged to bring their clippings to the DPW at 55 Sea St. for recycling, a move which caused, according to the resolve, "numerous calls of protest" from residents.

The Raymondi resolve asks the mayor to put forth an appropriation for DPW equipment and personnel to run the weekly pick-up, which the councillor argued would be more consistent and cost-effective than hiring private vendors at an estimated cost of $20,000 per week.

"This plan recognizes that there are a lot of people, especially seniors, who just can't recycle at 55 Sea St.," Raymondi said. "It also recognizes that it is in the public interest of the city to provide consistent recycling services for solid yardwaste."

Raymondi said he was hopeful of passage for his 35-week DPW plan and that said plan, or a version of it, could be implemented by spring.

Marina Place To Celebrate Assisted Living

Rockland Savings Becomes South Coastal Bank

In a move both aimed at reinforcing its 132-year ties to the community and its planned expansion on the South Shore, Rockland Savings Bank announces the bank's new name of South Coastal Bank effective Tuesday.

The name reflects the bank's South Shore roots and its full-service banking philosophy.

South Coastal Bank will hold a grand re-opening celebration Saturday, Sept. 16 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the bank's newly renovated headquarters office at 279 Union St. in Rockland. Festivities will include a soccer clinic for kids with the head coach and members of the Boston Renegades, which is one of the major forces in women's professional soccer nationally, as well as a prize drawing, face painting and refreshments.

John O'Connor, chairman, president and chief executive officer of South Coastal Bank, said the name change was simply a reflection of who they have become in their efforts to better serve their customers. O'Connor emphasized the bank has not been bought or merged with another bank and that they have not changed management.

South Coastal Bank remains an independent mutual bank, chartered by the state and owned by its depositors. The bank has a long and successful history of commitment to the community; Rockland

Savings Bank was founded in 1868 and opened branches in Scituate in 1957 and in Carver in 1992.

In an era of mega-banks, O'Connor said there is still a clear need for dedicated community banks. To that end, he said South Coastal Bank has rebuilt their retail and commercial banking team, reconstructed its branches to be more functional and more convenient to their customers, and developed products to assure their customers that they are receiving the best products for the greatest value.

In addition, the bank will be expanding its retail branch network into Braintree and Quincy in late October.

"We have built a community bank that has retained its small-bank way of doing business while being able to offer our customers the products and services more frequently associated with larger banks," O'Connor said.

Sidewalk Sale; a fundraiser at the Yard Rock; and a recent spaghetti dinner which filled the St. Boniface Church Hall and raised over $500.

"We're off to a great start" said Paula Rowe, president of Quincy-based Impressions Plus, Inc., and in charge of public relations for the playground effort.

"Even the $1 dollar donations, the handfuls of change, it's all going to get us there."

Rowe, a mother of two who grew up in Germantown, said she was impressed at how many Germantown residents, current and former, are supportive of the project. "At the (Sidewalk Sale) booth, people would come up and say, 'You know, Germantown really helped me out' and donate what they could," Rowe said. "It's nice to see what Germantown is really about."

But as the Sept. 30 build-day nears, Rowe said, some of the focus will shift to corporate sponsorships. "In the end, the corporate sponsorships could make or break us," Rowe said.

First and foremost, said Rowe, is the CNA Foundation, which is putting up $20,000 for the project as well as 100 company volunteers on build-day. "Without the CNA Foundation, this doesn't happen," both Hanley and Rowe agreed.

Rowe said the project has also received commitments from: Fleet Bank, the Kiwanis Club, the Police Athletic League, the Rotary Club, South Shore Savings Bank, and CLM Vending. It has also received contributions-in-kind from the Home Depot, the McDonald's on Southern Artery, Harry's Pizza, Four-Star Paper, Roxie's, the Yard Rock, Stop & Shop, and Monadnock Water. "Home Depot is supplying the gloves and blue tarps and McDonald's is donating 150 kids meals for the build day," Rowe said. "The response has been great."

But more is needed, said Rowe, from funds to supplies to manpower. For more information on how to support or get involved with the project, contact Paula Rowe at (617) 479-5777.

Raymondi Resolve Would Probe Proposed Utility Increase

A resolution sponsored Tuesday night by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi would have Attorney General Thomas Reilly look into a proposed 12 percent rate increase for Massachusetts Electric and other utilities.

Raymondi wants Reilly to investigate whether the proposed increase, which Raymondi said would cost the typical homeowner $10 more a month starting in October, is simply "legal maneuvering" to essentially renege on a 1998 promise by utility companies to give Massachusetts consumers an immediate 15 percent rate cut in exchange for passage of the Utility Deregulation Act.

"This is about promises made and promises kept," Raymondi said, urging other communities to follow suit.

As of press time, Raymondi said he was hopeful of passage by the City Council.

Register Of Deeds Only Race Light Vote Seen For One Contest Election

With only one ballot contest, the sole attraction in next Tuesday's primary election, the voter turnout is expected to be the lightest in many years.

"I'm hoping for 20 percent," says City Clerk Joseph Shea. "But early indications are that it will be lower. It could be one of the lightest ever."

Some political observers think the turnout could dip to 10 percent or possibly lower.

The one contest is on the Democratic ballot, a three-way race for Norfolk County Register of Deeds, an important but low-profile $85,000 a year post. Barry Hannon of Braintree is leaving after 30 years.

The three contenders, as they appear on the ballot are:

New Quincy College President

Barry: 'I'm Thrilled By This Opportunity'

By CRAIG SALTERS

By an 8-1 margin Monday night, the Quincy College Board of Governors voted to name Sean Barry the new president of Quincy College.

Citing his personal experience at the school and his longtime dedication to Quincy College, the board overwhelmingly put its support behind Barry, who began serving as interim president Jan. 31 after the Jan. 7 resignation of Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan as the college's president.

The lone vote for Dr. Neal Raisman, the other finalist for the position, was cast by board member Richard Hart.

"I'm thrilled by this opportunity," Barry said immediately after the vote, adding that he hadn't slept since Sunday morning and that he was actually on his way to teach a course in American Government. "We have our financial house in order, finally, and now we have to spread the good word about Quincy College and the services we provide."

Barry, a former member of the Quincy School Committee who started teaching as an adjunct professor at the college in 1992 and became vice-president of Institutional Advancement in

Would Block Dunkin' Donuts Move

Harold: Take Bank Branch For Visitors Center

City Council President Paul Harold has called upon the National Park Service to purchase or take by eminent domain the former Citizens Bank branch on Franklin St., directly across from the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams birthplaces.

Harold said the purchase or taking would achieve two goals:

- Block what he termed the proposed inappropriate use of the property for a Dunkin' Donuts shop.

- Provide a long needed permanent Visitors Center for the Adams National Historic Park and tourists.

Harold said Tuesday he has written to Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Park, urging that the federal government "take immediate action to acquire the property for park use."

"I know that for a number of years the Park Service has been seeking a site in Quincy to replace the Visitors Center in Presidents Place and this would be a perfect location."

"A free-standing building of Colonial design with parking, just opposite the birthplaces, is the most logical choice."

Harold said he hoped that the threat of the use of the property as a donut shop would be the impetus needed to get a quick response from the federal agency.

"It's now or never," he said.

"Not since the threatened use of the Beale estate on Adams St. for a funeral home has historic Quincy been so challenged," he said.

Harold noted that the ultimate response by the Park Service in that case was to purchase the property that adjoined the Adams Mansion, the summer White House for the father-and-son Presidents and home to four generations of the illustrious Adams family.

Harold has long been associated with the preservation of the Adams birthplaces. He was a tour guide there while in high school.

Later, as a city councillor, he was instrumental in persuading the federal government to take ownership of the birthplaces from the city to guarantee their long-term upkeep and preservation.

Meanwhile, opposition continued to be strongly voiced regarding plans to use the bank building branch as a Dunkin' Donuts shop.

"You have a five-direction intersection at that site and, if you add to it, you're going to have a horror show," predicted John Ruggiano, owner of the Hair After Salon at 124-126 Franklin St.

A lifelong resident of Quincy and an area businessman for two decades, Ruggiano, who also lives in the neighborhood, has been circulating a petition in "adamant opposition" to the new location with the help of William and Judy Turner

Planned Mail Order Wine Service Firm Draws Concerns

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A new concept of selling wine by a mail order wine service called The Wine Messenger was proposed to the License Board at Tuesday's meeting amidst much criticism from Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond.

The New York based company, which is proposing to open on 111 Franklin St., also generated much discussion and questions from the board.

Raymond said in addition to creating "mega traffic" in an already busy area, he said there is "no public need for another liquor store on Franklin St."

Jeff Wittels, vice president of The Wine Messenger based in New York told the board that the store, which would occupy the old barq behind Dunkin Donuts, will not generate much traffic, since most of the business is done by ordering over the phone or by mail or the Internet, and then delivered in small vans.

He said brochures would be sent out to about 20 customers in Quincy, while others will be mailed to other parts of Massachusetts. Persons may then either call a toll free 800 number or order over the Internet.

He said the company is introducing customers in Massachusetts to unique wines from Europe that can rarely be found in traditional wine stores and supermarkets. In a brochure it explains that the wine-making process uses classic cold fermentation techniques.

In making the motion to continue until Oct. 10, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman cited many traffic problems in the Franklin St. area and told Raymond he gets as many complaints as Raymond from residents. Gorman said due to the complexity and the uniqueness of the concept, both Ward 4 Councillor and Michael D'Amico and Raymond should meet with the owners.

Chairman Joseph Shea explained that a vote could not have been taken at Tuesday's meeting because according to the city solicitor, the board needed all of the members present to vote for a liquor license. With two key figures missing, Police Chief Thomas Frane and Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, the board agreed to continue.

Shea said he had spoken with D'Amico who was supposed to attend Tuesday's meeting, but was detained. Shea said D'Amico had concerns, and both he and Raymond will meet with the owners of The Wine Messenger within the next two weeks.

Raymond said if a vote were taken at Tuesday's meeting he would have advised to board to deny the request.

The owner of a package store at 55 Franklin St. said he was concerned over the fact that even though a wholesale license is requested, the board could only issue a retail beer and wine license.

He said he was concerned if six months down the road, what would prevent the company from selling retail?

Gorman echoed the same concerns, stating "there are no guarantees that this wouldn't happen."

Atty. Patricia Lang Farnsworth assured the board that in other areas, if the business does not succeed, there is a contract that says the license would be returned.

However, Gorman said once the license is given, the land and everything else goes with it.

Shea said there was no opposition to the concept, but a question of location.

There was a lengthy discussion between Farnsworth and board members over the 30-day limit from the day of the request.

Farnsworth said the company leased the property on Franklin St. Aug. 1 and they are "paying rent" and said she had hoped for an earlier meeting.

Raymond said he needed more time to write to his constituents concerning the concept, plus to arrange meetings with D'Amico and area residents.

Veterans Outpatient Clinic Opens At QMC

By CRAIG SALTERS
Ribbon cutting ceremonies were held Monday at Quincy Medical Center for the new Veterans Administration (VA) Community Based Outpatient Clinic located on the hospital's second floor, C Wing.

The new outpatient clinic, the eighth of its kind in New England, seeks to improve veteran accessibility to health care by creating satellite clinics where veterans, especially the aging population of World War II and the Korean War, can get medical care closer to home and without the difficult commutes to such traditional VA facilities as those in West Roxbury or Brockton.

Michael Lawson, director of the VA Boston Healthcare System, was master of ceremonies for the hour-long event, which saw remarks from guest speakers including: Dr. Michael Mayo-Smith, service line manager of VISN 1 Primary Care; Congressman William Delahunt; Mayor James Sheets; Elaine Ullian, president and CEO, Boston Medical Center; Aram Chobanian, M.D., dean, Boston University School of Medicine; and Christine Schuster, president and CEO, Quincy Medical Center.

Guests were also treated to a stirring rendition of the national anthem by VA volunteer Monica Moran and a spirited performance by members of the VA Chorus.

"This is a great day," Delahunt told the crowd of veterans, various officials, and guests gathered at QMC. The congressman noted that the first such outpatient clinic, built seven years ago in Hyannis, had been a "phenomenal success," generating almost ten times the expected number recently-opened Quincy clinic, 60 such patients are new to the VA healthcare system. Delahunt added that the national rate of veterans receiving care, estimated at 25 percent, was "unacceptable."

Mayor Sheets expressed wonder that, less than a year ago, the city was heavily involved in the difficult transition from the public Quincy Hospital to the now private Quincy Medical Center with its affiliation

Red Cross Bloodmobile
At QMC Sept. 21

The American Red Cross is asking eligible blood donors in the Quincy area to give blood Thursday, Sept. 21, when the bloodmobile visits Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St.

Donor hours are 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Director Cathy Pray said, "Only five out of every 100 people give blood, and the number of new donors decreased dramatically last year. First-time donors are urgently needed to replace donors who have moved away or become ineligible to donate."

The best way to give blood for the first time, she said, is to come with a friend who is experienced in the donation process. New donors usually find the procedure easy and painless and most will come back regularly to donate.

"The biggest obstacle seems to be overcoming that initial fear," said Pray. "That's why we're counting on our regular donors to help by bringing a friend to this blood drawing."

Most people give blood through the American Red Cross. Potential donors must be at least 17 years of age, in good health and weigh over 110 pounds. In most cases, donors may give if they are on medication, but they should know the names of their medications.

For more information, call the American Red Cross at 1-800-448-3543.

Special Day For Bill Sullivan

Legendary former Quincy High School football coach Bill Sullivan has a special honor coming his way next month.

And those who played with him, for him or against him will agree it couldn't happen to a nicer guy.

Sullivan will be honored Sunday, Oct. 15 -- an appropriate date. For on that 15th, they're going to retire the No. 15 he wore as an all-scholastic tackle and fullback for Quincy High in 1928-29-30.

The retiring ceremony will highlight a dinner at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center. (Cocktails 2 p.m., dinner at 3 p.m.)

The dinner and ceremony are being sponsored by the Quincy High School Alumni Benefit Fund. Tickets are $25 per person and must be obtained in advance. None will be sold at the door.

Sullivan was assistant coach and right-arm to the also legendary Munroe MacLean from 1939 to 1951. And took over as head coach in 1952, stepping down in 1959.

As head coach he left his mark in the Quincy-North Thanksgiving Day rivalry, racking up a 6-2 record that still stands today. And another: he also led Quincy to five consecutive wins against North from 1954-1958, the longest consecutive win streak in the 67-year series rivalry.

But he was more than a good football player and football coach.

He was--and still is--a gentleman. As was Munroe MacLean. No profanity from the bench or in the lockerroom. No humiliating a player for a costly mistake on the field.

They were role models -- the kind you would like to have your son play football for. Or just to know.

There will be friends such as former Athletic Director Marty Finnegan coming all the way from California and former rival Pete (Mr. North Quincy) Zoia and current school officials on hand Oct. 15 to help make it a day to remember for Sully.

Ron Ivil, president of the Quincy High School Alumni Benefit Fund, says Sullivan's retired No. 15 is destined to be hung in the new gym of the new Quincy High School when it is built. And, he hints, there will be a special surprise for Sullivan Oct. 15 as part of that.

Tickets can be reserved by calling Ivil at 781-340-9880 or Vin Moscardelli at 617-328-1312.

Or by contacting other committee members: Gene "Satch" Cavanaugh, treasurer; Bob Derbes, George Mallett, Helena Veno or Nancy Kruger.

Better get your ticket early. They're going to go fast.

A WARM HEARTED tradition begun by the late George Parker nearly a quarter century ago is continuing in his memory.

George, who owned the Yellow Cab. Co. of Quincy, opened his heart and checkbook to youngsters afflicted with muscular dystrophy in 1976.

That was when The Quincy Sun became the Quincy-South Shore pledge center for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

He came by with two $400 checks that first year -- one a company, one a personal. And for the next 10 years it was an annual ritual: George with two $400 checks.

During those 10 years, the pledge center and committee raised over $1 million for Jerry's Kids thanks to a lot of nice people like George.

The pledge center ended after 10 years because of physical limitations for it as The Sun grew. But that didn't stop George. For the next 13 years he came with his two checks. Last year with a little surprise: two $500 checks.

According to our arithmetic, it added up to $19,400. George wasn't feeling two well himself last year but he still sent his checks because he believed kids should have the right to walk, run, ride a bike and play sports.

And he wanted to help them do it. George died May 8 of this year at age 65. But the tradition he started goes on.

This Labor Day, two more checks arrived at The Sun for the MDA.

A personal $500 check from George's brother, Joseph and his wife, Joan and a $300 Yellow Cab company check from George's long-time associate, Wayne McCully.

"We wanted to keep it going," said Joe Parker. "George would like that."

That puts George's toteboard at $20,200.

With more still to come, for Jerry's Kids.

MILESTONE: Good friend Charlie Sweeny, former school committeeman, horticulturist (specialty rare roses) and poet, is a very young 84 today.

Charlie, now a member of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars, stays physically active walking two to three miles a morning at the South Shore Plaza and getting in some golf. (He used to climb mountains.)

He stays mentally alert watching "Jeopardy" and answering the questions before the contestants do and beating the dealer at blackjack down at Foxwoods.

And he's really young at heart. You can see him spinning around town in his apple candy red convertible with the top down, of course.

Charlie and his better half, Betty, have been married 59 years and will celebrate No. 60 next May 10.

Friends are thinking of giving Betty the Purple Heart or Medal of Honor that day.

Only kidding, Charlie. Happy birthday and many, many more.

IT'S LATER-THAN-you-think-dept.: The first snowplowing ad for the coming winter is in this week's Sun classified section.

Keith Beaudoin, owner of Quincy Bobcat Services, is advertising for snow plowing and sanding commercial accounts.

Nothing like planning ahead.

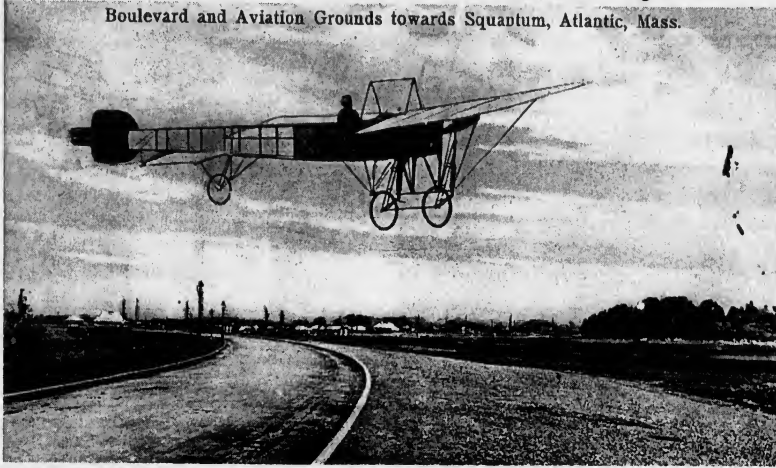

On April 14, 1910, William Howard Taft became the first President to throw the first pitch to open the baseball season. The home team, Washington, beat Philadelphia 3-0.

Teddy Roosevelt had 24 pets in the White House, including 4 guinea pigs, 2 cats and 1 bear.

Scenes From Yesterday

Boulevard and Aviation Grounds towards Squantum, Atlantic, Mass.

NINETY YEARS AGO this month, the Harvard Boston Aero Meet was held at the Harvard Aero Field in Squantum. Large cash prizes for record breaking contests lured the best aviators and equipment from the US and Europe. This was only seven years after the Wright brother's first flight at Kitty Hawk. Wilbur Wright was present but he did not enter the events. Among the thousands who came to watch were President William Howard Taft, Boston Mayor John F.

TAKE HEART 2000 Asks Where Candidates Stand

Editor, The Quincy Sun: During election year 2000, health care is at the forefront of most campaign platforms. We hear a lot about health insurance, affordable medication and concerns about hospital mergers. Actually, we hear about health care as it is tied to monetary issues more than anything else. What we don't hear too much about these days is the very health of our citizens.

Heart disease is the number-one killer in this country, by a wide margin. Stroke is the number-three killer, while holding the number-one slot for disability. That's why the American Heart Association has launched its TAKE HEART 2000 effort which seeks to determine candidate positions on key issues related to the nation's leading disease killers.

TAKE HEART 2000 focuses on three main issues for Americans who have been, or will be affected by heart disease and stroke.

The first is tobacco control. There has been much in the news about tobacco settlement dollars, yet the offer to bring a product that admittedly kills more than 400,000 people each year under the same agency control that assures the safety of the food we eat every day has not been successful. The American Heart Association favors FDA regulation of tobacco — and a recent independent poll shows that 77% of Americans agree.

The second is medical research. Simply put, we need more money invested in saving lives. Heart and stroke research means discovery and hope for the nearly 60 million Americans living with some form of cardiovascular disease. The American Heart Association found that 73% of Americans favor doubling research funding for the National Institutes of Health (NIH) by the year 2003.

The third is acting on signs and symptoms of heart attack and stroke. Health insurers have refused payment for emergency room visits by someone who recognizes the signs and symptoms of heart attack and stroke and goes to the emergency room — only to be fortunate enough not to have suffered a critical incident. Refusal to pay will result in people hesitating to go to an emergency room, or waiting too long. It will result in deaths. The American Heart Association and 84-90% of Americans think health plans should cover suspected medical crises visits to an emergency room, so that no time is lost and more lives can be saved.

Our leaders must show they mean business when it comes to improving the lives of Americans. But it will take more than talk — it will take heart, commitment and action. Lawmakers and candidates must do all they can to find cures and better treatments for heart disease and stroke. It's what the American people want.

Deegan Opposes Filling Butler Pond

By PAUL HAROLD

Despite a unanimous vote by the School Committee, City Manager William Deegan came out this week in opposition to the filling of Butler's Pond.

The School Committee wanted the pond filled to expand the playing fields for Central Junior High School. Deegan, however, cited the costs of taking the property and the filling for his opposition. He also said that a better public purpose would be served if the pond was used for water safety courses by the Park and Recreation Department.

The owners of the pond, John and Michael Walsh opposed the taking and filling. The taking of the property was estimated at $875.

NEW CONTRACTS NEEDED TO PREVENT 5,000 SHIPYARD LAYOFFS

Samuel Wakeman, General Manager of the Fore River Shipyards, said that unless new contracts are awarded to the yard, the work force would be cut from 7,000 to 2,000.

Meanwhile, Sen. Wayne Morse was critical of efforts by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall to direct contracts from Oregon yards to Fore River. Morse charged that Saltonstall who was chairman of the Armed Services Committee was using "strong pressure" to direct a contract to Quincy for a $212 million Forestall-type aircraft carrier.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE ADDRESSES OVERCROWDING

School Superintendent Dr. Paul Gossard asked committee vice chairman Wendell Clark for his support in expediting the construction of a basement classroom in the Wollaston School. Enrollment exceeded all projections with the need to add a fourth first grade. The current first grade class size was over 40.

At the Squantum School overcrowding that resulted in "corridor classrooms" would be solved by Thanksgiving with use of a low-cost demountable type of portable school building.

Third Annual Quincy ArtsFest This Weekend

The third annual Quincy ArtsFest will take place this weekend at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex in Merrymount Park.

The show will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free.

The event will feature more than 300 works of art and photography from the area's best artists and photographers. There will be a Juried Art Show, a Juried Photography show, a Quincy Art Association Members' show, an Open Show and a Young Artists' show.

"The Quincy ArtsFest has become the signature event of the Quincy Association," said Anet Paglierani of the Quincy Art Association. "Due to the quality of work on display and the unique park setting, I believe that this is one of the finest shows around."

The ArtsFest is sponsored by the Quincy Art Association, Best Western-Adams Inn and the Quincy Park and Recreation Departments.

"Through the support of Mayor Sheets, the City Council and Best-Western-Adams Inn, Quincy ArtsFest has established a reputation as one of the better shows in the region in just two years," said Thomas Koch, Executive Director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments. "Quincy ArtsFest has become an event where a family can enjoy an affordable day of entertainment, food, art viewing and much more in Quincy's most beautiful park. It is tough to beat a nice Fall Day at the Quincy ArtsFest."

There will also be art demonstrations performed by Quincy Art Association members throughout the weekend. There will be many activities for children including cookie decorating, rock-painting and mini-sailboat decorating.

"The Quincy ArtsFest provides the local community with a chance to display a wide range of their talents," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "An entire family can spend the day at Quincy ArtsFest enjoying the artwork, entertainment, food, demonstrations and more without worrying about spending much money. I encourage everyone to visit Quincy ArtsFest and enjoy the many different aspects of this show."

The Quincy ArtsFest Committee consists of Koch, Welch, Paglierani, Liz Haywood-Sullivan, John Black and Dave Murphy.

To compliment the art work on display, there will be live entertainment all weekend long on the main stage. The entertainment

Deware Funeral Homes Teach Senior Citizens How To Be Smart And Safe

Senior citizens can use numerous tactics to avoid criminals who specialize in preying on them, stealing their hard earned possessions, well-deserved sense of security and sometimes their health or life.

Recently, a local group of senior citizens learned valuable tips on personal safety, safety in the home and how to avoid becoming the victim of scams at the Smart and Safe Seniors event held at the Squantum Gardens Community Center in Quincy.

The Deware Funeral Homes of Quincy in association with the Affiliated Family Funeral Homes of Massachusetts and the over 1,500 Dignity Memorial funeral providers nationwide joined with the Quincy Council on Aging to host Scott Deware, president of the Deware Funeral Homes of Quincy and New England Coordinator for the Smart and Safe Seniors program, to present this unique and comprehensive program designed to help prevent the exploitation and abuse of senior citizens.

"The safety of senior citizens should concern everyone in our community," said Donald McCarthy, funeral director for the Deware Funeral Homes. "We are proud to be associated with Dignity Memorial and be able to bring Smart and Safe Seniors to our city."

Sample lessons from the program included home invasion prevention safety tips, safe banking tips and how to avoid becoming a victim by making smart choices. For example, senior citizens should wait a day or two later than usual to cash social security checks to avoid becoming a victim simply because of routine.

During the hour long program, Deware asked the audience what they thought the general public's perception of them was. "Slow," "feeble-minded" and "weak" were just a few of the answers.

"We have to challenge that way of thinking," Deware said. "Senior citizens can be smart, and avoid being scared. There are practical ways to protect yourself everyday."

"We learned so much specific information on how we can be smart and safe," said Donn Burgess. "I appreciate the Deware Funeral Home for providing Smart and Safe Seniors to give us the added advantage with these simple safety tips."

"We should all be concerned about the social quality and safety of our community," Deware said. "We are proud to provide educational programs that improve our community life."

If you are interested in hosting a Smart and Safe Seniors program you can contact Scott Deware at (617) 472-1137.

South Shore Hospital Offers Free Prostate Health Screening

CoastSweep Planned For Wollaston Beach Saturday

Massachusetts Coastal Zone Management's "CoastSweep" reaches Wollaston Beach Saturday, Sept. 16.

Volunteers will be asked to help remove debris from the beach between 10 a.m. and 12 noon and also fill out information cards for the CZM to help identify any potential sources of pollution.

The volunteers are asked to meet in front of the Wollaston Yacht Club before 10 a.m. All volunteers will receive a free CoastSweep T-shirt.

The cleanup is being organized by the Metropolitan District Commission, the City of Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission and the Ward Five Community Association.

Some volunteers will also be asked to participate in the Ward Five Community Association's on-going storm-drain stencilling program.

Storm-drains throughout the area will be marked with "Don't Dump --- Drains to Wollaston Beach" stencils in an effort to raise awareness of the impacts that the storm-drains have on the beach.

Last year, more than 70 volunteers from throughout Massachusetts participated in the CoastSweep of Wollaston Beach.

This year, participating groups include students from Atlantic Middle School, the Plymouth Church in Framingham and a group of Wellesley College alumnae.

Rain date for the cleanup will be Saturday, Sept. 23.

For more information, call Doug Gutro at 617-328-7982.

Creedon To Be Honored As JWV 'Citizen Of Year'

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post will honor School Supt. Eugene Creedon as the 50th recipient of its "Citizen of the Year Award."

Creedon will receive the award at a breakfast program Sunday, Nov. 5 at 9:30 a.m. at Beth Israel Synagogue, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point.

Program Chairman and Past Commander Irving Isaacson said Creedon will be recognized for his commitment to the city's public education system and his devotion to the community.

Isaacson said that commitment and dedication are illustrated by a quote from Creedon's back-to-school message to parents that appeared in The Quincy Sun:

"We look upon the new school year as that golden opportunity to help your child to grow, to change, and become a self-fulfilling citizen."

City Finalizes Dickinson Waterfront Property Acquisition

The city has finalized its purchase of the Dickinson property located at the entrance to Marina Bay.

The five acre parcel was purchased by the city with assistance from The State Executive Office of Environmental Affairs' Self-Help grant program. The waterfront property will be preserved as open space and conservation land.

The State's Division of Conservation Services awarded a Self-Help grant in the amount of $250,000 earlier this year to assist the city in purchasing the property. The city proceeded to take the land by eminent domain in an effort to preserve the valuable waterfront ecosystem.

"The purchase and preservation of this parcel is major step toward protecting Quincy's remaining valuable natural resources. We are in the process of identifying ore environmentally-valuable parcels with the open of protecting our remaining parcels and targeting them for protection," said Mayor James Sheets.

The parcel will come under the jurisdiction of the Quincy Conservation Com-

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS points to the five-acre parcel at Marina Bay that the city has purchased and will preserve as open space. With him are Senator Michael Morrissey, Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, and Rep. Bruce Ayers. The land was formerly the Dickinson property.

mission and will remain as open space. In the near future, the city will develop an improvement plan to remove the man-made obstructions such as asphalt and chain-link fencing.

"On behalf of the City of Quincy, I would like to thank Environmental Secretary Bob Durand for his assistance in facilitating the Self-Help grant program and Joel Lerner and Jennifer Soper of the Division of Conservation Services for their help in working with us to administer this grant," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department.

"Through their assistance, the City of Quincy has now protected a five-acre waterfront parcel that possesses marshland, upland, beachfront, and could serve as a vital link to nourishing the Squantum marshes. "I would like to thank State Sen. Michael Morrissey, State Rep. Bruce Ayers, State Rep. Steve Tobin, State Rep. Ron Mariano and the members of the Quincy City Council for their continued support of this grant application."

Morrissey Goes Back To School Sept. 18

Sen. Michael W. Morrissey will participate in "America's Legislators Back to School Day" by visiting North Quincy High School Sept. 18.

Morrissey, as the father of a middle school and a high school student, has had a strong interest in education. His father was a vocational school teacher for almost 30 years.

"America's Legislators Back to School Day" is a national program developed and sponsored by the National Conference of State Legislatures and the Center for Civic Education.

"This is the first year that state legislatures from every state will join with their Massachusetts counterparts to participate in this exciting new program," said Morrissey.

National professional groups representing elementary and secondary school principals are among the educational organizations that have offered support for the program.

"The goal is to educate future citizens about what it is like to be a state legislator, what the legislature does and how citizens can influence that process," Morrissey said.

"It will also result in focusing the attention of state legislators on improving civic education on the same day all across the country, building personal links between schools and legislators and providing legislators an opportunity to observe what is going on in schools.

"Legislators who 'go back to school' in their districts are expected to explain what it's like to represent other citizens to decide large and small issues of public policy.

"Rather than simply explaining how a bill becomes a law, participating legislators will discuss how they respond to competing interests and resolve disputes on public issues and problems.

"The legislators, using examples from their own experience, will talk about the role of negotiation and compromise in efforts to achieve consensus among competing groups of interests to issues which are often contentious because of deeply held viewpoints."

Arthur Senter Organizer Of USS Manila Bay Reunion

Former Quincy resident and Navy veteran Arthur Senter is busy organizing a Sept. 21 to Sept. 24 reunion at the Braintree Sheraton Tara of shipmates from the USS Manila Bay, a "baby carrier" which saw action in the Pacific Theatre during World War II.

Senter, who was born and raised in Quincy and is a 1940 graduate of North

Quincy High School, served as a pharmacist's mate aboard the Manila Bay from 1943 to 1945. The ship, he said, ferried new planes to aircraft carriers and took part in 11 battles in the Pacific from January 1944 to September of 1945. It also played a key role in the subsequent occupation of Japan and the "magic carpet" transport of injured American soldiers and prisoners of war.

The ship, which was built in Tacoma, WA, was de-commissioned in 1950.

Senter was the first commander of both the Wollaston Legion Post and Quincy Veterans Council to have served in both World War II and the Korean War.

Japanese Delegation Touts ESL Partnership During Visit Here

By CRAIG SALTERS

A Japanese delegation from the town of Kawahigashi visited Quincy recently and took part in gift-exchange ceremonies at City Council Chambers.

The delegation, in town as part of Kawahigashi's efforts to encourage ties between the communities and strengthen its ambitious interactive ESL program, was welcomed by City Council President Paul Harold, who served as acting mayor while Mayor James Sheets was on vacation.

Later that day the 10-member group joined a roundtable discussion with South Shore educators on "Second Language Acquisition Tools" in Nease Library at Eastern Nazarene College.

Since 1998 Quincy's Beechwood Knoll Elementary School has participated in a pilot program with the Japanese town whereby students correspond via e-mail, interactively strengthening language and cultural development. The Beechwood Knoll pilot program with Kawahigashi is one of three in the United States, the other two being in Texas and the Midwest.

Leading the delegation were: Haruo Kuriki, the Honorable Mayor of Kawahigashi Town, Kawanuma, Fukushima, Japan; Hisatake Yoshida, president of the Town Council of Kawahigashi; and Dr. Hisako Murakawa, director, Center for Language Research, University of Aizu.

Harold presented the delegation with a book on Massachusetts sites as well as city seal lapel pins for each delegate and copies of the Historic Quincy edition. In turn, the city was presented with a hand-painted vase and a sake cup, both made in the 400-year old tradition of Aizu lacquer ware.

Harold welcomed the city's guests and emphasized the strong connections which already exist between the two regions, noting that Boston and Kyoto are sister cities and Massachusetts and Hokkaido are sister states. Harold, who said he was proud to serve on both of those committees, applauded Kawahigashi's innovative language instruction methods, which make use of high technology and the Internet, and said that both societies would benefit from the advances made.

Through an interpreter Mayor Kuriki thanked Harold for his remarks. Continuing the theme of common ties, Kuriki pointed out that Quincy and Kawahigashi were both settled in 1625, that Kawahigashi is nicknamed "little Kyoto," and that both communities share a passion for history.

Addressing the bold steps taken on the interactive ESL front, Kuriki said that Kawahigashi had installed the latest technology in all of its schools and was completely wired to the Internet. The goals, Kuriki said, were to increase computer literacy, develop students' English abilities to better participate in the global economy, and instill a greater sense of cultural awareness, both of other cultures and the traditions of their own home town.

Yoshida also spoke, saying that his town council wholeheartedly supported Mayor Kuriki's initiative to exchange cultural information via the Internet and adding that he hoped the e-mail connections between Quincy and Kawahigashi students might soon blossom into a student exchange program between the two and a "partnership for the children of the 21st century."

The Quincy meeting and roundtable discussion was organized by Gerry Wood of Eastern Nazarene College, a longtime friend of Dr. Murakawa and facilitator of the partnership between Kawahigashi and the Beechwood Knoll School. "This program understands that learning from textbooks is not relevant enough," Wood said. "The hope is that these international connections will increase their (Kawahigashi's) students interest in excelling with their English."

Part of the roundtable discussion included: Eiichi Ueno, Aizu Cooperations-Educational Institutions Liaison Office; Shiro Watanabe, principal, Kawahigashi Elementary School; and teachers Dana Chapnick, Koichi Hirata, Keiko Ohnishi, Nobuaki Sato, and Yoshihito Suda.

Participating South Shore educators included: Eugene Creedon, superintendent, Quincy Public Schools; Dr. Peter Kurzberg, superintendent, Braintree Public Schools; Dr. Betty Bostrom, principal, Wollaston Elementary School; Dr. Kathleen Morris, principal, Beechwood Knoll Elementary School; Anne Marie Zukauskas, principal, Broad Meadows Middle School; Nancy Barron, Grade 4 teacher, Beechwood Knoll Elementary School; Kathleen Creedon, Grade 1 teacher, Bernazzani Elementary School; Nancy Johnston, ESL teacher, Squantum and Beechwood Knoll Elementary Schools; and Marsha McCarthy, Grade 5 teacher, Beechwood Knoll Elementary School.

LOCAL PRIDE and mutual friendship were celebrated at gift-giving ceremonies between Quincy and Kawahigashi, Japan, held recently in Council Chambers. The Japanese delegation was in town to attend a roundtable discussion on "Interactive Second Language Acquisition Tools" with South Shore educators. Displaying the respective flags of Quincy and Kawahigashi are, from left: Gerry Wood of Eastern Nazarene College; Hisatake Yoshida, president of the Town Council of Kawahigashi; Council President Paul Harold, who served as acting mayor during the absence of Mayor James Sheets; and Haruo Kuriki, the honorable mayor of Kawahigashi, Japan. City Stands Firm On Keeping Independence Ave. Gate Closed Representative Joseph Sullivan of Braintree led an appeal last week for Quincy approval to open the MBTA gate on Independence Ave. for pedestrian and possibly vehicular access to the Quincy Adams Station.

The answer was no. According to Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, who attended the Thursday meeting with Sullivan, chairman of the House Transportation Committee and co-chairman of the House-Senate Transportation Committee, the Quincy Legislative Delegation as well as city officials stood firm in their position that opening the gate, now available for emergency use only, would create a "traffic nightmare" and was not an area "for compromise or equivocation."

"Representative Sullivan made a plea to open the gate and we made it very clear to him that the opening of the gate was not an option," Raymond said of the meeting, which was also attended by, among others:

State Sen. Michael Morrissey; State Rep. Ronald Mariano; State Rep. Bruce Ayers; an aide to Rep. Steven Tobin; Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets; Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon; Sgt. John Barnes of the Quincy Police Department; Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico; and Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott.

Raymond said the issue goes back to an ironclad commitment from the MBTA that the Independence Ave. gate would never be open to through traffic unless the city agreed, an agreement which has been in force for two decades.

The promise that the Quincy Adams T Station would always be a "highway-based" station only, Raymondi said, was pivotal in the city's acceptance of the station, which was originally proposed for North Braintree.

Raymondi and D'Amico co-sponsored a successful resolve at the last meeting of the City Council opposing any gate opening.

The new clinic, Sheets said, underscored the importance of keeping the hospital alive and was a great tribute to the city's veterans. "The city of Quincy has always sent more than its share to fight for this country all across the world," Sheets said. "Quincy has not and will not forget its veterans."

Sheets' promise, as well as the up-and-running outpatient clinic, was welcome news to Leif Thornton, current commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, who attended the ceremonies. "It (VA health services) means everything in the world to me," Thornton said, explaining that he had been receiving VA medical care since 1956 and that a 1989 by-pass operation saved his life.

Thornton confirmed what was said by many: that as veterans age, transportation to and from centralized VA hospitals becomes more and more of a problem. "To have a special satellite unit like this is really great," Thornton said.

Although the clinic represents a collaborative effort from many institutions and agencies, much of the credit for the new Quincy clinic went to Henry "Hank" Bradley, director of Veterans Services for the city. "He's been working over six years on this project," said Patricia Healy, an administrative assistant for Quincy Veterans Services. It was Bradley's polite persistence, Healy and others agreed, which made the clinic's location in Quincy a reality.

As for the clinic itself, Healy was as enthusiastic as the day's assembly of speakers. "It's such a thrill," Healy said. "We're already getting such a positive response."

At the ceremonies, the VA's Lawson announced that a ninth such VA outpatient clinic, to be located in Plymouth, had just been approved.

1998, minced no words about his love for Quincy College, an attribute many board members, including Chairwoman Theresa Lord-Piatelli, said was a key factor in their decision. Said Barry:

"This is it. This is where I'll stay as long as the board look at Quincy College and say 'why?' but we say 'why not?' Every single day people overcome challenges in our classrooms and build success stories. Forty-five years ago some good people decided that the South Shore needed a two-year college that was affordable and that tradition still exists today.

And that's what makes us unique. We make good financial sense, have strong support services, and we're all about convenience."

Thanking the board after the decision, Barry said that he felt an extremely strong commitment to Quincy College, and promised to pass that on to his son, who he hoped that I don't ever disappoint you," Barry said.

Barry's attitude of commitment and school pride, as well as his intellectual and teaching abilities, impressed many of the board members. "Sean Barry provides the type of leadership this institution deserves and needs," Lord-Piatelli told her fellow board members. "He has an unmistakable concern for his students and a strong vision for Quincy College."

Daniel Raymondi, board member and city councillor, remarked that Barry was the only candidate for the job who could boast of having been a member, and administrator at the college. "No one knows this place better than Mr. Barry," Raymondi said.

Words of support also came from board members Thomas Fabrizio, who urged board members to stay close to the college's local roots, and State Rep. Ronald Mariano, who said he got to see Barry's leadership skills "first-hand" while the two served together on the Quincy School Committee.

One of the best qualities of Barry, Fabrizio added, was that, as a local student made good, "he can look students directly in the eye and show them what a good, solid choice Quincy College is." Barry attended St. Ann's School in Quincy and Don Bosco High School in Boston. He received his bachelor's degree from Ohio Wesleyan and a master's degree in journalism and public affairs from American University in Washington, D.C.

Currently, Barry's salary at the school is $92,500.

Light Vote Seen For One Contest Primary

of Appeals, and City Council President Paul Harold, former state senator.

There are no contests on the Republican ballot next Tuesday.

Shea points to the absentee ballots as an early indicator the voter turnout will be light.

Requests for absentee ballots were still under 100 going into this week, he said. Two years ago at this time, there were requests for 300.

The voter turnout in 1998 was 32.8 percent.

There were several contests in that 1998 primary, Shea notes, that helped that turnout.

They included a lively three-way run by William Keating, Jack Corrigan and William O'Donnell for the Democratic nomination for district attorney, won by Keating.

And a hot race between Bruce Ayers and Larry Chretien for state representative in the First Norfolk District, won by Ayers.

This year there are no local fights to help bring out the vote.

Democratic incumbents Senator Michael Morrissey, state Reps. Ronald Mariano, Stephen Tobin and Ayers, and County Commissioners John Gillis of Quincy and William O'Donnell of Norwood have no Democratic or Republican opposition.

Another sign pointing to a light turnout next Tuesday, said Shea, is that the voter registration dropped by approximately 100 instead of gaining since last November.

"This is an indicator of little interest," he said. "But I think we will pick up 1,500 voters for the Presidential election in November."

Total registration now is 51,552.

The city is still a Democratic stronghold with 25,349 registered Democrats to 7,494 Republicans. But the unenrolled (independent) ranks are gaining ground with 18,325.

Not too long ago, Democrats in Quincy outnumbered Republicans and unenrolled combined. But presently Republicans and unenrolled together number 25,819 — 470 more than the total Democrats.

Other Democrats unopposed in Tuesday's primary are Senator Edward Kennedy, Congressman William Delahunt of Quincy, Governor's Councillor Christopher Iannella, Jr. of Boston and Walter Timilty, Jr. of Milton, candidate for the Norfolk County Clerk of Courts post Nicholas Barbadoro is leaving after 19 years. Timilty is presently assistant clerk of courts.

Unopposed candidates on the Republican ballot and the office they seek are:

Jack E. Robinson, III of Boston, U.S. Senate; Eric V. Bleicken of Yarmouth, Congress; Daniel Dewey of Squantum, Clerk of Courts; former County Commissioner Bruce Olsen of Stoughton, Register of Deeds.

The Republicans have no candidate for Governor's Councillor, state senator, state representative or county commissioner.

The Libertarian Party ballot has only one name on it: Carla A. Howell of Wayland, candidate for U.S. Senate.

The offices of Congress, Governor's Councillor, state senate, state representative, clerk of courts, register of deeds and county commissioner are all blank.

Kennedy, Robinson and Howell will meet in November as will Delahunt and Bleicken, Timilty and Dewey, and either Collins, Cronin or Harold with Olsen.

The 30 Quincy polling precincts will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. next Tuesday.

U.S. Constitution Passage Recreation Sunday At Adams Historic Site

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park invites visitors Sunday to play a part in the study of one of the nation's greatest dramas, the passage of the United States Constitution by the Constitutional Convention on Sept. 17, 1787.

The event will be from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Adams National Historical Park Carriage House, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

Members of the audience will assume the roles of various delegates to the Convention and will represent their state in a debate that will determine the fate of a nation!

Led by George Washington (portrayed by a Park Ranger), the debate becomes heated as the time draws short before the final vote is called. After the debate each delegate signs his or her name to the document, rings the Liberty Bell, receives a copy of the United States Constitution, and the Massachusetts Constitution to keep as a memento to their great efforts in the service of their nation, and savors their victory by eating a slice of Constitution Cake!!!

The program is free of charge, has a limited capacity and will be reserved on a first come first serve basis. Those who wish to attend are recommended to call the Adams National Historical Park Visitor Center at 770-1175 to reserve a place. Limited street parking is available on Adams St.

For more information, call 617-770-1175.

Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Rededication Sept. 23

The City of Quincy's Park Department will celebrate a rededication of the Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Stone at Freedom Park Saturday, Sept. 23 at 1 p.m.

The public is welcome to attend the ceremony.

The creation and placement of the Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Stone was an Eagle Scout project for Gerald Grindlay, Jr. in 1994. Grindlay raised the money for the stone and landscaped the area around the stone, which was originally placed at the intersection of Hancock St. and Southern Artery.

The Fuller brothers, John and Buell, were honored by Grindlay for a lifetime of service to the Boy Scouts of America. The Fuller brothers, who lived in North Quincy, made the rank of Eagle Scout in 1924 and spent the next 60-plus years dedicating their time and service to various scouting endeavors. The brothers started Troop 51 of Quincy, organized specifically to enroll boys with special needs into the scouting programs.

Buell died in 1987, and John in 1989. Both had their ashes spread at Boy Scout Camp Massasoit. Grindlay died tragically last year at 22.

The memorial stone is being moved to Freedom Park along Burgin Parkway to make way for the construction of the Formal Garden at Upper Merrymount. Fr. Garrett Barry of St. Ann's Parish will give the blessing at the ceremony.

"The rededication ceremony will allow us to pay tribute to three men who represented the Boy Scouts program at its best," said Michelle Lydon of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board. "The Fuller brothers and Grindlay were all committed to the scouting programs and we are glad to remember them through the rededication of this memorial."

Broad Meadows School Receives Grant To Address Alcohol Issues

The Blue Hills Community Health Alliance (BHCHA) announces Broad Meadows Middle School received a grant for $900 to bring the Improbable Players to the school and present "I'll Never Do That," a classic story of alcoholism.

The Quincy Arts Association also awarded a $200 grant to support this program.

On June 13, 400 students in grades six through eight saw a vivid portrayal of how a family is torn apart by one person's addiction. The production is a humorous and poignant program that addresses denial and the "merry-go-round of addiction." All the actors are in recovery from alcohol and other drug abuse. The program is designed to complement the other alcohol and substance abuse educational programs offered at Broad Meadows. Parents and guardians were invited.

"The physical and emotional health and safety of our students are prerequisites for academic achievement and these grants allow us to provide age appropriate productions that emphasize the danger of high risk behaviors," Principal Anne Marie Zukauskas said.

BHCHA offered grants of up to $1,000 to support projects that would address issues regarding alcohol in 13 communities included in its service area: Braintree, Canton, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Norwood, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate, Sharon, and Weymouth.

Blue Hills Community Health Alliance is one of 27 Community Health Network Areas (CHNAs) across Massachusetts created by the Department of Public Health in 1992. The CHNAs are an initiative to improve health through local collaborations and the BHCHA has focused its efforts on increasing awareness and understanding regarding the issues of alcohol and the resources available in the 13 communities in this CHNA.

McCauley Finds City In 'Decent Financial Condition'

By TOM HENSHAW

Take it from Frank McCauley, the councillor who keeps a critical eye on Quincy's purse strings, the city is in "fairly decent financial condition."

"But we have to be careful," he warned. "We are doing a lot of borrowing. We still have to pay the debt service if there is a down turn in the economy."

The comments of McCauley, who is chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee, are contained in a financial report he put together for his fellow councillors.

"Periodically," he said "I like to keep the City Council up to date on the city's finances. Call it a public service at no extra charge."

McCauley said the Finance Committee will go over his report at its meeting Monday, Sept. 18.

The former mayor who was known for his tight rein on city spending noted several financial areas that should be watched carefully.

One is the fact that the city's reserves, including the stabilization fund, are only 3.9 per cent of the total $183 million budget for Fiscal 2001.

"The rule of thumb is that the reserves should equal at least 5 per cent of the total budget," he said. "The mayor is trying to bring it up to 5 per cent but often he is not tough enough to say "no" to spending requests."

Another concern is the $1.5 million excess of expenditures over revenues in the Fiscal 2001 budget.

It's not a major concern," he said, "but the red light is on the dash board. If this holds true we have to find money in the reserve accounts to balance the books.

The city's outstanding debt has soared 104.7 per cent since 1995, according to McCauley, to the current $66.7 million, which does not include the new high school.

Debt service is calculated at $10.3 million for Fiscal 2001, or 5.62 per cent of the total budget.

"These things are good to look at," he said.

The city is off the immediate hook on payments for the $12.1 million it borrowed to convert the hospital from city-owned to a private non-profit corporation until June 30, 2005.

That's when the first of three payments by the Quincy Medical Center of $4 million comes due.

"If the hospital goes out of business the city is responsible for oayment of the loan," warned McCauley.

He said he is still unconvinced that the city needs a new ladder truck for West Quincy at a cost of $600,000 as requested by Mayor James Sheets.

In addition to the $600,000, he said, the city would have to pay an additional $900,000 to renovate the West Quincy station to accommodate the new vehicle and more than $1 million in personnel costs to man the truck., a total of $2.6 million.

"Do we really need this?" he asked, noting that ladder trucks from Central and Wollaston stations made fire runs to West Quincy 1,752 times in three years (1997-98-99), only 17 of them in which they were really needed.

McCauley said William Arienti, president of the Firefighters' Union local, has promised to go into the need for the new ladder truck in greater detail; at the September meeting.

Keating, Bellotti Speakers At Juvenile Round Table

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating and Sheriff Michael Bellotti, will be the keynote speakers

SEAT BELT MYTHS

There are those who argue against wearing seat belts in the mistaken belief that they can trap a person inside a vehicle during a crash. The fact is, though, that it takes less than a second to flop open a seat belt. In the meantime, it has saved the wearer from the often deadly "second collision" that occurs inside the cabin when vehicle occupants fail to wear one. Another myth is that, by not wearing a seat belt, a person may be thrown clear of a vehicle in a crash, thereby sparing him or her from injury. It is far more likely, however, that anyone ejected from a vehicle during a crash will suffer extreme injury. All vehicles are equipped with many safety devices and systems and it makes good sense to keep every system, including the safety systems in your new or older car, properly maintained. Rely on your professional service technician. To help you do this, the ASE Certified professional service team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is available at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Survey Shows Lack Of Hurricane Prevention Measures

Residents of the Atlantic and Gulf Coast regions of the United States know all too well the destructive power of a hurricane.

The 1999 season was a harsh reminder that it's not only the high winds that cause damage, but the flooding rains that cause a lasting impact. June 1 officially marked the beginning of the 2000 hurricane season, leaving many communities wondering if they had taken prevention measures that could ultimately lessen the destruction that almost destroyed communities in North Carolina last year.

A recent survey by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) of residents in northern and southern hurricane-prone states found that:

- In northern states, 64 percent of respondents said they believe they are well prepared, but 76 percent of them had taken no specific actions to protect their homes.

- In southern states, 81 percent of respondents said they believe they are well prepared, but 58 percent also had taken no action.

Hurricanes uproot the lives of families and businesses, but fortunately, the federal government has programs that can help. FEMA's Project Impact: Building Disaster Resistant Communities is a nationwide initiative to help spread the message—you can't prevent the weather, but you can prevent the damage. In an attempt to change the way Americans think about hurricanes and disasters, Project Impact encourages communities and businesses to take preventive measure before disaster strikes.

"There's still enormous work to be done, to help people understand the specific steps they can take while the sun is shining to safeguard their families' lives and homes—as well as their communities," FEMA Director James L. Witt said. "We know we can't prevent the weather, but we can prevent the damage it causes."

Project Impact recommends the following steps to prevent damage and loss from hurricanes:

- Install storm shutters on windows;

- Reinforce your roof with hurricane straps and bracing;
- Reinforce garage doors; and
- Ensure double doors are secured at the top and bottom, adding bolts or pins where needed.

To prevent damage and loss from flooding that often accompanies hurricanes, Project Impact recommends:

- Elevate homes in flood-prone areas;
- Elevate the main breaker or fuse box, and any heating, ventilating and cooling equipment;

- Install and check valves in building sewer traps to prevent water from backing up in sewer drains; and
- Anchor the legs of your fuel tank into a large concrete slab.

If you aren't sure whether your house is at risk from hurricanes and floods, visit www.fema.gov. For more information about Project Impact, visit www.fema.gov/impact or call 202-646-4117.

Clean Up On These Household Tips

Build-up dirt and dust needn't be daunting. With these handy hints from the cleaning experts at Merry Maids, your home can shine in no time:

- Dust first, vacuum last.
- Vacuum from north to south and east to west.
- Polish mirrors and clean windows in straight lines, not circles.
- Use the clock. Give cleaning solutions time to work.
- Use the right tools.

Hints for Homeowners

Cloth diapers are ideal for most jobs.

- Lift pet hair off furniture upholstery with a damp sponge.

- Wear cloth gloves to clean miniblinds by hand.

- De-clutter. Divide clutter into three groups—trash, charity and Twilight Zone. Get rid of the first two groups now and store the third until you can make a decision about it.

- Get rid of a table that is habitually cluttered. You will be more likely to put things where they belong.

For more information on cleaning your home, visit the Merry Maids website at www.merrymaids.com or call 1-800-MERRYMAIDS.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Tips To Help Kids Eat Healthier

Getting children to eat healthier may be easier with a few helpful morsels from the experts.

Dr. Jay Gordon, MD, Fellow of The American Academy of Pediatrics and author of Good Food Today, Great Kids Tomorrow, suggests the following tips to boost nutrition:

- Make meal times fun and try your best to pretend you don't care if they don't eat the meal you planned. If a child doesn't eat his string beans -- ask if you can have

one. Set good examples.

Remember that children's eating habits don't change overnight, but they can change over time. When mealtime becomes a battleground, kids begin to dread dinner and eat less of the foods they need.

- Keep wholesome foods around the house -- more whole grains and fresh fruits and vegetables -- fewer processed and refined grains and foods that contain sugar. Eating healthy is a habit and having healthy foods around the house encourages it.

- Talk about good nutrition and why it's important. A good analogy is that we take care of our cars so they can take us places we want to go. We must also take care of our body. Gasoline is to a car, as good nutrition is to the body -- it keeps us running.

- Calcium plays a critical role in children's nutrition. Childhood through adolescence is a critical period for growth -- especially bone development. Most bone mass develops during this time period.

- The Food & Drug Administration recommends children under 4 years of age have 800 milligrams of calcium daily; children over 4 years and adult 1,000 milligrams of calcium daily.

You Can Stop Smoking

Did you have a New Year's resolution to stop smoking? If you've achieved it -- congratulations! If you're struggling, don't give up. Quitting is difficult, but not impossible. More than 3 million Americans manage to quit smoking every year.

Quitting smoking yields major and immediate benefits. For example, the risk of heart disease is reduced by 50 percent within a year of quitting when compared to those who continue to smoke, and in fact may approach that of a non-smoker in about 10 years.

Tips to Help You Quit

Give yourself strong personal reasons to quit and reinforce them daily. These may be health, social, aesthetic and financial reasons.

Choose a cherished date like your birthday or anniversary as your target quit date.

Convince your spouse or a friend to quit with you.

Condition yourself with a healthy diet and exercises to prevent the minimal weight gain that may follow quitting.

To help you kick the habit, join a smoking cessation or another behavioral program.

Remember the risks. Smokers have:

- A life expectancy of 7 to 10 years less than non-smokers
- A 10-times higher risk of lung cancer
- Significantly increased risk of mouth, throat, esophagus, stomach, pancreatic, cervix and bladder cancers

• A six-times higher incidence of emphysema and greatly increased risk for heart disease and circulatory problems

Medications

To Ease Cravings

There have been promising developments in the field of smoking cessation, with therapies that have been shown to double the chances of success. Talk to your doctor about Nicotine Replacement Therapy or Zyban.

Nicotine Replacement Therapy:

Nicotine is the chemical responsible for the addictive potential of tobacco, but not for the harmful effects of smoking. Therefore giving the body a clean delivery of nicotine is a relatively safe way to avoid smoking cravings. It is available over the counter in gum and patch forms. It is also available by prescription in patches, nasal spray and an inhaler. Talk to your doctor if you have heart disease or are pregnant before using this treatment.

Zyban: The antidepressant bupropion, available by prescription as Zyban, has helped smokers quit. Therapy is started one week before the quit date and continued for another 7 to 12 weeks. Side effects include dry mouth and insomnia. It is not recommended for individuals with tendency to seizures. Some physicians combine this pill with the patch.

Remember, most people have several failures before they succeed in quitting, so don't give up. Since all these therapies have similar success rates, the choice depends upon your medical history as well as personal preference. Talk with your doctor about what's best for you.

"Tips from Tobias"

"How do I clean my ears?"
You normally "clean" things that are dirty.

Believe it or not wax is not dirt. It is a protective secretion from mother nature.

It helps to keep out infection and insects.

It is produced in the outer portion of the ear canal, about 3/8" into your ear. When I see wax next to someone's eardrum it usually spells "Q-tip" or some other brand swab. Wax must be put there by some means, swabs, bobby pins, keys, you name it. When the ear itches people will stick just about anything in their ear to stop it, sometimes damaging the eardrum or canal wall. If your ear itches try to scratch it by rubbing behind your ear. Earwax normally migrates outward, so don't push it dry wax. Ask your doctor, (preferably an ear doctor) about your specific problem. If you need the name of one in your area feel free to call me. Remember ear canals are not dirty they are probably the cleanest most germ-free part of your body!

Now you go and spread the news! Steve

Raiders Strong, Athletic In Rebuilding Year

By CHRIS POISSON

Last season, trying to figure out which North Quincy High School football team would show up was like guessing which castaway on "Survivor" would be booted off each week.

Sometimes the Red Raiders looked like a championship contender. Other times they struggled for consistency.

"We had a tendency sometimes where we started off really strong and then bottomed out," said second-year coach Peter Chrisom. "We're really stressing all four quarters. Condition these kids to get into the right frame of mind."

When North Quincy steps onto the field tomorrow (Friday) night at 7 p.m. at Stoughton, it will have an entirely different look. The Red Raiders graduated 19 seniors from last year's 2-8-1 squad, including their entire mammoth offensive line, starting backfield and go-to receiver. They were hit harder than a motionless Tim Wakefield knuckleball.

"We lost a lot of kids from last year, but the kids we have this year are very athletic and strong," Chrisom said. "We have a lot of holes to fill, so we're looking at a lot of younger kids. But we have some experience coming back."

OFFENSE

To say the Red Raiders had trouble scoring last season would be like saying Bill Gates has some money. They averaged 9.4 points per game, scoring 10 points or less in seven of 11 games. But there's reason to believe this team can put up better offensive numbers.

"We lost a good fullback and we lost a real good tailback, and we lost our entire offensive line," said offensive coordinator Tom Carter. "We're rebuilding everything. But the skill players this year are probably our strongest point."

Senior quarterback Max Repoff is one of those players. Last preseason, he and Sean Adams, who has graduated, battled for the starter's job. Although Adams walked out of training camp as the No. 1 QB, he didn't hold on to it for long. Repoff replaced him during the season and led the team to its only two wins before an ankle injury kept him on the sidelines for the final four games.

In 2000, there's no competition. Repoff has been handed the starter's job and sophomore Kevin Holleran is his backup.

"He's had a very good summer," Carter said. "He's throwing the ball real well."

And he has some fast kids on the outside who can catch. If we can give him a couple of seconds, he should be all right."

The speedsters on the outside are seniors Joey Holleran, quad-captain, and Greg McGinness, both of whom will try to fill the void left by graduate Jody Bravo (4 TD receptions). Senior Sean Cote (6'2", 215) should be a target at tight end.

In the backfield, the Red Raiders no longer have the services of fullback Brian Deputa and tailback Steve Minukas. The dynamic duo powered a strong running game last year, combining for 10 touchdowns.

Filling their shoes this year are senior fullback Dean Zoia, backed up by senior Kyle Piazza, and junior tailback Pat Bregoli. Zoia and Bregoli have caught Carter's attention.

"[Zoia] had an exceptional summer," Carter said. "He had a great scrimmage against Newton North. He really banged into people. Pat Bregoli keeps getting better."

The backs, however, won't be running behind an offensive line that averaged 250 pounds per lineman last season. Instead, they'll have a quick, agile group in front of them. Quad-captains Vincent Traietti, Fred Butts, Chris Selter, and senior Dennis Reale and junior Jeff Narbone will start on the line tomorrow.

"We're going to have a quick offensive line this year," Carter said. "It's not going to be anywhere near as big as last year. They're very fast. We're going to be playing a little different type of football this year. We're not going to be able to go bang people."

DEFENSE

Defensively, the Red Raiders will need to be more consistent than a year ago. Sometimes the defense was stronger than the National Guard and sometimes it was as fragile as your grandmother's China set. They gave up 24 points per game last year, including three 40-plus point games.

This season, North Quincy has more speed and it will try to use that to its advantage. The defensive line is the same as the offensive line. Although it will be smaller, Carter hopes it will be able to get to the ball quicker.

At linebacker, North Quincy lost captains Ryan Murray and Deputa to graduation and will now ask Traietti to anchor the group.

"Vinnie Traietti at linebacker is have a really good camp," Carter said. "He has that nasty attitude. That's something we haven't had around here in a while."

The strength of the defense is the secondary. Bregoli, who had three interceptions in one game last year, returns to a corner with Joey Holleran opposite him. Junior Dennis Thompson will play strong safety and senior Chris Donovan will be the free safety.

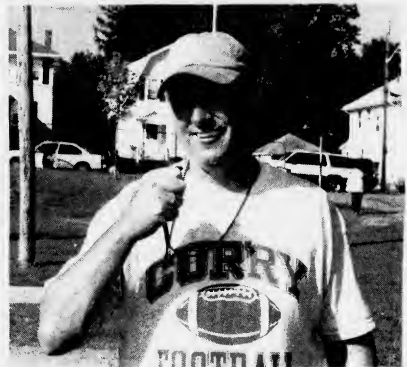

Sophomore Jim Coughlin, a defensive back, will also find some time on the field.

"Jimmy Coughlin is going to play," said defensive coordinator Ryan Craig. "He's going to get himself on the field. He's going to force us to play him. He can play multiple positions. Where ever we need him, he'll play."

Over the past three seasons, North Quincy has compiled an 8-22-1 record and hasn't had a winning season since 1996 when it went 7-3. For this team to return to the plus side of .500, the senior class needs to shoulder much of the load and provide leadership, and the younger players, the 20 sophomores, have to step in and contribute right away.

"It's going to take a lot of work," Chrisom said. "These kids know it, but they're willing to put the effort into it."

PETER CHRISOM, in his second year as head coach, will try to lead the Red Raiders to their first winning season in four years.

Competitive Presidents Look To Next Level

By CHRIS POISSON

As the team thronged near the end zone at Veterans Memorial Stadium, with smiles beaming through an overcast sky, Bob Noble and his players grasped the holiday memento that would remind them of this day for years to come.

That was the scene painted minutes after the Quincy High School football team's thrilling victory over North Quincy in the Thanksgiving Day game last November. It had been 20 games since the Presidents last tasted victory.

"It was important because it had been such a large drought since we won," said Noble, former interim coach who was named head coach in the off-season. "Winning our last game was a very positive win for us. We're going in on a high note and we'll be ready to play."

"But that's also in the past and we have to concentrate on what's in front of us right now."

What waits ahead of them is the 2000 season, which kicks off tomorrow (Friday) night at 7 p.m. when they travel to Randolph. The Presidents graduated 15 seniors, including their all-star quarterback and starting backfield, from last year's 1-10 team and will now ask a new crop of talent to take the program to the next step.

"We're competitive," Noble said. "We're at that point. Now we have to get to the next level, which is winning our fair share of our games."

Offense

If you look at the numbers from last year, you would think Quincy scored less than the New England Revolution with its 13.6 points per game. The numbers, however, are a bit deceiving. Quincy was able to move the ball, but it was the costly penalties and turnovers that prevented more trips into six-point land. It will try to cut back on the mistakes with many new faces at the skill positions.

The Presidents will miss Dan Kelly, their OCL all-star quarterback and leading scorer from a year ago, but at the same time the QB position is the strongest and deepest part of the club this season. Taking over the reigns is junior Mike Lorenzano.

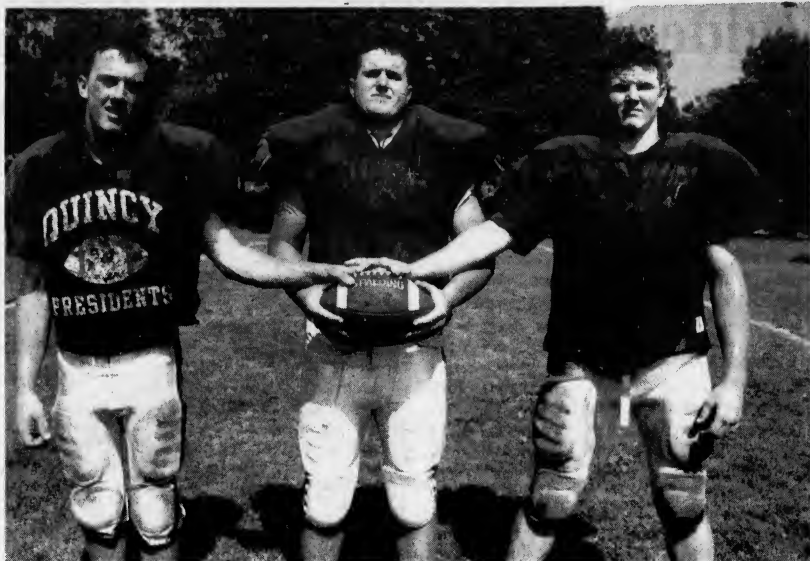

"The best player we've probably had to this point is [Kelly's] replacement — Mike Lorenzano," Noble said. "Mike has really responded very well for us to this point. He looked pretty good in the scrimmage against Hanover. He was one of the few players who did look pretty good. I have confidence that he'll play well."

Sophomore Kevin O'Connell will back up Lorenzano and senior Mark Robertson, who was the No. 2 QB last year, is listed third on the depth chart. Lorenzano's improvement has allowed Noble to move Robertson, one of the team's most athletic players, to wide receiver.

"Mark is one of our better players and we're trying to take advantage of him, getting him the ball in the open field," Noble said. "I can better use his overall athletic talents as a wide receiver."

Other targets for Lorenzano to throw to are seniors wide outs Dan Dorsey, Pete Turowski, Gregg Walsh (2 TD catches last year) and senior tight end Tom Shruhan. Turowski will also see time at tight end.

In the backfield, it will be a mix of senior tri-captain

SENIOR TRI-CAPTAINS, from the left, Paul Desmond, Joe Duffy and John Alves made great strides in the off-season and Paul Desmond and juniors Kris Kamborian, Scott Kelley and Chris Sullivan. As of right now, it appears Desmond will start at tailback and Kamborian at fullback.

"Paul Desmond, who was primarily a JV player last season, worked extremely hard in the off-season," Noble said. "He dedicated himself to becoming a better football player, and that played out in the respect and confidence his teammates had in electing him one of the captains. We're expecting him to play well for us."

On the offensive line,

Quincy has some experience and decent size. Although senior Joe Cox is the only one back who started in the Thanksgiving Day game last year, the others did start at times during the season. Senior tri-captains John Alves and Joe Duffy, along with seniors Brad DiMartino and Joe Callahan will join Cox up front. Callahan is coming back from a broken leg that caused him to miss the final four games of the season.

"Joe Duffy, who played some varsity last year, worked very hard in the off-season," Noble said. "He is going to be a two-way starter for us on the offensive and defensive line. We expect big things out of him this year."

AFTER FIELDING a competitive team last season, Bob Noble hopes to take the program to the next level in 2000. Noble, who served as interim coach last year, was named head coach in the off-season.

Defense

Last year, Quincy gave up a league-high 320 points as opponents exploited Quincy's lack of team speed to come up several big plays per game, particularly on the ground. If it wants to enjoy more success in 2000, that's a number that has to be trimmed considerably.

Somewhat weak and inexperienced at linebacker this season, the defensive line and secondary will need to anchor the defense. Alves, Duffy, Cox, DiMartino and Callahan will be playing on the defensive line.

Robertson, who was named an OCL second-team all-star as a cornerback last year, leads the defensive backfield that should be strong this year. Joining him are Desmond, Turowski and Dorsey.

"We have decent size," said Noble, referring to the offensive/defensive linemen. "We're about 230-240 across the board from tackle to tackle. We have kids that are bigger and stronger than we've had around here in the last three or four years."

"Although we may have some kids that are inexperienced, they do have some athletic talent," he added. "And in the long run that is going to be key for us. We have some kids that we feel can play. It's not going to happen over night."

As the Presidents try to put the past behind them and prepare to take the program to the next level, there's one thing they have to take care of tomorrow against Randolph: last year's 23-21 loss. Memories of losing on a field goal with five seconds left after blowing a 21-6 fourth-quarter lead still sting to this day.

"We still talk about that," Noble admitted. "We talk about that to make sure it doesn't happen this year."

Squantum Storm Win, Bow, Tie In Openers

The Quincy Youth Football season is underway and the Squantum Storm recently went 1-1-1 in opening week-end.

The Squantum varsity team displayed tremendous heart and character when it played the 1999 champs, the Milton Mustangs, to a scoreless tie. On four separate occasions the Mustangs had the ball first and goal, only to see the Storm defense hold them off. There were 16 gut-wrenching stops inside the 10-yard line.

and Ryan Barter; cornerbacks Rob Gardiner and Johnny Black; and safety David Jaehnig.

Barter also did an outstanding job punting the ball as he kicked the ball out of his end zone three times. Vinny Pastone made one of the biggest plays of the game when he caused a fumble on the second-half kickoff that saved a possible touchdown.

The offense struggled all game as it battled poor field position and costly penalties. Running backs Kennedy and Graham did provide some bright spots and did Faherty, who made a diving catch on a beautiful pass from quarterback Jaehnig.

The Squantum junior varsity team defeated the Mustangs, 18-6. Michael Garland scored two touchdowns, one on a 30-yard sweep and the other a 45-yard long bomb from quarterback Anthony Black. Black also had a 3-yard QB sneak for a TD.

The offensive line of Michael Barter, Roger Coufaude, Nash Winters, Nick Brown and Mike Lohnes gave plenty of protection. Chris Rooney made several hard runs and caused a fumble with a bone-crushing tackle.

Kevin Bossart was all over the field defensively before being shaken up on a long offensive run. Stephen Spring played tenacious defense as he saved a touchdown with a sideline tackle. Defensive end Matt Jaehnig recorded a big sack.

The Squantum freshman team fell to Milton, 24-18, despite a 100-yard touchdown by Dominic McDougall's three touchdowns and 125 rushing yards.

Jay Lewis was the defensive star with 12 tackles, while James Sullivan, Dimitri Tsoubanis, Andrew Black, Shawn Barter and Tim Nagiera helped the defense.

Fullback Matt Jaehnig, quarterback Zack Deegan and center R.J. Borden were outstanding on offense as were Adam Blaton and J.J. Downs.

The Squantum Storm is short-handed and in need of more players. Anyone in grades 4-8, living in North Quincy/Wollaston, interested in playing football should contact franchise owner Bill Gardner at 328-9382, or come to practice at Squantum School from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Rob Copeland Record Swim Across English Channel

Rob Copeland of Quincy recently joined an elite group of 610 individuals when he swam across the English Channel last month.

An avid swimmer for more than 35 years, Copeland completed the 25-mile swim in 10:33:47, the fastest time recorded this year.

"More people have climbed Mt. Everest than have swum the English Channel," Copeland said. "More people have flown in outer space than have swum the English Channel. More gold medals will be awarded in the 2000 Olympics than there are people who have swum the channel. My most cherished moment is not the swim itself, but that I was able to share it with my family."

It's estimated that Copeland used more than 40,000 arm stroke and 120,000 kicks during the swim in addition to 19 feeding stops to consume more than four gallons of fluids containing over 6,000 calories.

The challenging event began 120 years ago with an intrepid Englishman, Captain Matthew Webb, who made the swim in 21:45:00. While more than 6,000 have officially attempted the swim, only 610 swimmers from 47 countries have successfully swum across the channel.

The English Channel separates France and Great Britain. It's 180 km (112 miles) wide in the west at the Atlantic Ocean and narrows to 34 km (21.5 miles) at the Strait of Dover in the east where it joins the North Sea. The water temperature of the channel usually ranges between 55-63 degrees Fahrenheit.

Swimmers are allowed to wear one swimsuit (no wet suits), one swim cap and goggles. A channel-certified boat captain and an official observer must accompany the swimmer. The swimmer can have a support crew to monitor the progress and provide nutrition and moral support. The swimmer can't touch the boat or crew.

"The combination of the distance, cold and the unpredictable weather makes this swim the most challenging of individual endeavors," Copeland said. "To complete the swim, swimmers must have technical swimming ability, physical endurance, high tolerance/acclimation to hypothermia, a competent support crew, and luck."

Copeland is the principal consultant of ADS Financial Services Solutions, a Quincy-based IT strategy consulting and systems integration firm exclusively serving the needs of the financial services industry.

Degan Memorial Race Raises $40,000 For Local Schools, Pediatrics

A record 2,200 people participated in the eighth annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The 5- and 10-kilometer race was held in honor of Bill Degan (Deputy, U.S. Federal Marshal Service; Lieutenant Colonel, U.S. Marine Corps), who was killed in the line of duty in Ruby Ridge, Idaho, Aug. 21, 1992 while working for the Marshal Service.

About $40,000 was raised from the event with proceeds going to the Parker and Marshall schools, Mayflower Pediatrics and the youth boxing program at McKeon Post.

Part of the proceeds will also help start an annual scholarship in the name of Record 2,200 People Participate

Katherine Gaughan of Quincy, a student at Notre Dame Academy who was hit by a car and killed before graduation last year. On Friday, the Hingham-based school dedicated a scoreboard in her memory before its girls' soccer game against North Quincy.

Here are some of the results from the 5- and 10-kilometer races:

Quincy, 41:45.

5 kilometers, men: Mel Gonsalves, Avon, 16:59; Pat Sweeney, Waltham, 18:16; Patrick McGreal, Milton, 18:31.

Top wheelchair racer: Tim Kelly, Weymouth, 25:52.

Top high school runners, 5 kilometer: Patrick McGreal, Milton, 18:31; Natalie Caron, 22:46.

Top law enforcement runners, 5 kilometer: Ted Coyle, Scituate, 19:16; Nancy McGillivray, Boston, 30:54.

No Luck For Granite Against Shamrocks

After locking up a playoff spot the previous week against Randolph, the Quincy Granite traveled to Marlboro Saturday night and was crushed by the Shamrocks, the two-time defending national champs, 36-0.

It was Quincy's worst defeat in its two years of semi-professional football. The Granite (5-3) will try to rebound when they face Middleboro (7-0) Saturday at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy closes out the regular season Sept. 23 when it hosts the Providence Prowlers at 7 p.m.

Sacred Heart Parish Golf Tournament Oct. 4

Sacred Heart Parish will host its eighth annual golf tournament Wednesday, Oct. 4 at the Presidents Golf Course, West Squantum St., North Quincy.

The event has been dedicated to the memory of Fr. Cornelius Heery, who was pastor for 20 years until his death in 1996.

The Florida freestyle play will begin with a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Check-in begins at noon at the clubhouse. Entry fee is $100, which includes the greens fee, cart, shirt, dinner and awards.

For registration information, call the Sacred Heart Rectory at 328-8666. Individual golfers and foursomes are welcomed. Pre-registration is encouraged. Last year, the roster of 120 players filled early and golfers were turned away.

Individuals and companies may sponsor a green for a tax deductible donation of $150. All donations are welcomed. All proceeds directly benefit Sacred Heart Parish.

St. John's Baseball Registration Sept. 19

St. John's baseball registration for the 2001 season will be held Tuesday, Sept. 19 at St. John's Lower Church from 6 to 8 p.m. for girls and boys between the ages of 7-12.

The fee is $48 per child for Farm League (ages 7-9) and $53 for Little League (ages 10-12). All children who participate in the leagues are required to wear gray baseball pants. The charge will be an extra $8.

In order to be in the leagues, the child must be 7 years old on or before April 1 and a child can't turn 13 before April 1.

For more information, call (617) 472-6554 and leave a message.

Amateur Boxing Sept. 23 At Bryan Post

Farrell Boxing will present live amateur boxing Saturday, Sept. 23 at the Quincy VFW Bryan Post, Broad St., Quincy.

A special tribute to Quincy's Ray McPeck, the Grand Gentleman of New England Boxing, will take place. McPeck, a war hero, was a boxing champion in 1937 and the trainer of many champions.

There will be 12 fights, including Quincy's Chris Traietti, Timmy Kaes and Ryan Kielczewski.

Cost is $12 for adults and $6 for seniors and children. Doors open at 7:15 p.m. and first bout starts at 8 p.m.

Wollaston Baptist Church Run, Walk Sept. 30

The Wollaston Baptist Church will hold its first annual 5k Run/Walk for youth Saturday, Sept. 30 at 10 a.m.

The event will benefit the Cornerstone Campus Preschool, a top-notch, affordable preschool, and The Way Up, a program which helps troubled youths.

Entry fee is $12 for pre-registered runners and walkers and $15 after the Sept. 23 deadline.

For more information, contact the church at (617) 472-0824.

Women's Fitness Classes At Fore River Clubhouse

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct Women's Fitness Classes at the Fore River Clubhouse, beginning Monday, Sept. 18, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Two separate classes will be held Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The first class is from 9 to 10 a.m. and the second class is from 10:15 to 11:15 a.m. The instructor will be Sarah Cobban.

Both classes offer the same instruction and are designed to strengthen muscle, increase flexibility and improve endurance while promoting overall fitness. Hand weights may be used in the class and adaptations in the exercise will allow participants to exercise at their own pace.

Cost is $30. The session will end Nov. 3. Registration will be taken at the first session of class. Late registration will be done at the main office of the Quincy Recreation Department at One Merrymount Parkway.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Office at 376-1394.

Emergency Management Bike Auction

Quincy Emergency Management Agency, Youth Services and Community Emergency Response Team will hold a Bike Auction, Flea Market and Craft Fair Saturday, Sept. 16 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Municipal Building parking lot, 55 Sea St.

The event is sponsored by the Quincy Underwater Recovery Team.

Rain date is Sunday, Sept. 17.

For table space call (781) 391-1034 or (781) 335-3522.

Food and refreshments will be available.

Lady Gators Basketball Tryouts Sunday

The Lady Gators AAU girls' basketball team will hold open tryouts for its 14-under and 16-under teams for the 2001 season starting Sunday, Sept. 17 in Wrentham.

Tryouts, which will run through November, are open to players from Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) While you prefer to meet troublesome situations head-on, you might want to stand back from this one until you know what (or who!) started it. Caution should be your watchword.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Once again, your common-sense approach to a problem helps you sort it out before it gets out of control. Expect to learn some startling facts as events develop.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Positive influences dominate your sign, but you'll have to work hard to get those great rewards that are out there. Personal relationships thrive on tender, loving care.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A friend seems to be drifting away. You might feel betrayed, but you need to know the facts before you pass judgment. Perhaps you made too many demands that couldn't be met.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) New people start to come into the Lion's life at this time. Some of them could influence important career changes. Keep an open mind, and weigh all possibilities.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time for agreements, contracts and other positive commitments, including one with Cupid. Expect good news about a health matter.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A recent change of plans upsets your penchant for keeping things in order, but once you adjust to the new situation, you'll be able to make new plans.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Aspects favor personal commitments. Family plans could include moving to a new home or even to a new city. Be open to any and all considerations.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Both attached and single Archers can expect to see a positive reversal in relationships that had seemed to be on a collision course to nowhere.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family and friends take priority over everything else. Exercise a little more flexibility in your well-planned life so you can spend more time with your kith and kin.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) That pesky person who caused you some problems recently will soon move out of your life. An Aries is ready to help you get a fresh start romantically.

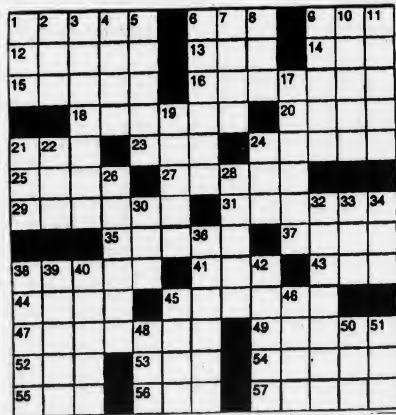

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Yours is the sign of change and creation. And this is a good time to expect to experience changes that can open up new personal and professional opportunities.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You love to have fun and enjoy competition. You also have a gift for "reading" people and assessing situations.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

The first animated movie to receive an Academy Award nomination for Best Picture was Beauty and the Beast in 1991. It lost to The Silence of the Lambs.

OBITUARIES

Angelo P. Serighelli, 85

A funeral service for Angelo P. Serighelli, 85, a retired truck driver with Norfolk Conveyor Co. in Cohasset, was held Tuesday at the Wollaston Chapel of Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

He died Sept. 9 at home following a long illness with prostate cancer.

Mr. Serighelli worked at Norfolk Conveyor Co., formerly Norfolk Iron Co., for 42 years.

Born in Milton, he had lived in Wollaston since 1944. When he was 2, his family moved to Bergamo, Italy, where he lived until he was 18.

Husband of the late Harriet Ruth (Poole) Serighelli, she is survived by two sons, Peter Serighelli of Hanover and David Serighelli of Braintree; a daughter, Martha "Marty" Serighelli of Houston, Texas; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

He is the brother of Peter, Mary, Zita and Martha, all of Italy.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Donations may be made to Old Colony Hospice, 14 Page Terrace, Stoughton 02072.

Robert Papile, 50

Teacher At North Quincy High School

A funeral Mass for Robert E. Papile, 50, of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, an antiques and fine collectibles specialist for 28 years and an Industrial Arts teacher at North Quincy High School, was celebrated Sept. 9 at St. Joseph's Church, 550 Washington St., Quincy.

Mr. Papile died Sept. 6 at Quincy Medical Center after teaching the first day of school at North Quincy High School.

Mr. Papile was well known as an antiques auctioneer and appraiser.

For the past year, he had worked as a vocational instructor in the woodworking shop at North Quincy High School. He was an avid student of history and reconstruction of antique buildings. Mr. Papile was a volunteer coach of Braintree Youth Basketball for both boys and girls. He also coached with the Bay State Magic AAU Basketball Program for Girls for 13 years. He traveled extensively to basketball tournaments with his children.

Born in Quincy, he was a resident of Braintree for many years. He attended St. John's Elementary School and graduated in 1967 from Quincy High School. He attended Quincy College and received a master's degree in education from Cambridge College in 1995. He had played basketball at Quincy High School and Quincy College.

He is survived by his wife, Elly A. (Rizzo) Papile, also a teacher at North Quincy High School; two daughters, Marisa R. Papile and Elena J. Papile, both of Braintree; a son, Anthony R. Papile of Braintree; four brothers, Deacon Joseph A. Papile of St. Jerome's Parish, North Weymouth, Ray E. Papile Jr. of Scituate, Steven M. Papile and Peter J. Papile of Quincy; a sister, Barbara A. He was a member of the Odd Fellows Lodge in East Boston.

He was a supporter of the Faxon House.

Born in Hannibal, Mo., he had lived in Quincy for the past 40 years.

He is survived by his wife, Paula (Dakin) Hascall; two daughters, Annalee Collins of Quincy and Dale Meehan of Milton; and three grandchildren.

Burial was in Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

Donations may be made to Faxon House, 120 Whitwell St., Quincy 02169.

Agnes M. Trillcott, 73

Local Volunteer, Fundraiser

A funeral Mass for Agnes M. (Turner) Trillcott, 73, of Quincy, a volunteer for many organizations, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Mary's Church.

She died Sept. 9 at home from lung cancer.

Mrs. Trillcott coached softball and basketball teams at the Koch Club organization for 11 years. She coached ten pin bowling with the South Shore Junior League at the Wonderbowl and personally won many bowling trophies.

She was a member of the Quincy Festival Parade Committee for the last 24 years. She was chairwoman of the costume characters in the parade and was responsible for about 20 costume characters each year.

Mrs. Trillcott was also a volunteer with physically challenged children for 27 years, first at the Quincy Men's Catholic Association for eight years, and with the Swim with a Special Child program at the MDC pool in Weymouth. She also volunteered at the Massachusetts Hospital School.

She was a member of Quincy's First Night Program for eight years and never missed a New Year Eve's celebration in Quincy Center.

She was a fundraiser for many organizations including DOVE, an organization for battered women; Brain Injured, Head Injured Adults; and the Diana DeVanne Center in Braintree.

Dorothy Hickey, 72

Homemaker

A funeral Mass for Dorothy E. (Keefe) Hickey, 72, of Quincy, a homemaker, was celebrated Monday at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Mrs. Hickey died Sept. 7 at home.

Born in Newport, R.I., Mrs. Hickey lived in Quincy for nearly half of her life.

She is survived by two sons, Michael J. Marvelle of East Weymouth and Dennis P. Marvelle of Hanover; two sisters, Eileen Reish of Braintree and Amy Hulslander of Middletown, R.I.; eight grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was at the Island Cemetery, Newport.

Funeral arrangements were by the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Donations may be made to the South Shore Hospice, 100 Bay State Drive, Braintree 02184.

AGNES TRILLCOTT

She was awarded the "Viking of the Year" award in 1989 by the Order of Viking in Chicago for her many contributions to various organizations and charities.

She lived previously on Long Island.

She is survived by her husband, Kenneth R. Trillcott; a son, Kenneth R. Trillcott Jr. of Quincy; a daughter, Kim R. Trillcott of Quincy; two brothers, Joseph Turner of New York and George Turner of Virginia; two sisters, Jane McDonough and Edna Quatroche, both of New York; five grandchildren and many nephews and nieces.

Burial was private.

Funeral arrangements were by Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to the Epilepsy Foundation of Massachusetts, 95 Berkeley St., Suite 409, Boston 02216, or to Swim with a Special Child, Attn.: June Dority, 203 Forest St., South Weymouth 02190.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

The late maestro Leopold Stokowski, at an age well past three score and ten years, continued an inspirationally active life. By personal example, he shamed many younger people when he said, "I would rather talk about the future, the past is something we can no longer do anything about."

He put his words in action. In approaching age 80, he grouped both young and old in the American Symphony. One third of the musicians were talented youth; the other two thirds were more experienced, more mature. Dedicated to his conviction that America is a land of opportunity and that it must remain so, he exemplified a lesson many of us should heed... The young learn from the old and the old gain from the vitality and enthusiasm of the young.

In recent years, in too many areas of employment, it is a shame that this two-fold concept of opportunity seems to have been side-tracked...

Local Programs Receive Grants For Parenting Education

The Massachusetts Children's Trust Fund (CTF) announces it will award $133,000 to community-based organizations throughout the Commonwealth to fund 29 programs that provide support and education to parents.

The programs help parents learn how to reduce family stress, develop stronger parenting skills, better understand child development, and use community resources to break the isolation many families experience.

Most programs offer refreshments, childcare and transportation, making it easy for parents to attend.

MECA Parent

Education Program

CTF will provide $2,460 to the Milton Early Childhood Alliance/Discovery Schoolhouse Inc. for its Parent Education Program, an eight-week program for parents of children under age 7. The program is available to Milton residents primarily, but is also available to families living in Quincy and Boston.

Support Group For Parents Who Are HIV+

CTF will provide $5,000 to Parents Helping Parents - The Roundtable of Support for its Support Group for Parents Who Are HIV+ program. This program provides on-going education and support to parents who are infected with the HIV virus in the Greater Boston area.

QCAP Head Start

CTF will provide $4,762 to Quincy Community Action Head Start Program for their Parents Together workshop. This workshop will focus on the many challenges that parents of pre-schoolers face and give some concrete supports to help families deal with these issues. QCAP Head Start program services families from Braintree, Hull, Milton, Quincy and Weymouth.

"Our goal is to increase the number of easily accessible, high quality programs available to parents of young children," Suzin Bartley, CTF executive director, said in announcing the annual grant awards.

Every year CTF hears from parents who explain that parenting programs help them become better at managing their children's behavior.

"Parents face many obstacles in raising their children, and all parents can benefit from this kind of support," Bartley said.

Sen. Michael Morrissey said, "The Children's Trust Fund grant will greatly assist Quincy Community Action's Head Start program to continue helping the parents of pre-schoolers cope with the needs of their young."

of Payne St. So far, Ruggiano said, close to 1,000 residents have signed the petition, to be presented to Mayor James Sheets, protesting the site for reasons of traffic, noise, trash, and neighborhood safety. "We're just trying to create awareness," said Ruggiano, who has also sent over 20 personal letters of concern to various city and state officials.

One official who responded and agreed with his letter, Ruggiano said, was Mayor James Sheets. Commenting not on the letter but on the situation, Sheets later confirmed his opposition to placing a new Dunkin' Donuts at the site. "I was opposed initially because of the proximity of the Adams Birthplaces," Sheets said. "I just don't think you can commercialize places that are historically sacred."

Sheets said that Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon was currently conducting a traffic survey of the area and that the issue of traffic safety might play a role in the eventual outcome of the situation.

Superintendent Peak, who was interviewed before Harold's call for the NPS to take over the site, said that she had seen no official plans for the donut shop and wanted to consider all of the information carefully. She did say, however, that the Adams Birthplaces were already struggling with noise, traffic, and pollution issues and that she certainly wanted the city to take a long-term approach to the problem. Said Peak:

"We tell the Adams story through verbal communication and it's very difficult now with the traffic roaring by. There isn't much space here and, what little we have, we value."

Peak also pointed out that, even now, cars occupy trolley parking spaces and cause traffic jams and that outside events at the Adams Birthplaces are limited somewhat due to the noise factor. Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico have scheduled a neighborhood meeting on the matter Thursday, Sept. 21, at 7 p.m. at the Roche Brothers Community Room on Falls Blvd.

That meeting will take place four days before the Quincy Historical Commission considers signage and exterior plans for the donut shop at its Sept. 25 meeting.

Charity Softball Game Pits Ward 5 Versus Ward 6

Wards 5 and 6 will square off in a softball game tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Mitchell-McCoy Ballfield, Southern Artery, to raise funds for the Wollaston Beach Task Force.

The event, organized by Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin and Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, will be free but participants -- which include such players as Congressman William Delahunt, Senator Michael Morrissey, Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Rep. Bruce Ayers, Parks Department Executive Director Thomas Koch, and Community Police Officer Kent Yee -- will pay a $20 playing fee.

Mayor James Sheets, Newton said, will throw out the first pitch.

Newton invited all residents to watch the event and said the goal was to raise $1,000 for the Wollaston Beach Task Force.

License Board Briefs

• Allowed a change of managers at Quincy Post #95 American Legion, 2 Mechanic St. from Al Marobella to Joseph H. Brooker.

• Board heard complaints of noise at Sunshine Fruit, 52 Franklin St. Rafik Mnat-sakanian promised the board that a noisy fan would be fixed by Oct. 1, and report back to the board if it isn't completed.

• Granted an increase of underground storage from 2,000 to 10,000 gallons of gasoline to Daniel J. Quirk, Quincy Auto Auction, 196 Ricciuti Drive. Richard pBurling told the board that a new "state of the art double walled tank, and monitoring system would decrease the number of delivery trucks to the site.

• Granted a one day beer & wine license to Quincy Point Memorial Scholarship Fund for a Quincy Point Reunion at the Fore River Clubhouse, Saturday Oct. 21 from 7 p.m. to midnight.

SOME OF THE 800 people who took part in the Marie Curry Walk Sunday which raised over $100,000 to fight breast cancer, make their way along Furnace Brook Parkway approaching Quincy Shore Drive. Other photos on page 8.

To Fight Breast Cancer

Marie Curry Walk Raises Over $100,000

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The third annual Marie Curry Walk Sunday raised more than $100,000 to help continue the fight against breast cancer at Quincy Medical Center.

A pleased Robert Curry, Quincy businessman and civic leader who founded the Marie A. Curry Fund in memory of his wife who died from breast cancer in 1995 at age 52, said Tuesday:

"We went over the $100,000 mark and donations are still coming in. It was a wonderful day with wonderful people. We have an outstanding, beautiful community and you certainly could see that Sunday."

An estimated 800 -- 200 more than last year -- took part in the five-mile walk from in front of City Hall to Marina Bay on a weatherwise ideal day.

This was the most successful of the three walks. Last year's realized nearly $90,000 and the year before around $80,000.

Money raised goes to the Marie A. Curry Fund which provides free mammography screenings for uninsured and under-insured area women at Quincy Medical Center.

Some 200 such mammograms have been given at the Quincy Medical Center through the fund.

Quincy Turnout 14.8 Percent

Harold Winner In Register Of Deeds Race

City Council President Paul Harold won the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County Register of Deeds in the only contest in Tuesday's primary election.

Harold rode out of Quincy with a comfortable lead over his two opponents, Mary Ellen Cronin, vice chairwoman of the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals and County Commissioner Peter Collins of Milton.

He added to it in two other key communities -- Weymouth and Braintree -- and with returns incomplete appeared to be winning in 20 of the 28 communities in the county.

The unofficial count in those 20 communities was Harold 12,500, Cronin 8,000, and Collins 5,900.

The Quincy-Weymouth-Braintree vote offset Cronin's win in another key community, Brookline. She topped the vote there with 1362 to Harold's 1190 and Collins' 1159.

Cronin, it appeared, would finish runner-up to Harold when all the votes were tabulated. Collins, in third place, carried his home town of Milton.

In Quincy, Harold racked up a vote of 4,693 or 71.15 percent. Cronin was second with 1,526 or 23.14 percent, and Collins 373 for 5.65 percent.

In Weymouth, Harold had 2,306 to Cronin's 1,537 and Collins' 899. In Braintree, it was Harold 1,186, Cronin 591, and Collins 183.

Harold will square off against Stoughton Republican Bruce Olsen, former county commissioner, in the Nov. 7 election.

The Quincy turnout was 14.80 percent, with 7,630 of the city's 51,552 registered voters casting ballots. Of these, 6,675 were Democrat

26 Members Leave Gun Carrying Issue Disbands Auxilliary Police

By CRAIG SALTERS

A standoff over the use of firearms has put an end to the Quincy Auxiliary Police Department in its most recent form and led its leaders to believe they have been pushed aside by the Quincy Police Department.

There is ongoing debate as to the role of the Quincy Auxiliary Department, whether its officers were let go or resigned, and even whether the department now exists, but this much is certain: at the moment there are no auxiliary police officers in Quincy.

Police Chief Thomas Frane confirmed the departure of the 26-member auxiliary but said it was their decision following Frane's Aug. 22 order that they not carry firearms in the performance of their duties.

The auxiliary, he said, still exists but its new incarnation will not carry weapons, which the chief said were unnecessary to their specific roles of disaster relief and training.

"I felt it was in the best interest of the department and the city to have them (the auxiliary) cease carrying weapons in that capacity," Frane said, adding that their right to own guns as private citizens was not in

It is hoped that in the future, the Marie Curry Fund will be expanded to help those needing cancer-related services.

Curry, owner of Curry Ace Hardware stores, donated $100,000 of his own money to establish the foundation in his wife's memory to help other women beat breast cancer through early awareness and detection.

Curry is now chairman of the QMC Board of Directors.

The walk is spearheaded by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Quincy Medical Foundation.

Major co-sponsors of the walk are Citizens Bank and Quarry Hills Associates whose representatives were among those walking Sunday.

Walkers included Curry and his wife, Cheryl; daughter, Julie; and son, Sean and his wife, Tara.

Christine Schuster, CEO of Quincy Medical Center and Maryrose Mirick, director of the QMC Health and Education Foundation were also participants.

It was a first experience for Schuster who took over as CEO at QMC in May.

"I was amazed at the enthusiasm and the togetherness shown by all those people," she said. "It was something really special."

Mirick, who walked the five miles, paid tribute to the large committee of volunteers who are instrumental in planning the walk and carrying it out.

"They are wonderful," she said. "We couldn't do it without them."

Mayor James Sheets and his wife, Joann, also walked -- but half-way. They had been in Pennsylvania and flew back Sunday morning, arriving in Quincy in time to catch the walk at the half-way point on Quincy Shore Drive. When he arrived at the Summer House in Marina Bay where a reception was held for the walkers, Sheets planted a peck on Curry's cheek.

participant, presented Curry with a framed display of the special Breast Cancer stamps issued by the U.S. Postal Service to help fight the disease. Seven cents of each first-class stamp sold goes to that cause. A reported $17 million has been realized nationwide.

The 800 walkers were of all ages, walks of life, and nationalities and included three former mayors: Frank McCauley, Arthur Tobin, and Walter Hannon.

But Bob Curry was most impressed with several women wearing hats or bandannas over their heads.

They were chemotherapy patients still fighting their own battles with breast cancer but wanting to do their part to help other women win their fight.

"This, I think," Curry said, "is what it is all about."

Search For Mob Victims At North Quincy Site

State and federal investigators are conducting a search for two possible mob victims at a North Quincy site near the MBTA bridge spanning the Neponset River.

Authorities, reportedly acting on information from former Quincy resident Kevin Weeks, a longtime associate of fugitive mobster James "Whitey" Bulger, believe that two bodies, alleged victims of Bulger and Stephen Flemmi, may have been buried at the site.

Last week a body was discovered at Tenean Beach in Dorchester following a tip from Weeks. A similar search near the same spot in January led to the discovery of three bodies -- Deborah Hussey of Milton, John McIntyre of Squantum, and Arthur "Bucky" Barrett of Squantum -- all of whom had connections to Bulger and Flemmi.

Case Continued To Sept. 28 Police Testimony Heard On Hat Rack Charges

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board opened its hearing Tuesday into whether the liquor license of the Hat Rack bar, Copeland St., should be revoked or suspended for alleged gambling and drug dealing.

After three hours of testimony and two recesses, the hearing was continued to Sept. 28.

Assistant City Solicitor James Timmons told the board that three members of the drug unit were involved in the surveillance of the bar which resulted in a raid on Aug. 11.

Timmons first questioned Sgt. Patrick Glynn, a night supervisor for the drug unit, followed by testimony by Det. John P. Kelly and Det. Mark Foley.

After being told by an informant that drugs were being sold at the Hat Rack, Foley said he made several trips to the bar as an undercover agent.

The first trip was on June 30 and Foley said as he sat at the bar and ordered a beer, an employee Ann Kennedy approached him and asked him if he was "looking for anything." Foley said he replied he wanted two bags. He said he paid $50 and placed the substance in his pocket. He then engaged in rolling dice in a game that had a big payoff. After that he said he returned what he said was the cocaine to the police station for examination in the lab.

Foley said he made subsequent trips to the bar, July 12, 16 and 27, Aug. 4, 6 and 11.

On Aug. 11, he said, following his earlier procedure, he said he called the drug unit and a raid was subsequently held.

Foley said he would play the dice game while waiting for a drug dealer to procure what he said was cocaine.

During the raid, police charged seven persons for either selling or possessing drugs. Four of those face charges they allegedly sold cocaine to the members of the drug unit posing as customers in the bar. Police also arrested owner Donna Hatfield and three bar workers on charges they ran an illegal dice game at the bar.

Atty Louis Cassis, representing Hatfield, questioned Glynn and Foley regarding Hatfield's cooperation with the police. Cassis asked if it were true that Hatfield was the first informant to the police suspecting that drugs were being sold at the bar.

Cassis said he found it strange that Hatfield told the police probably seeking help and instead "they raid the bar."

He also questioned how 21 police officers and a canine dog took part in the raid only to net a couple of grams of cocaine.

He kept asking each member of the drug unit if they were "surprised at the small amount found in the raid."

Cassis took offense to Foley's description of the bar as an "open market for drugs," and Foley's statement that "persons only go to the Hat Rack to purchase drugs." Cassis said if it is such an open market, how come Foley was hugged while given the cocaine, and had to revert going to the men's room for at least three transactions.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said he was hoping to testify, but because it was election day and unusual for the board to meet, the hearing was continued until Sept. 28.

The bar opened in 1985 and has had its license suspended in the past. D'Amico said he couldn't "wait to testify at that meeting."

Foley told the board that a man known as a drug dealer was outside the bar the night of the raid, but instead of going inside, he ended up another lounge. Two weeks later he was arrested with 28 grams of cocaine on him.

Cassis noted that maybe the drug dealer was not targeting the Hat Rack, but maybe other bars in the area.

The Sept. 28 meeting will be held on a Thursday instead of the usual Tuesday and at 9 a.m. instead of the usual 10 a.m.

Complaint About Officer Under Investigation

A resident's letter of complaint concerning the professional conduct of a Quincy Police officer has been sent to Internal Affairs for investigation, confirms Police Chief Thomas Frane.

The letter, written by Julia Tupe of West St. to Mayor James Sheets, alleges that an officer acted discourteously and unprofessionally when responding to a call involving an elderly Vietnamese man who had become disoriented near his home.

Copies of the letter were sent to Chief Frane, Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, The Patriot Ledger, and The Quincy Sun.

Frane said he could not comment on the matter while it was under investigation, but Mayor Sheets said that his office had responded to Tupe in a letter dated Sept. 18.

Essentially, Sheets said, he told Tupe that he had requested an inquiry into the matter from Chief Frane and wanted a full report relative to the findings.

"We're not going to pass judgment until we get the facts," said Sheets. "The majority of letters I receive about the Quincy Police

Republicans, Where Are You?

Looking at Tuesday's primary ballot lineups you can't help asking:

Republicans, where are you?

Locally, they conceded seven seats to Democratic incumbents without a single challenge.

It guaranteed re-election and another term for:

State Sen. Michael Morrissey, state Reps. Bruce

Ayers, Steve Tobin and Ron Mariano, County Commissioners John Gillis and William O'Donnell

a n d Governor's Councillor Christopher Iannella, Jr. Morrissey, Ayers, Tobin, Mariano and Gillis are all from Quincy. No Quincy Republican in that picture.

Those seven offices were blank on the Republican ballot Tuesday. No Republican names beside them.

GILLIS

O'DONNELL

It means the seven Democratic incumbents were not only nominee winners Tuesday but will also be the winners in the final election Nov. 7. It would take a write-in or sticker candidate with a basket-full of miracles to change that.

It kind of makes you wonder if locally, Republicans have tossed in the towel and letting Democrats have their own way.

Some years ago, local Republicans vowed they would challenge any Democrat for any office.

But it hasn't been that way in recent years. And definitely not in this year.

And history has been pretty much the same in city elections in recent years.

Only two Republicans hold municipal elective offices in Quincy: City Councillor and former mayor Frank McCauley and School Committee member Christine Cedrone.

CEDRONE

But, of course, being a Republican in a Democratic

Southwest Center Seeks Volunteer With Computer Skills

The Southwest Community Center, 388 Granite St., West Quincy, is seeking a responsible volunteer with computer skills to assist with the center's daily confidential data-entry information. Hour are flexible.

Volunteers should set up an interview by calling 471-0796 and speaking to Nancy at extension 103 or Mary at extension 104.

stronghold such as Quincy, is no political cup of tea in partisan or non-partisan elections.

Look at the figures.

Going into Tuesday's primaries, Quincy had a total voter registration of 51,552.

Of which, 25,349 are Democrats, 18,325 unenrolled (independent) and--7,494 Republicans.

Democrats outnumber Republicans by 17,855, a blockbuster advantage on any election day.

But there might be a tiny light beginning to show for Republicans at the end of the dark tunnel.

For quite a few years, Democrats not only outnumbered Republicans in Quincy but Republicans and unenrolled combined.

But going into Tuesday's primaries there seemed to be a little Democratic slippage showing in the vote.

For the first time in many years the combination of unenrolled and Republicans, outnumbered Democrats. Not by much--470. But it could be the start of something new with the unenrolled ranks growing and Democrats dipping.

It would give the unenrolled voters more clout, some of which could rub off on Republicans if the latter would field local candidates who could woo some of that unenrolled vote.

Once upon a time, the political picture in Quincy and Norfolk County was just the opposite with both Republican strongholds.

Back in 1934, for example, there were 17,509 Republicans to 6,462 Democrats in Quincy. In 1940, it was 16,137 to 7,011. And in 1952, 17,611 to 8,065.

Democrats were catching up by 1959, coinciding with Senator John F. Kennedy's registration drives in his planned bid for the Presidency.

And, by 1961 there were more Democrats here than Republicans: 14,861 to 13,350.

But even back in the early 1950s when Republicans were still running the political show, there were Democrats willing to challenge them even though they had little chance of winning.

Republicans today seem more reluctant to step in against the virtual same numerical odds Democrats faced in the 1950s.

The only Quincy Republican on the ballot Tuesday was Daniel Dewey of Sonoma Rd., Squantum, running for Norfolk County Clerk of Courts. He will meet Democrat Walter Timilty, Jr., present assistant clerk, in November.

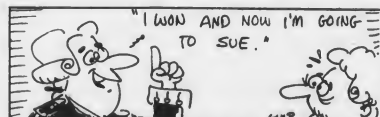

Maybe discretion is the better part of political valor when the odds are heavily weighed against you.

But if local Republicans aren't willing to get on the ballot and take a few lumps if need be, the two-party system will slide down the political chute.

The worst thing that could happen to a community, the state and country, is to have one party able to just toss their hats in the ring and walk off with the prizes each year.

We need a two-party system and it has to have healthy roots at the community level.

Quincy Republicans, what do you say?

Freedom of the press won its first victory in the American Colonies in 1735, when John Peter Zenger, editor of the New York Weekly Journal, was acquitted of criminal libel for attacking the British governor.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the marsh and cottages on what is now Post Island Road and Poplar Street. Post Island Road was originally the east end of Shelton Road extending out to Sea Street. Post Island is situated between Shell Beach and the Bit and some call it Hough's Neck, but it really is part of Adams Shore. All of the land from Mount Wollaston Cemetery in Merrymount to the Willows in Hough's Nick was the 600-acre farm of Colonel John Quincy in whose honor the city was named. The land eventually became the estate of Miss Fanny Adams, whose trustees in the early 1900's established the Adam's Shore Land Company to sell off the property as house lots. That is where the name comes from. This postcard view is from Sea Street looking north. Most of the cottages shown here still look the same but are now year round homes. The neighborhood association here claims that Post Island was first settled in 1896.

Quincy's Yesterdays

First Kindergarten Classes Open

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy's first kindergarten classes opened this week in all 17 of the city's elementary schools, on double sessions.

Superintendent Dr. Paul Gossard led ceremonies at the Coddington School to mark occasion. Participants included school committee members Dr. Joseph McDermott, Paul Duffey, Mrs. Alice Mitchell and former committee Rep. Carter Lee.

SQUANTUM CHURCH MARKS 40TH ANNIVERSARY

The First Church of Squantum marked its 40th anniversary this week, noting its humble beginnings in a tent in 1908, located at the corner of Huckins Ave. and Standish Rd., now site of the fire station. Its membership stood at 375 adults, with 300 children enrolled in its school.

The church was set up with the help of Rev. Thomas Davison of the Atlantic Memorial Congregational Church, who died this week at age 85 at his Huntly Rd. home.

Services were held at various locations in Squantum until the present church was built in 1914. Land for the church was secured by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson who also started the first church school.

HOUGHS NECK PHARMACIST HONORED

Otto Paige, Houghs Neck's pharmacist for 56 years, was honored this week with a surprise party hosted by his family and numerous Houghs Neck friends. The party was held at the Manet Lunch which was also the original site of the pharmacy in 1916.

Those making arrangements for the party were Mrs. Adele McInnis, Mrs. Edith Murphy, Mrs. Ellen O'Connor and Mrs. Lydia Bennett. Guests included Arnold Berenson of Boston who purchased the business.

QUINCY-ISMS

Unemployment was up in the city, with a 55 percent increase in general welfare claims. City Manager William Deegan said he would ask the city council to appropriate an additional $26,000 to cover the increased case in both general relief and disability assistance cases. Crude Billboards A Slap In The Face

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A racy billboard on Water St. met with neighborhood ire from some. AK Media will slap "censored" stickers over the image of a woman with much to bare. The billboard is for a new FOX-TV show called The Street.

City Councillor Michael D'Amico has received dozens of calls from irate constituents who think the billboard ad is far too risqué. Over 80 of these billboard ads have gone up in the state and AK Media has received calls from all over complaining about what some view as an inappropriate in-your-face, R-rated image pretty hard to avoid seeing.

The Street is obviously going to be a sexy series from the creator of HBO's Sex and the City. Splashing such a graphic picture onto neighborhood billboards angered many who were concerned about the children of the neighborhood and how it will affect them. Obviously, this new show will not be dealing with stocks and bonds.

A spokesperson for WFXT (Ch. 25), the Fox affiliate in Boston, said they had nothing to do with the ads. However, they will be running the show. Fox Entertainment, which is behind the ad campaign, is quite unapologetic, issuing a statement saying, "Our marketing materials for The Street are designed to reflect the sophisticated, sexy tone of the show. It is unfortunate if some people took offense to the image on the billboard, but we don't think our approach is inappropriate."

I have a feeling Fox Entertainment needed a dictionary to spell "inappropriate." You know, I never like protesting things like billboards because I think that's what the folks behind this TV show probably wanted. Never mind all those subliminal rats making the news lately. I think TV networks view us all as Pavlov's dogs waiting for the bells to ring. The more we protest, the more famous their TV show gets because of us.

If we say nothing, we get stupid billboards. If we protest, we give Fox Entertainment free publicity to push the show. Seems like a lose-lose situation, doesn't it?

Too bad AK Media didn't protest to Fox Entertainment rather than waiting for the wrath of neighborhoods statewide. Rather than reacting, they should have told Fox where to subliminally go, eh?

I'm not too sure that these billboard images haven't only become more racy with those CENSORED stickers thrown over them. Provocative ads are made to provoke and the Fox Entertainment Network stands on itschutzpah rather than get Street smart. Shame on them. Crude billboards are a slap in the face to parents trying to raise their kids in a society that far too often pushes sex everywhere we look.

It's a free country and all of us have our free speech guaranteed but it would have been nice if Fox showed a little empathy for us rather than just trying to make money on The Street.

Jill Fishman Intern At Museum Of Jewish Heritage

Jill Fishman, daughter of Stephen and Mary Lou Fishman of Quincy, has been chosen as a Lipper Intern at the Museum of Jewish Heritage — A Living Memorial to the Holocaust in New York City.

She is currently working toward her degree in psychology and her minor in Near Eastern and Judaic studies at Brandeis University.

Fishman spent nearly two weeks (Aug. 20-Aug. 31) with 17 other college and graduate students who were chosen to work closely with museum educators. During the program, the interns learned how to teach 20th century Jewish history and the Holocaust.

They will now be going back to their college communities to conduct education programs in area middle schools and high schools, bringing school groups to the museum and leading them in educational programs on-site.

How About Lunch?
Meet 'ya at H'n K

Where else but H'n K...the standard business lunch stop for years. And, why not — private 'meeting' booths, relaxed atmosphere, attentive service and a hearty lunch, all for a great price. Stop in for the mouth-watering Veggie Melt on old world flat bread, a Chicken 'n Bacon Melt, a thick and juicy All-American Burger or the fresh Lobster Roll, chock full of native lobster meat. Try a cup of savory Clam or Lobster Chowder or the Soup of the Day, an H'n K specialty — made from scratch each morning. The Soup 'n Sandwich is just right for the light eater, half of a sandwich with a cup of delicious soup. The choice is simple...meet 'ya at H'n K...but let me know which one!

Mayor Addresses Local Issues At Quincy Point Meeting

Mayor James Sheets addressed an audience of over 100 Quincy Point residents and business leaders at a Quincy Point Business and Professional Association meeting held recently at the GTN Center at St. Joseph's Church, Washington St.

The mayor offered an overview of developments at the Fore River Shipyard, construction work on the Fore River Bridge, and revitalization efforts for the Washington St. corridor.

"It was a good cross-section of business and Quincy Point residents," said the Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, who added that the mayor's remarks were well received by the audience.

"Overall, it was a good update."

Concerning the shipyard, which is in the midst of foreclosure proceedings after its owner defaulted on several multi-million dollar loans, the mayor said that efforts to revive the facility were always done in the right spirit and that, even if shipbuilding were to fail at the site, the area was much closer to revitalization than it had been previously.

Sheets also discussed the construction of the temporary Fore River Bridge, which the mayor said would be built to last up to ten years. Whether the existing bridge would be renovated or completely replaced, Sheets said, is still to be determined.

Sheets detailed for the Quincy Point crowd what steps were being taken to revitalize Washington St. from the rotary to Southern Artery using funds from federal block grants. The work, he said, would include such projects as placing utility poles underground, adding historic lighting and decorative flagpoles, and landscaping the street with flowers and plantings.

The next meeting of the association is scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 7.

Beechwood's Project SAFE For Seniors On Oct. 7

Beechwood Community Life Center's fourth annual Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) Senior Day will take place Saturday, Oct. 7.

The annual service day seeks to promote fire safety, especially for "at-risk" seniors, and is a city-wide effort to inspect and/or install smoke detectors for seniors as well as provide information about fire safety.

Beechwood is calling on all senior service providers, elected officials, clubs, community centers, churches, and seniors from across the city to identify names and addresses of seniors needing free smoke detectors and/or inspection of existing detectors. Those seniors include anyone who: has less than three smoke detectors; has detectors that need checking, repairing, or replacing; has any questions about smoke detectors; or is interested in receiving fire safety information. The Beechwood phone number is (617) 471-5712.

It is estimated that seniors comprise roughly 21 percent of Quincy's population, which equates to 17,500 residents. Of those, over 4,000 are "at-risk," defined as over 75 years of age and/or with impairments that might inhibit fast exit from a fire in the home.

The smoke detector project is an extension of Beechwood's city-wide Senior SAFE Program, designed "to assist seniors in remaining independent and in their own homes for as long as possible."

Dedication Ceremonies To Honor John Hutchinson Oct. 7

Former Great Hill School fifth grade teacher John "Hutch" Hutchinson will be honored Saturday, Oct. 7, at 1 p.m. at Brill Field in Houghs Neck.

A tree and a granite bench inscribed with his name will be dedicated to Hutchinson, who taught 19 years at the Great Hill School and was recently feted by friends and former students with an 80th birthday party on July 22.

Organizers will also present a newly funded scholarship in Hutchinson's name to the Houghs Neck Community Council.

All are welcome. For more information or to donate to the scholarship fund, contact Joe Brill at (617) 770-4813.

Quincy Sun To Be Honored For Community Commitment

The Quincy Sun will be honored Sunday for its commitment to family values and community service by the Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services of Quincy.

The Sun will receive the special recognition at an 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. brunch in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St.

The Maria Droste Services, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy Center, unanimously selected The Quincy Sun Family — publisher Henry Bosworth, editor Robert Bosworth and staff, as the second annual recipients. The Bosworth family is also being recognized.

Mayor and Mrs. James Sheets and family were honored last year as the first recipients.

Sister Joanne Westwater, founder and director of Maria Droste Services, said The Sun for over 30 years has kept Quincy well informed, "performing with a strong sense of community service and dedication."

The Sun, she added, has also been a strong supporter of the agency's mission to help those in need.

The focus of the Maria Droste Agency is geared toward restoring dignity to persons who would otherwise not be able to afford the special type of family counseling the agency offers.

Advance tickets for the brunch are required and cost $30 per person. Tickets or more information may be obtained by calling Sister Lorraine Bernier at (617) 471-5686.

All proceeds will go to the Maria Droste Services to help those in need of counseling.

The award committee is chaired by former City Council President Peter Kolson and his wife, Judy, and includes:

Maria Droste Advisory Board members Karen Donnellan, Ellen Hafer, Ann Howley, Maralin Manning, Gloria Noble and Richard Welch.

A supplemental committee is assisting.

'Living To 100' Author Tells Seniors: Challenge Yourself To Live Longer And Healthier Lives

By LANCE MORGANELLI

Senior citizens are urged to continually challenge themselves mentally as well as physically to live longer — and healthier.

That was the message given by Dr. Margery Silver about Living to be 100 at the fifth annual City of Quincy Senior Conference, Saturday at Broad Meadows Middle School. Several workshops followed the speech, attended by more than 200 Quincy senior citizens.

Silver, co-author of Living to be 100: Lessons in Living to Your Maximum Potential at Any Age, has been part of the New England Centenarian Study. It focused on 100-year-olds' cognitive ability and a full range of functioning, including memory, attention and reasoning.

The study found, Silver said, that one-fourth to one-third of the centenarians tested have very good thinking abilities and active minds, which is contrary to popular belief.

Studying the centenarians' personality revealed that their sociability and openness to new ideas was generally normal compared with the general population. Silver, to her surprise, found that the centenarians were not lonely but had "wonderful social support" from family or a created family of friends.

Also, the centenarians proved much better at managing stress and emotions than most people. Silver said they view difficult times by dealing with it then moving on. In particular, they handle loss of friends and family well as they have seen many pass on. It is not a denial of the loss but again to grieve then move on.

Silver said the centenarians do not smoke or excessively drink. All have been physically active throughout their lives.

Centenarians, Silver said, are very adaptable people. "When change comes along...they wouldn't allow themselves to get down about it, but they saw them as challenges and problems," Silver said.

She said they have a wonderful sense of adaptable humor, citing one centenarian who said, "I can't really remember my grandsons names anymore so I gave them numbers."

Though people need certain types of genes to live to 100, Silver said, most people can live far into their 80s if they live healthy their entire lives. "But just as important as physical exercise, is to exercise your brain," Silver said.

"Every time we learn something new," Silver said, "we create new connections between the neurons in our brain and information can get through the brain more effectively."

"To live to the end of your life in good health, rather than how long you live is really, I think, the important thing," Silver said. "The message is not how to stay young. The message is to age well."

taught seniors the basics about the Internet and which systems are for the best one's needs.

Jane O'Brien, 74, from North Quincy, said she has a computer and wants to learn how to use the Internet.

Intergenerational Workshop, conducted by Sandra Pimental, director of Community Outreach Programs at Dist. Atty. Keating's office, brought seniors and six students of the North Quincy High School Students Alliance Against Racism and Violence together in discussion of the similarities between life as a senior and as a teenager.

"You [teenagers] can help us keep active and alive," Nancy MacDonald of Quincy said. "I think you're unusually brilliant."

Quincy Home Educators Potluck Dinner Sept. 30

The Quincy Home Educators will host its first quarterly potluck dinner for all new and current home schoolers who live in Quincy on Saturday, Sept. 30, from noon to 3 p.m.

home schoolers of Quincy are encouraged to come to meet one another and to swap teaching ideas.

Each family is asked to bring a main dish, a side dish and any home schooling materials they wish to swap or share. Drinks, plates, silverware, napkins and cups will be provided.

To respond and for directions, contact Denise Trias at (617) 472-3924.

Eventide Auxiliary To Meet Sept. 25

The Eventide Auxiliary Women's Club will meet Monday, Sept. 25 at 11:45 a.m. with President Barbara Barnes president.

After the meeting, the Forbes Little Irish Dancers will perform for the patients. All members and families of patients are invited to attend.

Delahunt Service Academies Forum To Be Held Sept. 27

Congressman William Delahunt will sponsor an information forum in September on opportunities for higher education at United States Service Academies.

The two-hour forum is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27 at Marshfield High School. The objective is to detail for interested local high school students and their families the prospects for high-quality, tuition-free Academy education and related scholarship opportunities.

The session will feature admissions officials from the US Military Academy (West Point, N.Y.), Naval Academy (Annapolis, Md.), and Air Force Academy (Colorado Springs, Colo.)

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

— as well as the Coast Guard Academy (New London, Conn.), Merchant Marine Academy (Kings Point, N.Y.) and Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay.

Also participating will be representatives of the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) scholarship program. In addition, a Delahunt staffer will outline procedures for pursuing a congressional nomination to the Academies.

A similar Delahunt-hosted forum last year drew hundreds of local students and families. Since then, the costs of college education have continued to rise.

In announcing the forum, Delahunt also reiterated that the application deadline for potential nominees for the academic year 2001-2002 is Nov. 1, 2000.

For details on the Sept. 27 forum, or about the overall process, call Delahunt's office, toll-free, at 1-800-794-9911.

Department are high praise, but it is important that this matter be addressed and I will be in contact with her (Tupe) after I receive the report."

According to Tupe's Sept. 9 letter, police and an Asian liaison were called to West St. one evening when Tupe and others noticed an apparently disoriented Asian gentleman sitting on Tupe's driveway wall.

The man's granddaughter soon appeared to resolve the situation at which point, Tupe says, an unnamed Quincy Police Officer appeared, shouting at both the man and the girl and, without explanation, ordering the man into a police cruiser to return him to his home.

The letter states: "There was no smile, no shred of compassion, certainly no kindness shown by this officer ... I was absolutely taken aback by his demeaning, unprofessional behavior ... I resent the way in this matter was handled; I am angry that the children had to witness this and I am saddened by the old grandpa that he was treated in this manner by a police officer ... I believe that officer owes all of us present -- especially the elderly man and his granddaughter, his superiors, the chief of Police, and you, Mr. Mayor, an apology."

Lansdowne Street Bomb Source Still A Mystery

Quincy Police and Edward Petersen of Squantum still have no idea the source of a bomb discovered Sunday by Petersen in his garage at 16 Lansdowne Street.

The explosive device was taken to Boston and detonated at a facility in that city. Lansdowne Street was closed to traffic for three hours.

Petersen, who was cleaning his garage at the time, said the gray object he found was about two feet long. He said he was going to throw it away but police identified it as a bomb.

The device bore the numbers 1955 on the side and appeared to be Naval ordnance. The old Squantum Naval Air Station, which closed in the early 1950s, is less than a mile away.

Petersen said he has owned the home for 25 years and the previous owner, his father-in-law, doesn't know where it came from either.

Tips On Maintaining A Home Heating System

In this time of higher fuel costs, making sure home heating systems are in top working order can mean real savings on heating bills, as well as increased comfort. These systems have several key components--boiler, radiators, pumps and valves--that need regular attention and service to operate at peak efficiency.

Here are some tips on keeping home heating systems at peak efficiency from Grundfos Pumps Corporation, a global manufacturer of pumps for residential and commercial heating systems:

- Schedule an annual checkup each fall by a heating contractor who can identify potentially serious problems and solve such "annoyance" problems such as excessive noise and uneven heat. The inspection should include oil burners, motors and the chimney.

- The contractor will perform an oil service and combustion efficiency test. A good motor will burn 80 percent of its fuel as energy. Old burners can run as low as 60 percent--which could dramatically increase heating bills.

- Unburned oil that is carried into the chimney as smoke can buildup, ultimately creating a fire hazard, so the chimney should be cleaned annually.

- A separate inspection by a plumber can root out further problems in water-based heating systems.

- Some circulator pumps (in use in many older homes), which move hot water from the boiler through the radiators, convectors or emitters, need to be oiled annually to keep breaking down.

- As circulator pumps age, they are at an increasing risk to leak, which can create a fire hazard and damage carpets or furniture near the boiler. New maintenance-free circulator pumps cost less than $500, and often improve performance as well as reducing ongoing maintenance costs.

- When air gets trapped inside a radiator system, it can cause hissing or knocking, building pressure inside the pipes that interferes with even heating. To prevent damage to the heating system, homeowners must "bleed" air several times a season. Alternatively, there are now automatic venting systems that can be installed, increasing the efficiency of the entire system.

- Pumps designed with "wet rotor" technology produce less vibrations and noise than older designs.

- Zone heating, in which homeowners can choose which parts of the house to heat, is an increasingly popular option. Zone heating systems that use pumps are more efficient than those that use valves.

• Heating systems with incorrectly sized pumps cause uneven heating. A plumbing contractor can judge what size pumps a system needs.

This professional can also measure water flow through the heating system to tell if it's leaking, or if a pump is malfunctioning and not providing enough circulation.

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop Oct. 7

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA certified First Time Homebuyer's Workshop in collaboration with the Massachusetts Cooperative Bank on Saturday, Oct. 7.

The workshop will be held at Roche Brothers Supermarket, second floor community room, 101 Falls Blvd., Quincy from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

Attendance at the one-day workshop is mandatory to receive a homebuying certificate which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, down payment and closing costs grants, and other special first time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing

Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time homebuyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available through the entire South Shore area.

Agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for individual needs.

Advance registration is required and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

For more information and to register for the workshop, contact Debbie Kidd at (617) 770-2387.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Fitness Facts: Staying Motivated For The Long Run

Starting a regular workout schedule has its perks including stronger muscles, higher energy levels and overall better health.

According to the For The Long Run survey, one of the keys to a successful exercise program is motivation. Consider the following tips to help you stay motivated and get focused on reaching your fitness goals.

Plan Ahead -- Determine what you want to accomplish. If there are specific muscle groups that you want to target or a particular sport you'd like to condition for, identify your goals up front. It's easier to get there if you know where you're going.

Be Realistic -- Avoid frustration by starting with small goals that lead to larger ones. Don't try to do too much too soon. Keep note of your progress and reward yourself for reaching milestones.

Make a Date -- Whether you decide to go to the gym or stay in the comfort of your home, designate a specific place and time of day to work out. Write it down in your date book the same way you would a doctor's appointment.

Buddy Up -- On days when you're feeling low, a workout partner can motivate you tremendously. Find a friend, a co-worker or neighbor who shares your level of commitment to exercise. Promise to keep each other on schedule.

Add Variety -- Spice up your regimen with new, challenging activities. If you've never tried spinning, yoga, or a hip-hop aerobics class, now is the perfect time to be adventurous.

Pack a Bag -- Be sure to wear the right gear and set aside your workout clothes the night before. Keep a gym bag in your car or at work, it will make it easier to stick to your workout schedule.

Educate Yourself -- Read, listen and ask questions about exercises that work most effectively. This will decrease your chances of being injured, and help you tailor your workout to fit what works best for you.

Have Fun -- Be sure that your routine does not become a chore. If you enjoy yourself, you're more likely to stay on course.

Before you put on your workout gear, remember that the best exercise program is one that is an extension of the way you live. By understanding how to stick with your plan, you can improve your self-confidence and get in shape. Using these simple tips from Russell Athletic can help you stay motivated and make the occasional trip for ice cream much sweeter.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

"Do I need two hearing aids?"

"Need" is the tricky word here. We can all manage with some degree of difficulty with one ear, one eye, etc.

We should be asking "what is my potential and how can I achieve it." Your choice has a tremendous impact on your quality of life. Recent studies have been published by several researchers examining the phenomenon of "auditory deprivation" and "acclimatization". The first, deprivation is the brain's inability to process sounds and speech, because of a lack of input over several years time. For instance the person that waits 10 years to get a hearing aid, expects instant correction and puts it in the drawer after two days of trying it. The brain needs time to recover this function! "Acclimatization" refers to the brain's ability to recover or improve the ability to process sounds, once proper amplification has been introduced. It takes time and practice to reap the benefits of hearing aids. Yes, both ears should be fitted if possible and if medically approved.

Now you go and spread the news! Steve Stephen Tobias Hearing Center

Home Opener Friday At 4PM Special Teams Spoil Strong Quincy Effort

By CHRIS POISSON

Somehow, Randolph finds away to beat the Quincy High School football team. Or, somehow, Quincy finds a way to lose to Randolph.

Take your pick. Whatever way you look at it, the "W" goes to the Blue Devils and the "L" to the Presidents.

In the season opener Friday night, Quincy, anchored by a powerful running game and a stifling defense, dominated host Randolph, but came out on the short-end, 19-14, as special teams yielded two kickoff returns for touchdowns.

Last season, if you recall, Randolph rallied from 21-6 deficit in the fourth quarter to steal a win with a last-second field goal.

"It's a disheartening loss for us," said head coach Bob Bobie. "Although we lost, we played extremely well. But the bottom line is Randolph won. So they're the better team. But in terms of the statistical aspect, we clearly dominated them. Unfortunately, it didn't come out that way."

Quincy (0-1) held Randolph (1-0) to only four first downs and under 100 yards in total offense, while it managed 250 yards and 14 first downs. Of the 250 yards, 188 came on the ground.

In his first varsity start, senior tri-captain Paul Desmond finished with a 127 yards on 16 carries, while junior Chris Sullivan had 42 yards on 10 carries.

"Paul is a great example of what hard work and dedication in the offseason can do for you," Noblesaid. "And that showed when his teammates elected him as a captain. Paul is the one kid we do have that's fast. He's our speed guy. He can run."

"Offensively we played well and defensively we played extremely well," he added. "The killer was special teams. We allowed 234 yards on three kickoffs and a punt return for 41 yards. Other than that, they didn't do anything."

Quincy will try to regroup tomorrow (Friday) afternoon when it battles Catholic Memorial (0-1) in the home opener at 4 p.m. Catholic Memorial is coming off 21-0 loss to Winchester.

Senior Dan Trowers returned the opening kickoff 90 yards as Randolph grabbed a quick 7-0 lead. In the second quarter, Sullivan capped off a 75-yard drive with a 1-yard run. Junior Tom Shruhan's extra point tied it at 7-all and it remained that way at halftime.

On its second possession in the third quarter, Randolph took over at midfield and put together its only drive of the game. Junior Micah Christian scored on a 19-yard run, but he missed the extra point and the Blue Devils held a 13-7 lead.

After each team exchanged possessions, Quincy orchestrated an impressive 16-play, 94-yard drive near the end of the third that spilled into the fourth. Junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano (9 of 17, 80 yards, 0 INTs) scored from two yards out on a QB sneak. Shruhan drilled the PAT for a 14-13 advantage.

On the ensuing kickoff, however, junior Robert Shumann knifed his way through the Presidents for an 85-yard touchdown to take a 19-14 lead (PAT failed) with about seven minutes left. Quincy couldn't put anything together on its final two drives.

QUARTERBACK MIKE LORENZANO (19) sees a hole in the middle of the Randolph defense early in the fourth quarter. Quincy scored on the drive to take a 14-13 lead.

TRI-CAPTAIN PAUL DESMOND (27) is pinned to the turf by the Blue Devils' defense in the first quarter of Friday night's 19-15 loss at Randolph. The senior tailback finished with 127 yards on 16 carries in his first varsity start.

"It's very frustrating," Noble said. "We pretty much controlled the game, except for two plays. We're obviously a competitive football team. We have to make the plays to win games — like tackling kids on kickoffs."

Youth Football Night At High School Doubleheader Friday

It will be Quincy Youth Football Night tomorrow (Friday) when both Quincy High School and North Quincy High School play its home openers in a doubleheader at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy will face Catholic Memorial at 4 p.m. and North Quincy will square off against Whitman-Hanson at 7 p.m. The league will be recognized before the start of the second game.

Admission is free for both games to any Quincy Youth Football player who wears his jersey.

Exercise Program At Lincoln Hancock School

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct two different exercise classes Monday and Wednesday evenings beginning Monday, Sept. 25 at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Gym, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Classes are offered at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m.

The 6:30 p.m. class, "Good Healthy Fun," is designed to strengthen heart and lungs, burn fat and firm muscles.

The 7:30 p.m. class, "The Bodies Sculpting/Muscle Conditioning," is a one-hour full body workout designed to target all major muscle groups. Beneficial for beginners, this class offers a safe, effective combination of a good warm-up, light stretching and resistance work for the upper and lower body.

Monday classes will be taught by Sandra Verhault and Wednesday classes by Karen Gaughan.

Registration for the program features two separate options for payment: a $35 one-time fee for all classes (Sept. 25 to Dec. 20) or a $3 fee for each individual class, payable at the time of the class.

p.m. class may also participate in the adult swim, which starts at 7:55 p.m. in the pool.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Red Raiders Open Friday At 7 PM North Quincy Shows Grit Against Stoughton

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School football team, thankfully, will never have to see Ryan LaCasse again.

The senior tailback torched the Red Raiders again Saturday night when he ran for 137 yards on 12 carries, including a 62-yard touchdown run on the first play from scrimmage, as host Stoughton cruised to a 33-6 non-league win in the season opener.

Last season, LaCasse amassed 192 yards on 17 carries in a 27-0 Black Knights' win.

"Right off the bat we were put in a hole and that set the tone for the rest of the game," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "Defensively, we did a decent job. The score was not indicative of how we played."

"The kids hung in there," he added. "I give them credit. They could've packed it in. They played to the end. There was a positive attitude coming out of the game."

North Quincy will try to bounce back tomorrow (Friday) night when it faces another non-league powerhouse, Whitman-Hanson, at 7 p.m. in the home opener.

"They're tough opponents," said Chrisom of Stoughton and Whitman-Hanson. "But you have to still play the games. You want to play the best. We have to refocus and put our attention on Whitman-Hanson. They're a quick, strong and experienced team. We have to bring our 'A' game for them. They're just going to bring it to us."

Stoughton grabbed a 14-0 lead in the first quarter on Shawn Ireland's 1-yard run and extended it to 20-0 at halftime when quarterback Jim Pascarelli found Mike Horan for a 72-yard touchdown on a screen pass.

In the third quarter, Pascarelli took over the game as he scored two touchdowns, a 22-yard scamper and a 60-yard interception return.

North Quincy avoided the shutout when senior quarterback Max Repoff, who was under constant pressure all game, hit junior Dennis Thompson for a 30-yard TD strike in the fourth quarter. The two-point conversion failed.

Although the defense gave up two big scoring plays, Chrisom said it tried to do a few things and it had some success as the team came up with three interceptions. Quad-captain Vincent Traietti picked off two from his linebacker position and senior Ricky Crane came up with one.

North Quincy Boys Bow To Barnstable

Cross - Country

The North Quincy boys' cross country team fell to Barnstable, 25-32, in the season opener last week on the Cape.

Despite the loss, the squad, led by seven seniors, will try to establish itself as the team to beat in the Old Colony League this season as most teams are going through rebuilding years.

Senior co-captains Jeff Bartoloni (first place at Barnstable) and Brian Breslin (third), OCL all-stars, anchor the team. Bartoloni was selected to the Boston Globe All-Scholastic team last fall after placing 15th at All-States. Other seniors are Steve Barkowski (seventh), Paul Griffith, Frank Alibrandi, Chris Johnson and Sean-William Goodale.

"Our top two guys can go nose-to-nose with anybody, but the difference is our 4-5-6 men are better," said head coach Geoff Hennessy, who is in his 13th season. "Folks see the potential and everyone seems to be more serious about what we can do."

The girls' team lost to 1999 OCL champs Barnstable, 16-45, and is in an obvious rebuilding year. Gone are Lynda Wilson, Sarah Houghton, Genevieve O'Brien and Christine Marre, who led North Quincy to two All-State berths, a runner-up Class A crown and an undefeated OCL crown in 1998.

The task of leading this squad falls on the shoulders of seniors Linda Nguyen (tri-captain), Ellen Blaney and Kellyrose O'Brien (tri-captain). Sarah Wilson, a senior, is out for her first season.

The rest of the team includes juniors Natalie Caron (tri-captain) and Meghan Haines; sophomores Lauren Ready and newcomer Lisa Rubino; and freshmen Kara Culgin, Beth Goodrich, Elizabeth Gribaud, Danielle LaRose, Lily Luo, Bridget Lydon, Brenna O'Brien, Megan Sidorowicz, Madeline Tarabelli and Emily Walsh.

"We have lots of new faces and all are improving in leaps and bounds," Hennessy said. "Brenna O'Brien was an all-everything with Quincy Track Club and middle school teams. Lisa Rubino has been a pleasant surprise and Beth Goodrich leads a mostly rookie freshman group that has lots of athleticism, and, more importantly, a solid work ethic."

"We'll take our lumps, but it's still going to be a fun season."

Linda Kennedy Assistant Coach

Linda Kennedy is the new assistant coach for the North Quincy High School cross country teams.

Kennedy, a volunteer for head coach Geoff Hennessy last year, replaces two-year assistant coach Jeremy Gott, who was unable to coach due to a job conflict. She comes with a list of outstanding credentials.

A 1983 graduate of North Quincy, she was a member of four Class B championship teams under head coach Lou Tozzi and one All-State title, the only one in team history. She was also a member of the 4-mile relay team that set a national record, which still stands today, in 1982.

Kennedy is a supervisor with the U.S. Postal Service.

The Quincy High School girls' volleyball team won its season opener against Durfee, 15-7, 15-11, last Monday, but has dropped its last two games.

Quincy lost at Silver Lake in a tough three-game set, 11-15, 15-3, 11-15, and then fell to Old Colony League rival Falmouth, 9-15, 10-15, Friday.

The Presidents (1-2) opened a five-game home stand against Whitman-

Volleyball

Hanson Monday. They played Taunton yesterday (Wednesday) and will take on Barnstable tomorrow (Friday) at 4 p.m.

Squantum Storm Defeats Elks

The Squantum Storm varsity team snapped a two-year winless streak when it defeated the West Quincy Elks, 6-0, in recent Quincy Youth Football action.

Paul Graham scored on a 6-yard sweep with less than four minutes to play to give the Storm the victory. Ryan Barter threw a nice block helped by Mike Gibson and Kevin Barry. The Storm then held off a furious Elks' rally to secure the win.

Quarterback David Jaehnig connected on several important third down passes and ran for another first down. Tim Kennedy was a force on both sides of the ball as he led the team with many punishing inside runs.

Rick Schifone picked up a first down on a reverse when he avoided three would-be tacklers. Mike Faherty and Nissan Wong each recorded big sacks to stall potential scoring drives for the Elks.

For the second week in a row, Vinny Pastore recovered a fumble on the second-half kickoff. Johnny Black had two booming kickoffs, Rob Gardner and rookie Kevin Bossart were solid in the secondary and Chris Borgendale and Ross Pasquantonio played well on the line.

Jose Ortiz, Dan Reggionini, David Djfer and Drew Loud were the standouts for the Elks.

The Elks junior varsity team got some revenge by whipping the Storm, 36-18. Anthony Boyle, Ryan Donovan and Nick Malame scored for the Elks.

Michael Garland had two touchdown runs and Kevin Bossart found the end zone on a beautiful counter play. Offensive linemen Nick Brown, Nash Winters and Roger Cufau opened up a huge hole on Bossart's scoring run.

Anthony Black was solid at quarterback and Steve Spring ran and blocked hard all day.

The Storm freshman squad notched a 24-18 win in a hard fought contest. Chris Rooney scored on two bruising touchdown runs, Dan McDougal scored on a 10-yard sweep and defensive standout Jay Lewis returned an interception for a score.

Matt Jaehnig was solid at both fullback and defensive end (2 sacks). Rookies Matt Sheridan (huge sack), Joe Theodore (several hard tackles) and Ryan Mirabato (strong line play) were outstanding.

Center R.J. Borden and flanker James Sullivan continued their strong play while Andrew Jaehnig made his football debut at wide receiver. Andrew Black and Zack Deegan played well at safety.

Adam and Alex Tragellis along with Joe Reggionini and Nick Mason played well for the Elks.

North Quincy Win Over Lakers Makes History

The North Quincy girls' soccer team made school history when it recently defeated Old Colony League favorite Silver Lake, 3-1, in the league opener for both teams.

The Red Raiders had never beaten the Lakers in girls' soccer.

At the 20 minute mark of the second half, Silver Lake's Jana Whiting beat two defenders and found Janine Burns in front to cut the deficit in half. North Quincy keeper Kathryn MacRitchie followed with several brilliant saves to preserve the lead.

With 10 minutes left in the game, Rachel Enos hit a corner kick, which senior captain Kellee Conley headed into the near corner for her 14th career goal.

The Red Raiders' defense

was immense all game with inside midfielder Casey Ridge shutting down Whiting while junior sweeper Kelly Rice played her best game. Also playing well were juniors Allie Lacey, Kelly Coleman and senior captain Jen Conley.

North Quincy traveled to Randolph Monday and picked up a hard fought 3-0 win over the Blue Devils. Christina Conley opened the scoring, depositing an Allie Lacey pass into the net.

Junior Caitlin Herlihy made it 2-0 when she scored her first career goal as she was set up by Jen Djfer. Djfer netted her first goal of the season off a pass from Christina Conley. Playing well for the Red Raiders were Colleen Lahar, Jessica Jacques, Stacy Szeszul and Ridge.

On Saturday, North Quincy notched a 5-1 win at Martha's Vineyard. The Red Raiders struck early when Christina Conley notched her first varsity goal, hitting a low, hard shot past the Vineyard keeper at the eight minute mark.

Jen Conley matched her sister and scored her first goal of the season, drilling a shot from 30 yards out for a 2-0 lead. However, the hosts slowly took control of the game, outplaying North Quincy the final 25 minutes of the half and closing to 2-1 on a misplayed ball in the area.

North Quincy responded with a much more aggressive attack in the second half to regain the momentum. Kellee Conley redirected a corner kick for a 3-1 lead. Sophomore midfielder Katy Mercurio made it 4-1, knocking a 20-yard shot off a pass from Kellee Conley. Lahar closed out the scoring, drilling a rebound into the back of the net after the Vineyard keeper saved Djfer's penalty kick.

North Quincy continues to play most of its early season on the road. It traveled to Falmouth Tuesday and today (Thursday) it takes on Bridgewater-Raynham.

Manets Blank Panthers

The Houghts Neck Manets defeated the Quincy Point Panthers, 18-0, at Veterans Memorial Stadium Sunday.

The Manets (2-0) struck first when quarterback Terence O'Connell hit Jimmy Hazelhurst for a 25-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter.

The game remained a defensive battle until early in the fourth quarter when running back Dean Sandomato rumbled 75 yards for a touchdown. Sandomato added a 30-yard TD run to seal the win.

The Manets offensive line of Sandro Junkovich, Bobby Martin, Jesse Depino, Chris Bishop, Jimmy Blieler and Danny Areddando controlled the line of scrimmage, which gave room for running backs Sandomato, Joe Keefe and Shayne Murray.

The defense, led by hard-hitting Murray, was effective in keeping the Panthers potent offense attack in check. Keefe, Robbie Getchell, Wemerson Naquersa and James Thomas all had big defensive games. Frank Feeley also did a nice job chipping in on and off the field.

For the Panthers, Josh Webb, Alex Scott, Tim Randall, Greg Kodgis and Steve Priscella had solid efforts. Jackie Dunlea, Casey Taraushka, Kevin Larkin, John Folino and Brendan Oliverio also stood out for the Panthers on defense.

T.J. Pitts replaced Priscella at quarterback and did a good job in leading the offense. Parker Scott, Joe Ferrara, Ryan McCarthy, Andrew Masse, Carl Leak and Steve Beliveau played well offensively. Spencer Peterson made a solid over the shoulder catch for a big gain.

GETTING IN TUNE

There was once a time when the typical car went in for a tune-up every 10,000 miles. This involved replacing the spark plugs, distributor points and rotor, adjusting engine timing and the carburetor, and replacing filters. Today, some spark plugs are designed to last 100,000 miles and fuel-injection computers have replaced mechanical carburetors. The hand-held engine timing light has been replaced by a sophisticated diagnostic computer. Where once a rough-running engine could be traced to bad plugs or points, the modern car can have many potential culprits. In addition, because electronic engine controls can compensate for problems, a vehicle can be running fine and still need repairs. When the check engine light comes on, have your vehicle checked.

Keeping your car in top condition, whether it is owned, leased, new or pre-owned will greatly extend its life. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, for most of your car's repairs, we have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Get acquainted with us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Open: Mon-Fri 8am-6pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm.

HINT: Read your owner's manual and familiarize yourself with the service requirements of your new vehicle.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We all know that it is seldom easy to thoroughly understand another person. In fact, the actions, thoughts and emotions of others often leave us baffled. We find this to be especially true when they are so contrary to "our way of thinking and doing."

It is a sad fact that many people sometimes go through life misunderstanding associates, friends and family. Much misunderstanding is due to the fact that a few drops of kindly understanding are not allowed to fall into cups that would be brimming with happiness if a little understanding were present. A little understanding can go a long way toward solving most serious situations.

Practically everyone has some right and virtue in his point of view. Resentment flares up if we refuse to accord this right and probability.

Couldn't it be said that attempting to understand, tempered with a great deal of patience and tolerance, can at least prevent the differences in viewpoint from being needlessly distorted and exaggerated?

At least it is a start... A worthwhile endeavor...

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be pushing too hard to find a solution to a current dilemma. Take a step back to get a larger perspective on the problem. A friend offers good advice.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That lost-in-a-fog feeling will soon lift as more facts emerge to point the way to a fuller understanding of what's been happening. Use your new information wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Be alert to a strong presence of deceit around you. Someone might offer half-truths and/or full-fledged lies meant to get you involved in a workplace plot. Stay away.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This is a good time to take stock of some of your many activities. You might be frittering away too much time that you could be refocusing in a more positive way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might feel a little anxious about making an important career decision. But take heart. Like the fine feline you are, when you jump, you inevitably land on your feet.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your overall financial picture looks bright. There could be some unsettling news about one investment, but that situation is temporary and will soon resolve itself.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You will soon begin to see the positive fallout from a difficult decision that you made earlier this month. Some lapses might occur, but the overall effect is encouraging.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your inclination to be your own toughest critic can be a bit excessive at this time. Ease up and enjoy what you have done, and stop obsessing about what is still undone.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Personal relationships grow stronger for both single and attached Archers. This is also a good time to move into a new home or to redecorate your present abode.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might experience some doubts about a new commitment, but consider how you would feel if you backed out altogether. Exercise more self-confidence.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone might try to sweet-talk you into agreeing to a personal or professional commitment. But before you make a move, look for the facts behind the flattery.

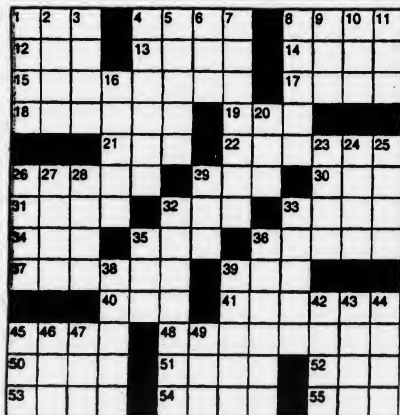

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You continue to enjoy a time of positive change and creativity. What you do now will have a far-reaching effect on upcoming personal and/or professional experiences.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have a personal magnetism that draws people to you. Your gift for seeing all sides of an issue makes you an excellent problem solver.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

WORK Inc., Microsoft Team To Help Those With Disabilities

WORK Inc., a non-profit providing job training services and employment opportunities for people with disabilities, and Microsoft Corporation, has unveiled a 12-node computer lab that will allow individuals with mental illness the opportunity to develop computer skills for competitive placement in the work force.

The computers were purchased and the lab was updated through a $15,000 Connected Learning Community Grant from Microsoft.

The Microsoft Connected Learning Community (CLC) program will allow the doors to open for individuals with mental illness who otherwise might not have had a chance to work. Seventy-five percent of individuals with mental illness are unemployed and 65 percent would like to be employed in the mainstream work force.

Through its CLC grants, Microsoft seeks to enhance learning and communication in disadvantaged communities by expanding access to information technology. Cash and software donations are awarded twice each fiscal year, and Microsoft employees volunteer their time through the year to projects supported by CLC funding.

"This grant will help us to fulfill our mission of helping people with disabilities live more independent, satisfying and productive lives by training them for and placing them in competitive jobs," said Hank Cheney, president of WORK Inc.

"Microsoft is committed to providing employment access and opportunities to Massachusetts residents with disabilities through job training," said Anthony Salcito, marketing and business development manager, Microsoft New England. "We believe that if you provide people with the resources they need, they can accomplish great things."

Nationally recognized as a pioneer in developing community-based programs for individuals with disabilities, WORK Inc. is one of Massachusetts' oldest and most successful non-profit providers, serving over 1,000 people with disabilities, including individuals with mental retardation, chronic mental illness and those with multiple disabilities.

The WORK Source computer lab provides education, employment services and support for people with chronic mental illness. The professional staff assist their clients in developing career goals and provide long-term support to help ensure optimal levels of success.

Arbor Day Foundation Distributing Free Trees

Ten free trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation this month.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The ten trees are the American Redbud, White Pine, Sugar Maple, White Flowering Dogwood, Pin Oak, Red Maple, Birch, Silver Maple, Red Oak, and Colorado Blue Spruce.

"These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds," John Rosenow, the Foundation's president said.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between Oct. 15 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The 6 to 12 inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

Members also receive a subscription to the Foundation's colorful bi-monthly publication, Arbor Day, and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to TEN TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Sept. 30.

Gun Carrying Issue Disbands Auxilliary Police

Frane said the conflict began several months ago when Lt. John Dougan replaced Lt. Vincent Flaherty as the new training director/liaison for the Quincy Auxiliary Police Department and, as part of a routine audit process, Frane said, the chief discovered "a training discrepancy" relative to firearms certification and ordered the division to stop carrying "firearms, batons (ASPs), and pepper spray."

When he received an Aug. 31 letter from the auxiliary refusing to carry out their regular duties unarmed, the chief said he viewed it as "a group resignation" since it was in direct opposition to his order. In a letter of response written to Quincy Auxiliary Police Chief Anthony Siciliano Sept. 6, Frane stated: "I am in receipt of your recent letter which I consider to be the resignation of the Quincy Auxiliary Police Officers. I accept this resignation with regret, but I refuse to be pressured into allowing unlawful practices to continue."

According to Frane, auxiliary police forces were created by the Civil Defense Act of 1950 which specifically states that the force can only be deployed at the written request of the police chief and only in the event of natural disaster or for training purposes.

For those duties, Frane said, weapons are not necessary, adding that he was also against the idea personally for reasons of legal liability.

Mayor James Sheets said that, to him, liability was the key issue. "Chief Frane was in the process of working to upgrade the auxiliary when he found out that they needed to be certified," Sheets explained. "That creates a liability for every person who carries a weapon, for the chief when he learned of it, for me when I learned of it, and especially for the city if, God forbid, there were an incident and it went to court and they weren't certified. The taxpayers would be liable."

However, the mayor said he was hopeful the situation would be worked out and that the officers might regain their weapons in the future. "There has to be a certification process but, beyond that, I don't have a problem with it," Sheets said.

Frane's decision left Siciliano, who also serves as president of the 45-community Massachusetts Auxiliary Police Association, with the attitude that the 26-member group has been marginalized and left little choice in the matter.

"He left them defenseless," Siciliano said of Frane's decision. "It's dangerous for those officers to be in police cruisers with police uniforms but have no protection. In good conscience, I couldn't do it (agree to the terms)."

Siciliano, a 32-year auxiliary member himself, said the organization has been around since the late 1930's and that he knew of no incident where an auxiliary officer had misused his weapon. Siciliano added that auxiliary forces in Randolph, Worcester, and Rockland carry firearms and that all Quincy members have undergone training at the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Academy.

In a letter dated Sept. 3, Quincy Auxiliary Senior Captain Dale Solander spoke of a longstanding tension between the regular and auxiliary departments and said that his years of training had taught him that "presenting an underprepared appearance at the very outset of any encounter is the quickest way to assure that that encounter will escalate." Solander resigned his duties three days later.

Siciliano emphasized that, with the exception of one year in the 1980's, auxiliary members had paid for training, books, uniforms, and vehicle repair out of their own pockets.

Siciliano agreed that the law, which he has been lobbying to change for over a decade, states that auxiliary police can only be used "in a situation that cannot be handled by the reserve or regular police force in the community" but pointed out that the auxiliary has long been involved in traffic and crowd control, flood and emergency management, and the patrolling of Squantum Gardens. "They've used the Auxiliary Police for everything," said Siciliano, who asked that Frane re-train and certify officers to his liking rather than take away their ability to carry firearms.

"He (Chief Frane) should ask the next shift (of regular police officers) if they would leave their firearms in their lockers the next time they go on duty," Siciliano said. "They wouldn't, because it's dangerous and unfair."

"I think it's sad that in this day and age, when there's such a need for more police officers, that they take away a resource. When you have a good resource, you hang on to it, not let it go."

and 955 Republican.

Democratic incumbents running unopposed and their Quincy vote:

Senator Edward Kennedy, 5,249 and 98.28 percent.

Congressman William

Delahunt, 5,342 and 99.07 percent.

Governor's Councillor Christopher Iannella, Jr., 4,450 and 99.13 percent.

State Senator Michael Morrissey, 5,279 and 99.29 percent.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers, 2,080 and 99.14 percent.

State Rep. Arthur Stephen Tobin, 2,273 and 98.96 percent.

State Rep. Ronald Mariano, 869 and 99.54 percent.

County Commissioner John Gillis of Quincy, 5,061 and 71.30 percent.

County Commissioner William O'Donnell of Norwood, 2,014 and 28.37 percent.

Also running unopposed for the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County Clerk of Courts was present assistant clerk Walter Timilty, Jr., who polled 4,662 votes for 99.17 percent in Quincy.

There were no contests on the Republican ballot.

Candidates running unopposed, the office they seek, and their Quincy vote:

Eric V. Bleicken, Congress, 646 and 95.70 percent.

Daniel M. Dewey of Quincy, Norfolk County Clerk of Courts, 723 and 96.66 percent.

Bruce Olsen of Stoughton, Norfolk County Register of Deeds, 597 for 81.11 percent.

There were no contests on the Republican ballot for Governor's councillor, state senator, state representative, or county commissioner.

It means Democrats Morrissey, Ayers, Mariano, Tobin, Gillis, O'Donnell, and Iannella will have no opposition in the Nov. 7 final election.

QMC, Fallon Reach Agreement Free 911 Ambulance Service To Continue

By CRAIG SALTERS

An agreement has been reached between Quincy Medical Center and Fallon Ambulance which will continue the city's free Emergency 911 ambulance service for at least four years.

Although details of the contract were not disclosed, the agreement apparently parallels a longstanding agreement granting exclusive rights to ambulance services, such as hospital to hospital transfers, for free emergency ambulance service for Quincy residents.

The original agreement was made when the hospital was still a public entity.

John Keenan, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, announced the new four-year contract at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. He also announced that the city was considering the long-term alternative of providing ambulance service itself, possibly through the Quincy Fire Department.

The agreement between the now private QMC and private Fallon Ambulance, Keenan said, was facilitated by meetings attended by himself, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, Police Chief Thomas Frane, and representatives from the hospital and ambulance company.

"We have solved the more-than-short-term needs by the signing of this four-year contract," Keenan said, "and are addressing the long-term needs through the RFP (Request for Proposals)."

The announcement came as the result of a discussion between Keenan and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, who introduced a resolve earlier this year, still in committee, asking the city to examine what changes the privatization of the hospital would have on city ambulance services and exploring the option of providing the service itself, as was done in the 1970's.

Raymond, who has followed the issue for two decades, said that the rationale for Quincy residents to receive free (billed through a third party) ambulance service was simple: Quincy residents hadn't paid for it directly when it was a public service in the 1970's and were not to be penalized by the privatization.

"The town to town transfers between hospitals are very lucrative," Raymond explained. "So the city had a carrot, an incentive for the ambulance service to make the agreement."

Now Raymond is concerned that, since the city no longer owns the hospital, it has little say in the contracts between two private companies and might lose its free ambulance services in the future.

"There's no guarantee anymore," said Raymond, who applauded the city's decision to explore providing the service itself as much needed leverage in future negotiations.

Raymond also warned that, with a concentration of ambulance services similar to that in the waste disposal industry, the city needed to act now to avoid a "take it or leave it" proposal by a company four, five, or ten years down the road.

Raymond first became aware of the issue, he said, when as a private attorney he noticed that some of his clients were being unfairly charged for ambulance services. Raymond's advocacy on the issue eventually led to a $500,000 settlement paid to the city by at-fault ambulance companies in the early 1990's.

465 Rooms At Crown Colony Marriott Hotel Set To Open In Spring

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Within a year, Quincy will have its very first hotel when the Marriott Hotel opens next spring at 1 Marriott Drive, Crown Colony.

The License Board issued the hotel an all-alcoholic Innholder License and a full entertainment license at Tuesday's meeting.

Chairman Joseph Shea explained that an Innholder's license means that you can "take a drink in your room."

Shea said the license given to the hotel was the one held by Kevin Cadigan, former owner of Kevin's On the Heritage in Quincy Center. Shea said since Cadigan left the premises, it brought his license back in the possession of the License Board.

Atty. Joseph McParland, representing the Marriott showed plans of several views of the hotel. McParland, in describing the lovely views from all parts of the hotel said one part of the building looks over the Boston Harbor, another at downtown Boston. Still another view is that of Cape Cod and then one at the Blue Hills.

In the rear of the hotel, is where the main function facility will be. He said a four story garage will be

Parking Tickets Going Up To $15

The City Council voted Monday night to increase parking fines in an attempt to stop MBTA commuters from parking all day in city neighborhoods.

Previously, the city had issued one $5 parking ticket for violators, an amount Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott called "a bargain" in relation to parking fines on the South Shore or parking fees at MBTA stations.

Now, McDermott said, parking tickets will be $15 and cars will be issued multiple tickets if they continue to illegally occupy the parking space.

McDermott called the harsher penalties "a necessary tool which will allow our traffic enforcement officials to double ticket and triple ticket those who feel they can park all day in residential communities."

Since March of 1998 a committee consisting of McDermott, Executive Secretary John Keenan, OPD Sgt. John Barnes, and Parking Clerk Alfred Grazioso has studied the feasibility of raising parking fines and also of issuing resident parking stickers, a move the committee deemed unnecessary.

The new parking fines, McDermott said, put the city more in-line with other communities of the South Shore.

FIREFIGHTERS SWORN IN: Mayor James Sheets and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman (seated) were on hand as the city welcomed 18 new firefighters to the Quincy Fire Department, 17 of whom were sworn in Thursday at ceremonies in City Council Chambers. From front row left are: Michael Marshall, Stephen Golden, John Banuk, Timothy Burchill, Thomas Bowes, Mark Smith, and Patrick Bryan. Standing from left are: Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, Stephen Kamb, City Clerk Joseph Shea, Daniel Duncan, Ward 4 Councillor Michael

D'Amico, Paul Moody, John Toner, Paul Jeffers, John Coughlin, Christopher Collins, Christopher Melchin, State Representative Bruce Ayers, Kevin Tape, Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, Councillor at large Timothy Cahill, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, Kenneth Kochera, and City Council President Paul Harold. 18 New Firefighters Bring QFD To Full-Strength

By CRAIG SALTERS
City Clerk Joseph Shea administered the oath of office to 17 of 18 new Quincy firefighters at swearing-in ceremonies held Thursday in City Council Chambers.

The 18 new firefighters (the last was sworn in at a later date) bring the Quincy Fire Department up to full-strength with one chief, five deputy chiefs, 14 captains, 42 lieutenants, and 156 firefighters for a total of 218 members.

Smith, Paul Rinella, Patrick Bryan, Christopher Melchin, Daniel Duncan, Thomas Bowes, Stephen Kamb, Paul Moody, and Christopher Collins, all of Quincy.

Before an audience filled with the firefighters' family and friends, Mayor James Sheets congratulated the group on their accomplishment and reminded listeners that, throughout his eleven-year tenure as mayor, he has yet to receive one complaint about Quincy firefighters in the performance of their duties. "You are the best fire department in the state," Sheets said.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman thanked Sheets for his commitment to that department, noting that Sheets made good on a promise to return the QFD to full-strength after budget cuts in the early 1990's. "We've come through some tough, tough financial times," Gorman, "but we never closed a fire station."

City Council President Paul Harold also made remarks at the ceremony, calling it "really a family celebration" and adding that fire stations were always his first stop during his recent campaigning for register of deeds. "There's something special about a fire station and the people who work there," said Harold.

Chief Gorman said that more hires will be needed in the near future as he expects 55 firefighters to retire over the next two years.

Quincy Shore Drive Sewer Project Starts

The city of Quincy has retained the services of Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc., to design the Quincy Shore Drive Sewer Improvements Project which includes the replacement of sanitary sewers along Quincy Shore Drive, between Williams St. and West Elm Ave. and along the adjacent side streets.

The first step in the design project will be a geotechnical investigation to evaluate the subsurface soil conditions along the sewer route. The geotechnical investigation will consist of soil borings and test pits. The boring and test pit program will impact the following streets:

Quincy Shore Dr. from Williams St. to West Elm Ave., the lower portions (Near Wollaston Beach) of Williams St., Ocean St., Conant Rd., Atlantic St., Hovey St., Billings St., Webster St., Appleton St., Bayfield Rd., Milton Rd.,

Impact Quincy Editorial

'Impact Quincy' editorial is a series of high-impact public service announcements published once a month in The Quincy Sun. The editorials, written by local officials and public health advocates, address critical substance abuse issues such as underage drinking in the City of Quincy.

What Is Impact Quincy?

By MAYOR JAMES SHEETS

What is "Impact Quincy?"

For those who are not familiar with "Impact Quincy," it is a non-profit organization, one of the programs of Bay State Community Services, that has dedicated the last 10 years of its life to continuous work on the reduction of underage drinking among 12-17 year olds in the City of Quincy.

Presently, the City of Quincy has been selected by the Governor of Massachusetts and the Department of Public Health as one of twenty-three communities in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to receive state funding to combat substance abuse among teens.

"Impact Quincy" is also a community based Coalition that is reflecting the diversity of the Quincy community and is building upon its many accomplishments by developing comprehensive strategies to reduce drinking among teens. These prevention strategies will be used in peer, school, parent and community domains supported by a strong media component, the use of cable TV, newspapers, posters, billboards, and also radio advertisements to promote ideas and messages of "Impact Quincy." The representatives of city government, schools, law enforcement, clergy, businesses, citizen activities and many others will use this forum once a month to present their point of view.

In 1991, the City of Quincy, as part of our strong commitment to "Impact Quincy," designated the South Shore Council on Alcoholism as the applicant agency to the Center for Substance Abuse Protection (CSAP) for the City of Quincy and appointed a representative to "Impact Quincy" Coalition's Leadership Team. This representative became an active member of the Coalition and plays a crucial role in the planning and implementation of the citywide campaigns and events, especially those addressing the issues of alcohol abuse among youth. During the last nine years, the City of Quincy continues to be represented by the same individual whose tireless support of the ideas of "Impact Quincy" remains steadfast.

The City of Quincy remains a strong supporter of "Impact Quincy" as an organization and of its mission, vision and programs. We participate in events organized by and/or sponsored by "Impact Quincy" which provides leadership and support that highlights our joint efforts and addresses, as often as possible, the issues of abuse of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs among adults and youth in our community.

The City of Quincy and "Impact Quincy" have a long and productive history of working together for the good of our citizens and our community. As mayor of this wonderful city, I want to extend my full support to "Impact Quincy" and their new media campaign aimed at the reduction of underage drinking. Let us come together as a community and offer "Impact Quincy" our full support and commitment to this worthwhile cause.

Hughes Retiring As Probate Register

A third long-time familiar and popular figure will be leaving Norfolk County office in January.

Thomas P. Hughes of Quincy is stepping into retirement Jan. 3 after 22 years as Register of Probate, he informed his staff Tuesday.

He will be departing Dedham with two friends who are also calling it a career.

Barry Hannon of Braintree is retiring after 30 years as Register of Deeds. Nicolas Barbadoro, formerly of Quincy, now a Braintree resident, is stepping down after 19 years as Norfolk County Clerk of Courts and a total 34 years in that office.

"We'll be walking down the steps together," says

Hughes.

"I'm 62 years old," Hughes says. "It's time to retire. I'm retiring in good health."

He has two years remain-

ing on his last six-year term and his successor will be named by Gov. Paul Cellucci. Whoever it is will have to stand for election in 2002 to keep the post.

Both Hannon's and Barbadoro's successors will be decided in the Nov. 7 election.

City Council President Paul Harold, Democrat, will square off against Stoughton Republican Bruce Olsen for Register of Deeds.

Present Asst. Clerk Walter Timilty, Jr. of Milton, a Democrat, will face Quincy Republican Daniel Dewey for the Clerk of Courts job.

Hughes, a Democrat, was first elected to the register's post in 1978, defeating incumbent Paul Gay of Walpole. He has been elected every six years, mostly unopposed ever since.

A Quincy native who still lives in the family home he grew up in at 30 Cross St., West Quincy, Hughes worked in the District Attorney's office in the Juvenile Diversion and Drug Education Division under both Dist. Attys. George Burke and William Delahunt. He served nine years there before being elected Register of Probate.

Hughes ran for the Ward 4 City council seat in 1973 in a six-man field that included incumbent Albert Barilaro and James Sheets. Barilaro and Sheets won the nominations and Sheets unseated Barilaro in the final election in which Hughes threw his support to Sheets.

Hughes is the son of the late Quincy Police Chief Joseph Hughes and Rose (Carullo) Hughes.

city councillor in the late 1920s and early 1930s.

Come January, it will be like The Three Musketeers riding out of Dedham.

WELL, you'll have to agree that the Paul Harold campaign for Register of Deeds is on the ball in the PR department.

Before last week's primary, his workers attached "Vote Sept. 19" tags to his campaign lawn signs in the county. And updated them with "Vote Today" tags on election day.

Then, after victory primary night and right in the middle of that rainstorm, Mike Linnane and Neil Murphy set out to replace the "Vote Today" tags with "Thank You" ones.

Before they were through, some 300 signs throughout the county greeted morning motorists with "Thank you."

And workers were also back a few days later at strategic locations with hand-held signs with the "Thank You" tags attached.

Must have made an impression on voters for the final election Nov. 7.

PHOTOGRAPHER BOB NOBLE still has some aches and pains but, fortunately, nothing broken, from a recent Quincy Youth Football League game.

It happened in a game between the Squantum Storm and Quincy Elks at Veterans Stadium. During a play, Noble was taking a photo of his grandson, Bob Gardner, a wide receiver for the Squantum Storm.

While Noble was aiming his camera downfield, he didn't see the Elks players chasing ball carrier Mike Faherty right at him on the sideline.

Thump! Two or three of them crashed into Bob, bowling him over with a thud.

An examination at the Quincy Medical Center showed a good shaking up but no broken bones.

Well, Bob, a World War II POW, is still pretty sturdy and obviously can still take a hit.

He and his wife, Gloria, are quite active in community affairs and one of the city's most popular couples. Gloria was there and shuddered when Bob went literally flying at the stadium. But all ended well.

In fact, Bob got the photo of his grandson, saved his camera and the Squantum Storm won the game.

MILESTONE: Good friend Frank Kearns celebrated his 88th birthday the other day and is still going strong.

Frank has been a long-time community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless and needy for which he received The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award in 1991.

He stays active. Serves meals to seniors five days a week at the Houghs Neck Community Center and is a member of the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners. He also attends daily Mass—including both Saturday and Sunday at either St. Ann's or Sacred Heart.

"It's been a good life," he says. "I'm lucky."

And Quincy's lucky to have him.

Happy birthday, kid.

Bainbridge Commissioning Marked With Parade

By PAUL HAROLD

The commissioning of the Fore River designed and built Bainbridge was marked in the city this week by a parade and a series of receptions by city and state officials.

Sept. 28 - Oct. 4
38 Years Ago

An estimated 28,000 people watched the Navy's Destroyer parade down Hancock St., celebrating the 60th anniversary of the ship type known as the destroyer. The Bainbridge was the world's first nuclear-powered guided missile frigate.

There were 60 bands in the parade, but most attention was focused on police detective Leo Antonelli who recently shot down a holdup man at the South Shore National Bank.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE CALLS FOR NEW TECHNICAL SCHOOL

For the third year in a row the advisory committee of the Quincy Trade School called on the school committee to build a new technical school. D. Foster Taylor was committee chairman with trade school director Maurice Daly as secretary.

Noting the past appeals for a new school, Daly said that "action was needed now." He said that with the recent developments in technical employment the need was never greater.

BURKE URGES 'DONOVAN-MELE' DAY

City Councillor George Burke submitted a resolve in the council, calling for a Donovan-Mele Day to honor two city residents for their success this season in major league baseball.

Dick Donovan pitched for the Indians while Sam Mele's managing for the Minnesota Twins brought the team from seventh to second place.

QUINCY-ISMS

One of the city's oldest residents died this week at age 101. Mrs. Mary Yule of Franklin St. (originally from Scotland) operated with her husband the Yule Hotel in Quincy Point for shipyard workers. She was the first woman in the city to own an automobile. She was active in the Quincy Point Congregational Church and never missed voting in 60 years. . . Democratic candidate for governor Endicott Peabody campaigned at the shipyard and at Raytheon with City Clerk John Gillis. . . The city's 27 traffic supervisors sponsored a record hop at the Quincy Armory with Dan Donovan of WMEX as disc jockey. Featured entertainment included the Electras, Excels, Bel-Airs, Royal-Ds and the Originals. Mrs. Agnes Malvesti, president of the traffic supervisors' association, said that the proceeds would go to the Quincy Police Boys' Club. . . There was an open house at Bethany Church's new parsonage at 110 Monroe Rd., with tours by Rev. and Mrs. John Banks. The old parsonage at 118 Presidents Lane, that was used by the church for 50 years, was sold. . . An order was filed in the city council to boost the salary of policemen. The maximum would go from $5,540 to $8,300. . . Three hundred people attended the Jimmy Fund benefit at the Elks, sponsored by the Elks and the police department. Entertainment was provided by the Beachcomber at the Fox and Hounds Grill. . . Mr. and Mrs. William Clark were installed as commander and auxiliary president at the Houghs Neck Legion Post. . . Irving Fletcher succeeded Thomas Blasi as commander at Quincy Legion Post 95. . . Two hundred members of the city's four service clubs met to hear Captain Raymond Peet of the Bainbridge. The luncheon was held at the YMCA under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis. Club presidents were Paul Ricciardi of the Kiwanis, Francis McCauley of the Lions, Dr. Charles Djerf of Rotary and Ben Shiflet of Probus. . . Rep. James McIntyre was in Washington to secure more shipbuilding contracts. . . A son was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. William Masters of Sea St. . . Police Lt. Anthony Caperci was honored at a testimonial at Sherry's, on the occasion of his retirement after 38 years. . . Elks and Emblem club members headed for the national convention at Atlantic City to witness the installation of Quincy resident Pearl Gacicia as Supreme President of the Emblem Clubs of the U.S. Mrs. Marilyn Alcott, president of the Quincy Emblem Club, would make the nomination speech.

READERS FORUM

Sees Harold A Born Leader

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
By the time this letter appears, Paul Harold should be nominated for Register of Deeds.

This man is a born leader and a credit to Quincy and our country. He was the first to declare the proposed shipyard was a farce; while our gullible (or otherwise) politicians poured millions into this foolish project dreamed up by an overseas individual. The idea was truly foolish and a disgrace to those of our "leaders" whose lack of foresight cost taxpayers so much money.

Now, the Sept. 14, 2000 issue of The Quincy Sun has demonstrated another proof of Mr. Harold's intelligence. His suggestion to take the former Citizens Bank branch on Franklin St. to block this property from becoming still another Dunkin' Donuts emporium and provide a long needed permanent Visitors Center for patriotic citizens from all over the country to visit the Adams National History Park directly across the street.

I hope this man lives to be 100 and continues in office all his life. We need him.

Seaside Food Pantry Seeking Help For Holiday Baskets

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The Seaside Food Pantry is starting to gear up for the 2000 Holiday Basket Season. Last year we served over 130 families for each holiday.

This holiday season we are expecting to serve approximately 15 percent more. That will bring our total up to 145 baskets for each of the holidays. As you can imagine the expenses of putting together these baskets are extremely high. We are hopeful that we will be able to put in these baskets the following:

- One 10- to 12-pound turkey.
- One 16-ounce box of stuffing.
- One 16-ounce box of instant potato.

One can of cranberry sauce.

Two cans of green beans. Two cans of carrots.

One box of yellow cake mix.

One jar of frosting.

One turkey gravy.

Considering the amount of food that is needed, we are asking all of your readers if they could please help us with some donations so we will be able to serve all of those in need.

Any questions, please call us at the Food Pantry at (617) 479-0828.

Jerry Lewis Thanks The Wonderful Folks Of Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I knew we could count on the wonderful folks of Quincy! Thank you for helping the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon raise a record $54,610,289 in pledges and contributions.

Hundreds of celebrities and nearly a million volunteers worked Labor Day weekend to help "my kids." Yet, all our hats are off to you Quincy residents for phoning in pledges to the Telethon on WCVB-TV, for supporting fire fighter "Fill-the-Boot" drives and other local MDA events. Your caring gives tremendous support to children and adults in Massachusetts and to families across the country.

Thanks to you, MDA maintains 230 clinics, including the clinics at Massachusetts General Hospital, at the New England Medical Center Hospital, at Brigham & Women's Hospital, and at Children's Hospital, all in Boston, as well as MDA clinics in Burlington, at Tobey Hospital in Wareham, and at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center and St. Vincent Hospital, both in Worcester. These havens of help are staffed by top medical experts dedicated to giving life-enhancing care to people challenged by muscle-wasting diseases.

Thanks to you, MDA will continue to accelerate worldwide research seeking treatments and cures for devastating neuromuscular disorders which affect people of all ages, both sexes, and every nationality. You'll be interested to know that the breakthroughs being pioneered by MDA investigators may also soon lead to therapies for heart disease, cancer, AIDS, Alzheimer's, Huntington's, Parkinson's, and cystic fibrosis.

For more information or to get involved, call your local MDA office at (781) 575-1887, MDA national headquarters at (800) 572-1717, or visit www.mdusa.org.

Delma's Clam Chowder

At our recent family reunion where more than 200 relatives and their families gathered, it was inevitable that I would receive a recipe or two.

One of my cousins, Delma, who lives in New York reads the Quincy Sun each week and told me she would mail me a recipe for clam chowder (fat free).

The day of the reunion our son Dom made his famous chowder and it wasn't fat free, but very delicious. Here is the one Delma sent me.

Low Fat Clam Chowder

3 cups milk
1 1/4 cups water
2 cans minced clams (fresh can also be used)
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped onion

1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon flour
5 medium potatoes (cut in 1 inch chunks)
1/2 cup each of celery, carrots (chopped)
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt.

Bring water, milk juice from the clams to a simmer. Remove from heat.

Melt butter in another pan, add the onion and cook until translucent. Stir in flour until blended. Whisk in warm milk mixture, and stir in remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil and cook until vegetables are tender. Place in blender or food processor until still chunky. Return to pan and add the clams and heat through.

Squantum Causeway Program To Air Tonight at QATV 8

"The Squantum Causeway Project," a documentary detailing the beautification of a one-mile stretch of East Squantum Street, will air tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. on QATV 8.

The program will also serve to introduce the newly formed Friends of the Squantum Causeway, which was organized to plant 5,000 day lilies and 300 daffodils on the sides of the Causeway.

The program chronicles the inception through completion of the community project, which was begun after the road into Squantum from Quincy Shore Drive was raised to prevent flooding.

It recounts the area's history and progress through interviews with community organizers, local businessmen and women, city and state officials and project volunteers.

McCauley's City Political History Book Debuts Oct. 7

City Councillor and former Mayor Francis McCauley's book on Quincy's political history will make its debut Saturday, Oct. 7, at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St.

Mayor James Sheets, who commissioned McCauley to write the book, "Quincy, Massachusetts, a Political History 1889-2000," as part of the city's millennium celebration, will preside at the 10 a.m. ceremony.

Speakers will include Quincy Historical Society President Joyce Baker and Executive Director Dr. Bernard Fitzgerald.

Copies of the book will go on sale for $21 a copy, tax included. McCauley will be available during the day until 4 p.m. to autograph copies. Light refreshments will be served.

McCauley, who charged no fee for his efforts, started work on the book in early April, 1998, completing the work in late January, 2000. The book is being published by the Picton Press of Rockport, Maine, and printed by McNaughton & Gunn, Inc., of Sabine, Mich.

The 353-page book reviews the history of Quincy's government under three charters as well as those men and women who served in the local elective offices of mayor, councillor-at-large, ward councillor and School Committee member.

The book also includes chapters on the Quincy school system, women in city government, a Mayoral Hall of Fame and selected biographical sketches of prominent Quincy political figures, past and present. A complete listing of all elected officials who served in the 111 years of city government is also included.

Black's Creek Ecology Tour Set For Saturday

The Park Department will sponsor an interactive ecology tour of Black's Creek, one of Quincy's environmental treasures, Saturday, Sept. 30 starting at 2 p.m.

Robert Dano, professor of biology at Quincy College and author of a comprehensive study of Black's Creek, will host the tour of the ecosystem from Quincy Bay to Furnace Brook.

The tour will meet at Caddy Park off Quincy Shore Drive. Participants are urged to wear old sneakers and old pants. Waders and nets will be used.

For more information, call the city of Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Quincy Residents Featured in 'Hamlet'

Ubiquity Stage will present Shakespeare's "Hamlet," featuring Quincy residents Christopher Robin Cook and Samuel Young, at the Tower Auditorium, Massachusetts College of Art, 621 Huntington Ave., Boston.

Running Oct. 6 through Oct. 21, show times are Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday matinees at 3 p.m. Tickets are $15 or $12 for seniors and students.

The theater is handicapped-accessible. Free parking is also available. For more information or reservations, call 617-886-0322.

Stella Del Nord Plans Holiday Craft, Gift Fair

The Stella Del Nord Women's Lodge will hold a holiday craft and gift fair Sunday, Oct. 22.

The event will be from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

Admission and parking are free. The center is handicapped accessible.

There will be crafts, homemade candy, gift baskets, raffle tables and refreshments.

Council Resolve Seeks More Land For NQHS

The DeMatteo Construction site at 200 Hancock St. is now vacant and city councillors want to buy it and make it part of North Quincy High School.

Councillors Joseph Newton and Stephen Durkin passed a successful resolve at Monday night's meeting of the City Council urging Mayor James Sheets to purchase the parcel "to make North Quincy High School a more attractive and viable educational institution."

Newton estimated the parcel, which directly connects to the NQHS campus, at between 60,000 and 70,000 square feet and pointed to the benefits of more green space, more athletic facilities, and more parking for the school and the neighborhood.

"This is the chance of a lifetime," Newton told his fellow councillors, who passed the resolve unanimously. "A problem at North Quincy High School is space and we have a rare opportunity to right that wrong."

Newton introduced letters of support from NQHS Principal Louis Ioanilli and Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments. Ioanilli listed three or four possible uses for the property and indicated that NQHS parent groups "are strongly in favor of your proposal and will assist if called upon."

Koch also pledged his cooperation with the project and, citing the dense business and residential area which surrounds the North Quincy High School campus, echoed Newton's call for more green space and the rare opportunity that presented itself to the city.

Said Koch:

"It is not often in such a dense urban setting that land becomes available. I believe it would be extremely short-sighted and a mistake not to pursue the purchase of this parcel. I believe for the short-term it would allow for proper planning to address the future needs of the school."

Seniors At Marina Place For Presidential Debate

A large group of Boston area seniors will gather Tuesday, Oct. 3 at Marina Place to view and discuss the first Presidential Debate of Election 2000.

The seniors will analyze

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, who has been leading efforts to redevelop the North Quincy gateway, said that the purchase "fits perfectly" with current plans. McDermott voiced some doubt as to the feasibility of the purchase and possible contamination concerns, but told the council Newton and Durkin's resolve was "something which should be explored."

The DeMatteo property, Newton said, was leveled less than a year ago and lease and/or purchase interest has been expressed by several companies, including car washes and chain restaurants.

"This purchase would move parking off the street, address the high school's needs, and improve the quality of life for the neighborhood," Newton promised. "It's a golden opportunity."

the candidates and score them on issues important to older Americans.

Seniors made up 20 percent of the vote in the 1996 election and similar numbers are expected this year.

New Ladder Truck Hot Topic For Council

By CRAIG SALTERS

A City Council resolve over the best site for a proposed QFD ladder truck sparked debate Monday night and highlighted the need for the upcoming Fire Safety Needs Study.

The resolve, sponsored by Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley and sent to the Public Safety Committee, asks Fire Chief Thomas Gorman to report on the need for a ladder truck in Houghs Neck as compared to other sections of the city. It also asks Gorman to provide the council with an inventory of current apparatus in order of age and maintenance needs.

Although the resolve clearly calls for a prioritization of city needs, it does contain certain points -- such as Houghs Neck's isolated location, its renovated summer cottages built before modern-day fire codes, and the loss of its Ladder 4 in the 1980's -- which suggest Houghs Neck as the best site.

The resolve drew comment from Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, who has long lobbied for a ladder truck in West Quincy given the area's economic boom and its new multi-story buildings such as the Crown Colony Office Park.

"The justification is there," said D'Amico, noting that firefighters, among them Local 792 President William Ariente, would appear before the council soon to prove that West Quincy was in most need of a ladder truck. "I look forward to the dialogue."

Hanley responded that he would be in favor of a new ladder truck for West Quincy if and when he was told that it was the city's top priority. "Whether it's in Ward 1 or Ward 4, I will justify the expense in terms of public safety if the chief comes and tells us that," Hanley said.

Councillors Patrick McDermott and Joseph Newton urged colleagues to wait for expert testimony before making any decisions and Councillor Daniel Raymond commented that he was happy the needs of the fire department were finally being pushed front and center.

Council President Paul Harold cautioned that a recent financial analysis of the situation, conducted by Councillor Frank McCauley and used as support by Hanley, was only "one version" of the issue and subject to debate.

According to the McCauley report, a new ladder company would require 12 firefighters, three lieutenants, and one captain at a cost of over $1 million.

McCauley's figures also mention roughly $900,000 to renovate the West Quincy Fire Station to accommodate the large truck, but Mayor James Sheets said that was no longer an issue. The city, he said, had located a company which would custom-build a new ladder truck to meet the station's needs. However, Sheets added, that created a new problem of the truck's ability to navigate city streets, a problem the mayor said was being addressed.

Sheets said that the fire study was in the RFP (Request for Proposals) phase and that a company would soon be chosen to conduct the study.

Although Sheets said he welcomed any new information the Fire Needs Study would provide, he settled a council debate as to whether or not a proposed $500,000 appropriation for a new ladder truck was intended for West Quincy. "The $500,000 fire truck was a fire truck designed for West Quincy," the mayor said.

Domestic Violence Prevention Observance Oct. 1 At United Methodist Church

The South Shore Coalition for the Prevention of Domestic Violence, formerly Quincy Community Coalition, is sponsoring the fifth annual Interfaith Service of Remembrance & Healing Sunday, Oct. 1, from 6 to 8 p.m., at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

The ecumenical service provides an opportunity for abuse survivors, friends and families of victims, service providers, and the community-at-large to remember and mourn lives lost, find comfort, strength and inspiration, and recommit to ending domestic violence.

The community-based coalition has seen attendance at the event increase over the years. Traditionally drawing from the South Shore and Greater Boston areas, this year participants are expected from as far as New Hampshire.

The evening, designed to renew hope, aid in healing and celebrate life, has been used as a model by other organizations. This year's observance includes musical soloist Frances Andronico, an address by a domestic violence survivor, dance performances by Rejoicing!, and a neighborhood candlelight procession commemorating Massachusetts' victims who have died from October, 1999 to the present.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Marianne Hinkle will receive this year's special recognition by the Coalition for her work to "empower women to move forward."

MARIANNE HINKLE

Information, counselors and child care will be available during the evening.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church (617-773-3319) is wheelchair-accessible and one block from the Wollaston MBTA Red Line Station.

Ms. Hinkle has been an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the U.S. Attorney's Office in Massachusetts since April, 1997. She prosecutes cases in the Major Crimes Unit, specializing in firearms and federal domestic violence cases. She is responsible for screening cases for possible federal prosecution and serves as a liaison with local and state law enforcement authorities regarding firearms prosecutions in urban areas. She conducts training and educational programs regarding federal domestic violence laws and federal firearms provisions.

Prior to joining the U.S. Attorney's Office, Ms. Hinkle served as an Assistant District Attorney in the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office, where she was the Superior Court Director in the Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Units.

She prosecuted major felony cases in Superior Court, including initial investigations, grand jury prosecutions, legal research, motion hearings and jury trials; was trial counsel for over 40 jury trials; assessed cases for possible prosecution; supervised attorneys handling domestic violence and sexual assault cases in Superior Court and five District Courts; supervised sexual assault and domestic violence investigations conducted by investigators on staff of District Attorney's Office and by local police departments; supervised court and community domestic violence roundtables; and conducted training for attorneys, police and community groups regarding domestic violence, sexual assault and scientific evidence.

SEEING RED

If you think you seem to be spending more time waiting for red lights to turn green you may be right. In an effort to increase safety, traffic experts have increased the period of time that traffic lights remain red. As a result of this trend, the average duration of a red light has increased from about 45 seconds during the 1970s to about 90 seconds during the 1990s. And, while no one can argue with the goal of increasing safety in the nation's roads, there are those who think that there may be better ways to go about it. One way, called the "all reds" strategy, involves synchronizing all traffic lights in one direction, to move traffic en masse.

Your safety and that of your family is our concern. Please use seat belts and the proper seat for your children and watch those traffic lights. Maintaining your vehicle is important in maintaining safety. QHS Ceremonies Honor Doreen, Steven Barrett

For the past three years Quincy High School "Q-Team" leaders Principal Robert Keuther and Student Council Advisor Jack Scanlan have initiated a three-day Leadership Camp which has been attended by over 500 students.

This year over 100 students attended seminars at Eastern Nazarene College and a "ropes course" at Midway High School.

The camp's theme this year was diversity and respect. QHS students spent three days focusing on cultural diversity and respect for themselves and others.

On the last day of camp, the dedication of a tree and plaque located on the right side of Quincy High School's front door took place in memory of Doreen and Steven Barrett.

The plaque, donated by Quincy High School's Student Council, read "In Memory of Doreen Barrett, Class of 1963, and Steven Barrett, Class of 1995." A granite footing engraved with "Let there be peace on earth and let it begin with me" was also placed at the site.

Among the guest speakers was Fr. Robert Monagle of St. Joseph's Church who recognized and thanked the student council for their efforts in remembering the Barrett family. Christine Niosi, spokeswoman for the student council, also made remarks at the ceremony, stating, "I hope as the students and faculty of Quincy High School walk by this memorial, it will remind us what others have done for their community and that, together, we can all make a difference."

Earlier in the year Niosi and her sister Jacqueline drew from their experiences at Quincy High School a desire to make a difference in their school. The students approached Advisor Jack Scanlan with an idea to dedicate a memorial on school grounds to honor two people who dedicated their lives to making Quincy High School a better place.

Scanlan and student council members approached J. Christopher Barrett with the idea of dedicating a tree and plaque in memory of Barrett's wife Doreen and son Steven.

Barrett and wife Doreen had started a program called Friends for a Better Quincy High School back in the late 1980's, with Doreen also working many hours behind the scenes to raise money for various school activities.

After her death, the Barrett family received an award in Mrs. Barrett's memory entitled "The Best of the Best" given in recognition of her services to Quincy High School.

She was a lifelong resident of Quincy.

Her son Steven was a three-sport varsity captain and active member of many Quincy High School committees. His goal in life was to become a Quincy Police Officer, a dream cut short by his untimely death last year.

Bernice Mader Speaker At Presidents' AARP Meeting

School Bond Issues To Go Before Council In October

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets said he expects to present bond issues for the construction of the new Quincy High School and the design of the new Central Middle School (renovated QHS) and Sterling Middle School to the City Council by October.

This, the mayor said, will give the city enough time to meet the state's June 1 deadline for design plans, which would keep the projects eligible for 90 percent reimbursement.

The new Quincy High and Central Middle School projects, which have already been approved for 90 percent state reimbursement, are expected to have a combined cost of over $80 million dollars.

Bonding has been delayed, Sheets explained, because some unknowns -- such as the ballfields at Quincy Avenue or parking -- have yet to be worked out and factored into the bond amount.

"As far as we're concerned, that situation is totally under control," Sheets said.

The mayor's statement follows a Monday night City Council meeting in which Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, worried that bonding and design delays could kill the city's chances for the increased reimbursement, urged the mayor's office to bring the bonding issues to the City Council as soon as possible for discussion and approval.

"It would be an absolute disgrace, and shame on all of us, if we don't get the full 90 percent reimbursement," Raymondi told his fellow councillors, reminding them that the city needed to submit design plans for the new Quincy High School, the renovated Central Middle School (Old QHS), and Sterling Middle School by June 1 of next year to the state's Department of Education to remain eligible for the 90 percent, rather than the traditional 63 percent, reimbursement.

"This is a once in a lifetime opportunity through the great work of a Milton senator and we should be pushing the envelope with all projects approved by the School Building Needs Task Force. We want it sooner rather than later."

John Keenan, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, responded that the mayor was very committed to meeting the June 1 deadline and assured councillors that matters were proceeding on schedule.

Thanks to a successful amendment pushed through the Legislature by Milton State Senator Brian Joyce, communities who had demonstrated a racial imbalance in a school by 1999, had plans approved by 2000, and designs submitted by 2001 are eligible for the almost 30 percent reimbursement increase. The new Quincy High School and the renovated Central Middle School, Sheets said, fit those criteria and he will work with the state to argue Sterling Middle School's case as well.

All of which should come as welcome news to Raymondi, who said that his years as both a councillor and member of the School Committee have taught him that large construction projects invariably come with design or construction delays. "Without the bond, we can't get the architect or plan construction," Raymondi argued. "And if we don't have a design plan, we don't get the money."

Raymondi agreed with Keenan that designs for the new high school were pretty much complete but wondered aloud if any design work had been done on the new Central, which he said posed several logistical problems. "And (the work at) Sterling is behind Central," Raymondi added.

With three major school projects in the works and a plan to invest over $100 million dollars into the city's school system, Raymondi repeated his warning that now was not the time to miss a deadline. "Nine cents on every dime," Raymondi said. "That just doesn't happen."

The new Quincy High School is slated to open in 2004 and the new Central Middle School in 2006.

City Includes Technology Survey With Tax Bills

Quincy taxpayers will receive a survey prepared by the city's Data Processing Department and Treasurer/Collector's Office with their tax bills this month.

The survey seeks to have Quincy taxpayers provide input as to whether they would like to have the ability to pay certain municipal bills by computer.

Specifically, the city inquires as to whether taxpayers would like the option of paying Excise Tax bills, Property Tax bills, Water Bills, and Parking Tickets via the Internet. The survey also asks residents what meeting notices they would like to see posted on the Internet through the city's website.

"Paying municipal bills on-line is something that is relatively new across the state," said Charles Phelan, Quincy's director of Data Processing. "We have an infrastructure in place that allows us to consider this option for our residents, so now is a good time to see what types of services the residents would like to see provided."

Treasurer/Collector James Chicino views the on-line payment option as an additional convenience to taxpayers. "At the state level, they are examining the legal issues involved with on-line payment of certain taxes -- issues such as additional fees for the service -- and, in anticipation of those issues being resolved, we want some feedback from taxpayers," said Chicino. "On the local level, we view the on-line payment option as a way to make government more state," said Charles Phelan, "user-friendly."

The survey also seeks input relative to meeting notices being posted on the city's website. Phelan also stated the City Council Agenda is now posted on the city's website and that the response has been favorable. "We believe that residents will benefit by having notices of meetings of other city boards, such as the Zoning Board and Licensing Board, posted on-line, as well as the agendas for those meetings."

Residents are encouraged to respond to the survey by mail or through the city's website at www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

Ridding The House Of Electrical Hazards

A growing number of families are plugging into electrical safety by inspecting appliance cords, plugs, outlets, switches and exposed wiring in the home. By doing so at least once (preferably twice) a year, it's possible to create a safer living environment.

Each year hundreds of people die from electrical hazards in their homes, and thousands of homes are destroyed in electrical fires. But just as alarming as these statistics is the fact that many of these tragedies can be avoided.

Home Safety Tips

Start by examining outlets and switches, both indoors and out. Replace loose-fitting devices and missing or broken wallplates. If you have young children, safety covers on unused outlets can help prevent them from coming in contact with electricity.

In bathrooms, kitchens, garages, basements and outdoor areas, special outlets known as GFCIs (ground fault circuit interrupters) should be installed to prevent electrical shock. A ground fault occurs when current leaks from an electrical circuit through damaged wiring or a defective appliance. GFCIs detect ground faults and interrupt power to the circuit if they occur.

It's important to test GFCIs every 30 days to verify that they're working properly. Simply push the button and, if it's working properly, the unit will trip. Verify this by plugging a lamp or nightlight into the receptacle to confirm that power has been interrupted. Then push the reset button. The whole test takes less than a minute.

Other safety tips to follow:

- Electrical cords -- Replace frayed or cracked cords. Never run cords in high-traffic areas or under carpets, and never rest furniture on them. Avoid overloading cords with too many appliances, and make sure that pets aren't chewing on them. And make sure prongs fit snugly into outlets -- don't try to get a three-pronged (grounded) cord into a two-conductor outlet.
- Light bulbs -- Replace bulbs that have higher wattages than are recommended for the individual fixtures.

Make sure bulbs are screwed in securely.

- Circuit breakers/fuses -- Make sure units are rated to handle your home's appliances and lighting. Always replace fuses with the same rated fuse. If an appliance repeatedly blows fuses, trips circuit breakers, or gives you a shock, unplug it and have it repaired immediately.

Even though many people take electricity for granted, it is potentially hazardous. By adhering to these simple do's and don'ts, you can create an electrically safer home.

Jack Conway, NHS First Time Homebuyer Workshop Oct. 14

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHFA and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First Time Homebuyer's Workshop in partnership with Jack Conway Real Estate Saturday, Oct. 14.

The workshop will be an all day workshop at the Jack Conway School of Real Estate, 183 Columbia Rd., Hanover, at 9 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. Lunch will be provided.

The agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer, an determining the best mortgage program for your needs. Each Participant will have the opportunity to meet individually with mortgage professionals, Realtors, and an attorney.

Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Contact Debbie Kidd at Neighborhood Housing Services at (617) 770-2387 for more information or to register for the workshop.

How To Decide What's Right For A Kitchen Floor

The variety of choices now available for kitchen floors provides a wide base for comparison. Deciding what look you favor and how much time you want to spend caring for your floor, may help narrow down the options.

Here's how three popular alternatives compare:

Stone and ceramic tiles have a rugged beauty, are highly durable and moisture-resistant. However, the grout is susceptible to food stains and typically needs regular cleaning. If also may need to be replaced in 10 to 15 years. On the positive side, grout can be tinted to add a more coordinated look.

Hard-surface tiles also are hard on the feet, cold to the touch in colder weather, and unforgiving when you drop dishes or glassware.

One increasingly popular alternative is vinyl tile. It offers many new design options including textured tiles that look like ceramic, but are more affordable and much easier to care for and replace.

The third option is vinyl sheet flooring that bears little resemblance to the linoleum of old. Today's vinyl floors are attractive, resilient and durable. Soft and quiet underfoot, vinyl often is used in areas that receive extremely heaving foot traffic. Drop a plate or glass and a vinyl floor also is more forgiving.

Some of today's vinyl flooring often is harder to distinguish from its more difficult-to-care-for, hard-surface flooring counterparts. It can mimic country-classic flooring, such as aged oak, textured fieldstone or other looks prevalent in nature, such as the random coloring found in hand-quartered stone.

Receives Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services Award

Quincy Sun Honored As Unique Family Newspaper

The Quincy Sun was honored Sunday as a unique family newspaper with family values and a strong commitment to the community it serves.

More than 200 — including Mayor James Sheets and Congressman William Delahunt and other city and state officials, representatives of various organizations and friends and readers attended brunch at the Quincy Lodge of Elks to recognize The Quincy Sun Family and publisher Henry Bosworth's family.

The Sun was the second recipient of the award presented by the Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services of Quincy for commitment to family values and community service.

The first recipients last year were Mayor and Mrs. James Sheets and their family.

All proceeds from the brunch will go to the Maria Droste Services to help those in need of family counseling.

The award to The Sun coincidentally came as it started its 33rd year as "Quincy's Historic Hometown Weekly Newspaper."

A clock with hard printed Quincy historic sites was presented by the Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services and the award selection committee.

Commendations from the Massachusetts Senate and House of Representatives signed by state Senator Michael Morrissey and Representatives Bruce Ayers, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin were presented during the brunch.

Excerpts from some of the tributes Sunday:

Mayor Sheets: "If you read The Quincy Sun from cover to cover as most of us elected officials do, it's a family newspaper."

"It talks about what you're doing and what we're doing. It talks about the city. It talks about all the wonderful events that are occurring in the city."

"We don't see the harshness, the toughness, the nastiness that you see in so many other printed media publications."

"It could be all those things but it isn't. And, it isn't because of what Henry Bosworth and his family are. The values that they have raised their children by, live by, watch their grandkids brought into this world by."

"Those values have been transferred to the entire Quincy Sun family and it's a very wonderful and marvelous family."

"That's what life is all about. Families build communities and communities build cities and that's what we are all about."

Congressman William Delahunt: "If there is anyone who reflects a genuine sense of community, who has contributed so much to my hometown, our community, this city, it's Henry Bosworth. As you look back on your life you can look back with some pride."

"Your legacy will far outlive you. It has been in so many different ways that you have made this city a better place to live."

Fr. William McCarthy of St. John's Church and after whom the Fr. Bill's Place shelter for the homeless is named:

"We thank you (God) for the gift of Henry Bosworth who has certainly used his talents for the benefit of the community in which The Quincy Sun does so well to update us in the news."

City Council President Paul Harold, who began his career as a young reporter for the then young Quincy Sun, recalled Bosworth advising him: "To be a good reporter you have to be fair and accurate." And added:

"That standard is one that applies not just to journalism but to anyone in any walk of life. Any time you're in a political fight or any type of situation with an adversary, I think of that — to be fair and to be accurate."

"The Quincy Sun has done that of these many years and that is why it's such an entertaining and informative publication that we all enjoy."

Rep. Ronald Mariano: "Henry Bosworth is a unique individual. He is my resource for history of the city and especially Quincy Point. He's truly a treasure for the city of Quincy."

Rep. Bruce Ayers: "In any business, how you treat your customers is a reflection on you. And the way you have treated the readers of The Quincy Sun is a reflection on you and the commitment of pride and dignity to all your readers. Your commitment to the city is outstanding."

Rep. Stephen Tobin: "We really appreciate the tone of Henry's column. Every week he manages to talk about things and you don't see sarcasm, you don't see cynicism and it would be so easy to stoop down and get into that. His head is up."

"He looks for the positive in everybody. That not only promotes citizenship but it promotes a standard by which we all want to attain and live by. I also think it is a role model for people."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond: "What makes a community great. What makes Quincy the tremendous community it is with all its great neighborhoods are families like the Bosworth family that came to Quincy, raised their families, worked hard, contributed not only to their own individual families but to the great Quincy family."

"Each and every week that love for his family and that love of his community is on every page and every column of The Quincy Sun."

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott recalled his first job as a Sun newscaster and said:

"Henry's first belief is the family and the community...it's a personal family relationship that he and The Quincy Sun had with the city of Quincy. I've watched my life kind of blossom on the pages of The Quincy Sun."

Former City Council President Peter Kolson, who co-chaired the Maria Droste Award Selection Committee with his wife, Judy, and served as emcee:

"If you noticed when Henry gave his speech, he only said 'we,' never 'I.' I think it's fitting because that's typical of how he treats everything. He is a superb journalist and he has done this community and his family so proud and has done so much for so many people."

Former School Committee member Charles Sweeny citing Bosworth's World War II service in the Pacific with the Navy and his commitment to worthy causes such as Muscular Dystrophy, the Salvation Army and Red Cross and other community activities:

"We're here for a unique event, a celebration of family. I congratulate this organization (Maria Droste) for its respect and its award to a special family and The Quincy Sun."

"I'd like to quote Dizzy Dean: 'It isn't bragging if I've done it.' Well, Henry's done it."

He recalled the early struggles of the newspaper and the predictions of doubters who said it wouldn't last.

"There were times we thought they might be right," he said. "But fortunately there were friends, readers news sources and advertisers who strongly believe in a community newspaper. And also felt that having two newspapers in town was better than having just one. And, we are happy to say, they still believe so today."

He added:
"A community weekly newspaper has a tremendous responsibility to the community. To be as accurate as possible and to be fair to both sides of an issue -- always.

"We feel that what is reported each week in The Quincy Sun is tomorrow's Quincy history. Keeping it accurate and fair is very important. In doing so, we accent the positive but not neglecting or ignoring the negative.

"We are proud to carry the name Quincy in our banner. That's what we are all about."

A Tribute To Father From Son

Robert Bosworth, now the editor of The Quincy Sun, was only four when his father started the newspaper.

At Sunday's Maria Droste award ceremony, a son made a father as proud as a father could be with these words:

As the editor of The Quincy Sun, I want to personally thank the Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Services for this recognition and honor.

Today, is indeed a special day for the Bosworth family, and The Quincy Sun family.

The Quincy Sun, which incidentally begins its 33rd year of circulation in the great city of Quincy this week, has been my father's passion since 1968. It had been, for quite some time, my Dad's dream to start his own paper in the city he was raised and educated in.

I was only 4 years old when that first issue hit the newsstand back in September, 1968. I don't remember much from the 1960's but, as I got older, I began to understand the sacrifice my father was making to put food on the table and keep a roof over our heads. Long days and nights at the paper were the rule, not the exception. Tuesdays—the deadline back then as it is today—became synonymous with marathon work days.

Issue No. 1 debuted in Quincy on Sept. 26, 1968. Since that time, 1,663 issues have followed. All of them published and circulated to our loyal readers in a timely fashion except for one: the week of the Blizzard of 1978 when heavy snows created a production delay and the paper went out one day later than usual.

During this 32-year span of publication, Henry has steered the Quincy Sun ship with supreme dedication and tremendous commitment for the city he loves. Most of that time he's worked six days a week. And, you can count on one hand the number of vacations he's taken; on the other the number of personal days and sick days.

Why all this sacrifice? Because Henry Bosworth loves Quincy and he loves his family.

SUN EDITOR Robert Bosworth pays tribute to his father, Quincy Sun Publisher and founder Henry Bosworth.

From his inspiration and perspiration developed an award-winning weekly newspaper with a reputation of respect and integrity. I firmly believe, that is unparalleled in any other community. Our mission statement is serving the community and treating the newsmakers fairly and accurately.

Since 1968, The Quincy Sun family has put Quincy families first. Issue after issue, week after week, the paper reports local events and happenings while chronicling the lives of Quincy citizens. No milestone is too small to mention in The Quincy Sun, may it be a birth announcement, little Joey's heroics at the local ice arena, a promotion on the police or fire department, or a son or daughter's graduation from high school or college.

We know that families care about these events because that's life is all about — enjoying the passage of time and celebrating milestones along the way.

The Quincy Sun has also been a strong supporter of building a better a community and partnering — officially or unofficially — with organizations geared toward improving the quality of life in this city.

Name an organization and you be can assured that The Quincy Sun has embraced their worthy cause with pre-and-post event publicity as well as a sponsorship to those very deserving endeavors.

Allow me to name a few of these worthy causes:

The Marie Curry Walk, The Quincy Lions Run/Walk for Sight, The Bill Degan Memorial Road Race, The Esther Sanger Center for Compassion, Beechwood Community Life Center, Quincy Veterans Services, Quincy Historical Society, Quincy Community Action, South Shore YMCA, Quincy Kiwanis Hockey Tournament, Father Bill's Place, Southwest Community Center, Quincy Rotary Auction, The Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop, Diane DeVanna Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect, The American Red Cross, The Koch Club, Cerebral Palsy, Muscular Dystrophy, The Salvation Army, Maria Droste Services, and countless church fundraisers, school fairs, and charity golf tournaments.

Can you imagine our city without these groups? If these organizations are the fabric of the community, then we at the Quincy Sun consider ourselves some of the thread that keeps them all together.

Simply put: If it's going on in Quincy, or pertains to Quincy people, or affects Quincy, it's in The Quincy Sun.

This isn't a sales pitch, folks. This concept was first developed by The Quincy Sun's patriarch — Henry Bosworth — and still rings true today.

And this partnership with the community is a two-way street because The Quincy Sun would not exist without the support and assistance of so many loyal readers and citizens throughout Quincy. This award is very humbling in that regard.

In closing, I would like to publicly thank my father for his tremendous hard work over the years — and for instilling in me a sense of community purpose and civic pride, as well as being a wonderful role model to me and to our entire family.

Dad, I am proud to be the editor of The Quincy Sun, but prouder to be your son.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Oct. 2 Is National Child Health Day

Mental Health Crucial To Children's Development

A president was heartbroken. A nation mourned the death of a child.

Calvin Coolidge's youngest son, Calvin, Jr., died on July 7, 1924, the victim of blood poisoning brought on by an infected blister. He was only 16.

"In his suffering he asked me to make him well. I could not," the grieving president later wrote. "When he went, the power and glory of the presidency went with him."

Yet Calvin Coolidge would use his presidential power to issue a proclamation creating National Child Health Day. In 1928, he urged Americans to recognize "the fundamental necessity of a year-round program for the protection and development of the health of the nation's children."

Oct. 2 marks the 72nd annual National Child Health Day. The Caring for Every Child's Mental Health Campaign, part of The Comprehensive Community Mental Health Services for Children and Their Families Program of the Federal Center for Mental Health Services, is urging Americans to recognize that there is more to our children's health than their physical well-being.

Their mental health is as crucial to their development and must be as closely nurtured, year-round, as any aspect of their health from the day they are born.

Every child has a mind--and the health of any child's mind can become troubled. Approximately 1 in 10 young people in the United States have a serious emotional disturbance. Early detection is a key to reducing the pain endured by children--and the costs sustained by their families and communities.

The Campaign wants parents, teachers and caregivers to know the warning signs that may point to a mental health problem so that they can recognize and get help for a child who needs it.

Pay attention is a child

you know:

- Is troubled by feeling very sad, anxious, angry, or frightened.

- Experiences big changes, for example, does much worse in school, changes sleeping or eating habits, or loses interest in things usually enjoyed.

- Is limited by poor concentration, inability to sit still or focus, persistent nightmares or performs certain routines dozens of times a day.

- Behaves in ways that cause problems, often hurts other people, destroys property or breaks things.

These could be warning signs of a mental health problem. To learn more about what feelings and behaviors to look for and where you can get help, call 1-800-789-2647 (toll-free) or check out the Web site at www.mentalhealth.org/child.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

Should I keep my batteries in the refrigerator?

Absolutely not! Today's hearing aid batteries are made with zinc. They have a good shelf life, but if put in the refrigerator, they will accumulate moisture and cause corrosion in your hearing aid. When zinc air batteries are fresh they have a guaranteed shelf life of one year. Buy them fresh! When they are on sale at pharmacies or discount stores, it may be because they are an older batch. It is much easier to monitor their freshness in a Hearing Instrument Specialist's office where we do not sell many other products. A fresh battery will give you consistent life. An old battery might go dead at any time. You may save a couple of dollars but you'll save more dollars by doing business with your specialist. Customers that buy batteries from me on a regular basis get more "freebies" when they come in for service. It's my way of thanking them for being dedicated customers. Keep your batteries in a dry cool place, like a desk drawer, and order a 4-6 month supply at a time.

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

WHAT ABOUT THAT PAIN IN THE NECK?

We've all heard the expression, "You give me a pain in the neck," meaning that stress can affect us in a painful way, especially if there is weakness in one's neck.

The neck is the most delicate part of the spine and the most easily injured. It is composed of seven separate bones that are loosely connected together by ligaments and muscles. The structure of the neck allows for great mobility, but also predisposes it to injury. Poor posture, occupation, falling asleep in a chair or on the couch, car accidents, falls, twists and strain take their toll on the neck (cervical spine).

The part of the nervous system housed within the bones of the neck is an extension of the brain. Displacements or misalignments of the neck bones may cause pressure on the adjacent spinal nerves commonly referred to as "pinched nerves."

Some of the symptoms seen most often with pinched nerves in the neck are: headaches, sinusitis, dizziness, neck pain, shoulder pain, and pain, numbness and or tingling into the arm, hand or fingers.

One should always consult a chiropractor after a motor vehicle accident, fall or strain, even if you do not think you are hurt.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

CAN INGROWN NAILS BE CAUSED BY DRUGS?

There are many theories on what causes nails to be ingrown. They range from improper cutting, tight shoes, to associated digital deformities like bunions (enlargement of the bone on the side of the big toe.) There is truth to all these theories and, sometimes, an ingrown nail can be cured by addressing the causing problem. There are some drugs that can cause changes in the nails, usually affecting the color or texture. Recently, a report in the Journal of the American Podiatric Medical Association (JAPMA) discussed certain drugs actually being associated with ingrown and infected nails.

The studies that made the association are primarily from Europe. The drugs involved, antiretroviral medications, are used primarily to treat HIV-infected patients. HIV is the virus that causes A.I.D.S. The cause and effect relationship between the drugs and the changes on the tissue around the nail is not understood. It may be due to the inhibition of some natural enzymes in the skin by the drugs that leads to dryness and thickening of the skin and encourages the nail to become ingrown. The nail then cuts through the skin and an infection can follow. More studies are being done now to study this interesting relationship.

Red Raiders Eye Falmouth In League Opener

By CHRIS POISSON
It's not even close to the holiday season, but the North Quincy High School football team continues to gift-wrap early touchdowns for its opponents.

In the season opener, Stoughton scored on its first play from scrimmage and Friday night Whitman-Hanson's Jim Rego returned a punt 90 yards for a touchdown on North Quincy's opening series.

For the second straight week, North Quincy dug itself a deep trench it couldn't climb out of as Whitman-Hanson rolled to a 41-12 non-league win at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North Quincy (0-2) begins Old Colony League play Friday night when it travels to Falmouth for a 7 p.m. game.

"There was a mistake on the punt return and that is something we can correct," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "It was a loss, but we played hard. They're a strong team."

After the punt return, the Red Raiders marched down to Whitman-Hanson's 6-yard line behind the legs of junior tailback Pat Bregoli (130 yards), but senior quarterback Max Repoff's pass on fourth down was incomplete and Whitman-Hanson took over.

Three plays later, however, Whitman-Hanson fumbled and North Quincy recovered at the 13. It wasted no time when Bregoli burst through the middle on the first play for a touchdown with 1:23 left in the quarter.

North Quincy trailed 7-6 as the extra point was no good. "I thought we moved the ball pretty good," Chrisom said. "Bregoli had a good game. The offensive line did a nice job blocking. That makes it a little bit better to take."

That was as close as the Red Raiders got. Whitman-Hanson scored on the ensuing possession when running back Steve Cappellini punched one in from 2 yards out for a 13-6 lead as the two-point conversion failed.

Whitman-Hanson extended its lead to 20-6 when junior quarterback Tom Pimental hit junior Ryan Armstrong on a 5-yard fade pass to the left corner of the end zone with 1:10 left in the half.

A second-half comeback was put to rest when Whitman-Hanson scored on its first three possessions.

After completing a 36-yard pass to Armstrong on third-and-17 on the opening series, Pimental hit Armstrong on the next play for an 11-yard TD pass for a 27-6 lead with 7:10 left in the third.

North Quincy went three-and-out on its first possession as Repoff was sacked twice and just two plays later, Rego reeled off a 59-yard TD run to make it 34-6 after the extra point.

The Red Raiders did find the end zone on the following series when they went 68 yards in 3:17. On third-and-11 from Whitman-Hanson's 19, Repoff lofted a pass over a defender and senior quarterback Joe Holleran made an outstanding diving catch for the touchdown to close to 34-12 after the two-point conversion failed.

Junior running back Tony Celia tacked on a 42-yard TD run in the fourth quarter to close out the scoring.

North Girls Soccer Ties Barnstable

After opening the season with five straight road games, the North Quincy girls' soccer team hosted its first home game Monday afternoon against Barnstable and came away with a scoreless tie.

North Quincy (3-1-2) traveled to Plymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) and it returns to Veterans Memorial Stadium Tuesday, Oct. 3 to battle rival Quincy at 5 p.m.

Uninspired play characterized the Red Raiders' play in the first half. However, they did generate two excellent scoring chances. Sophomore midfielder Erin McFarland saw her bid from 20 yards out hit the right post and later in the half, sophomore midfielder Rachel Enos broke in alone on the left side but saw her shot smothered by Barnstable's freshman keeper.

The Red Raiders' defense

Barnstable's Christel Kalweit, who has over 70 goals in three years and was recently featured in "Home-town Sports," to just two shots all game.

"Lauren Sleeth, Casey Ridge and McFarland all took turns marking her and each did an excellent job," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "Kalweit is a legitimate Division I prospect next year."

North Quincy came out with an aggressive attack in the second half and dominated play. But its inability to finish scoring chances plagued them. Junior forward Allie Lacey, sophomore midfielder Katie Timmins, senior captain Kellee Conley and sophomore forward Christina Conley all had good chances come up empty.

Kelly Coleman was again a bright spot for North Quincy, playing well at both midfield and forward. Jen Conley showed why she is one of the premiere defenders in EMass as she dominated her side of the field the entire game.

Last Tuesday, North Quincy suffered its first loss of the season, falling to Falmouth, 2-0. The Red Raiders never could get untracked as Falmouth outplayed them for large stretches of the game.

Falmouth scored midway through the first half off a corner kick. Goalkeeper Kathryn MacRitchie appeared to have control of the ball, but was hit in the head by a Falmouth forward and the ball rolled into the net.

Falmouth scored in the second half to close out the scoring. North Quincy did have several players who stood out, including captain Stacy Szczesuil, sophomore midfielder Lisa Schifone, Timmins and junior Caitlin Herlihy.

Presidents Begin League Play With B-R Here

By CHRIS POISSON

Not again.

In the home opener Friday afternoon, the Quincy High School football team had a win almost sewn up, only to watch it quickly unravel as special teams yielded yet another touchdown — its third this young season.

With Quincy clinging to a 7-6 lead, Catholic Memorial's Geoff DeForge returned a punt 62 yards for a touchdown en route to a 14-7 non-league triumph at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Last season, DeForge returned an interception 60 yards for a touchdown in a win over Quincy.

The Presidents (0-2) will try to bounce back tomorrow

(Friday) night when they host Bridgewater-Raynham at 7 p.m. as Old Colony League play gets underway.

"The punt return just kills you," said head coach Bob Noble. "It destroys everything you're doing. We just can't do that any more. That kid just picked it up and proceeded to run through 11 people. Kids with speed kill us."

In the season opener, Quincy could have defeated Randolph, but two kickoff returns for touchdowns buried any chance it had. The team is clearly frustrated as it continues to stand on the threshold of becoming a winning team.

"I'm getting kind of sick of tough ones," Noble said. "Again, I know we're competitive, but I'm tired of being competitive. I want to win some games. The kids want to win some games. They know they're this close. And it's very frustrating to be that close. And this is a carry-over from last year. We were that close last year."

In the first half, both teams had trouble moving the ball as each committed a turnover. Midway through the second quarter, Quincy lost starting tailback Paul Desmond to an injury and without its fastest player in the lineup, the offense suffered. In the season opener, the tri-captain gained 127 yards on 16 carries.

The half ended in a scoreless tie when Catholic Memorial missed a 38-yard field goal, but Quincy got on the board on its first possession in the third.

Facing a fourth-and-22 play inside CM territory, junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano (8 of 10, 81 yards, INT) stepped up into the pocket to avoid a sack and spotted wideout Gregg Walsh wide open coming across the middle for a 29-yard touchdown pass with 2:56 left in the quarter.

Catholic Memorial answered when running back L.V. Whitworth rumbled his way for a 39-yard touchdown with two seconds left in the frame. Paul Shannon missed the extra point and Quincy held a 7-6 lead going into the fourth before DeForge's game-winning punt return for a touchdown.

The Presidents had a chance to pull out a win in the end. On their final drive, they marched 62 yards, converting on a fourth down and two third downs to reach Catholic Memorial's 7-yard line. But on third-and-goal, Lorenzano fumbled after taking a hit from behind and Catholic Memorial recovered.

"We have a kid that's going to be a heck of a quarterback for us," Noble said. "But to a certain degree he's inexperienced. He has to learn that in a situation like that he has to get rid of the football. You have to try to make a play. You can't eat it. But he's going to become another outstanding quarterback at Quincy High School. I'm very pleased with him."

"It's frustrating," he added. "We're not bad. We're not great, either. But we're a solid team. We're going to fight and scrap with you. We play with a lot of spirit. We go right down to the end with people. We're 0-2, where we could very well be 2-0."

Granite Fill QB Void, Down Providence 14-7

The Quincy Granite was missing something when they faced the Eastern Football League's two premiere teams recently — a real quarterback.

Mike Thomas has been signed to a tryout for Vince McMahon's new football league, the XFL, and he has to watch from the sidelines the rest of the season as he can't risk injury. In his absence, Quincy brought in a running back from last year, Dan Abraham, for a game, and used wide receiver Derrick Epps for another.

The result: Marlboro and Middleboro hammered Quincy by a combined score of 70-0 in consecutive weeks.

Saturday night, Quincy finally got its No. 1 guy back. Liam Higgins, last year's starting QB who sustained a head injury in the preseason, returned to the gridiron for the first time this season and engineered Quincy to a 14-7 triumph over the Providence Prowlers (5-4) in the season finale at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"We came together," said head coach Ken McPhee. "Offensively we moved the ball better. Not as good as we would like, but it was better. Providence has a little stingy defense. They play tough."

"Hey, now we're in the playoffs," he added.

Quincy (6-4) will have this weekend off and then it will travel to Middleboro (8-1) Saturday, Oct. 7 at 7 p.m. to battle the Cobras in the first round of the playoffs.

Against Providence, Quincy got off to a slow start. After going three-and-out on its first possession, tailback Jackson Vetiack fumbled on the first play of the second series at his 18-yard line. Four plays later, Providence capitalized as quarterback Phil Naismith threw a 4-yard TD pass with 1:55 left in the first quarter for a 7-0 lead.

After struggling to find his rhythm early on, Higgins found his groove in the second quarter as he capped an 8:22 drive with a 31-yard TD strike to Epps to even the game at 7 with 1:54 left in the half. He completed 4-of-4 passes for 67 yards on the drive.

"How can you rate his game anything but excellent," said McPhee, as Higgins finished the game 11 of 21 for 152 yards with no interceptions.

In the second half, Quincy marched 77 yards on the opening drive to take a 14-7 lead. On third-and-7 at the Providence 49, Higgins found Brian Vaughn out of the backfield for 36 yards down to the 13. On the next play, Vetiack made a beautiful cutback near the right sideline and scampered into the end zone for the touchdown with 8:44 left in the third.

"Oh, wasn't that unbelievable," McPhee said. "He made No. 99 [defensive end Brian Watson] miss. He was there and he just fell down. It was a great play. He's a great player."

Providence got the ball back three more times with a shot to tie the game, but the Granite defense tightened as linebacker Ozia Robinson recovered a fumble and cornerback Troy Parks intercepted a pass to seal the game.

North Quincy Teams Defeat Plymouth South

Cross - Country

The North Quincy boys' and girls' cross-country teams got back in the win column last week with wins over Plymouth South at Pageant Field.

Jeff Bartoloni and Brian Breslin finished first and second, respectively, in the 3.1-mile course to lead the boys (1-1) to a 22-36 win. John Fidalgo came in fifth and Steve Barkowski sixth. Will Gardner (eighth) and Paul Griffith (ninth) closed out the top 10.

In the girls meet, Plymouth South's Erin Colligan took first place, but the next five spots went to North Quincy as it earned an easy 20-39 win to improve to 1-1. Natalie Caron, Brenna O'Brien, Linda Nguyen, Beth Goodrich and Meghan Haines grabbed the two through six spots. Lisa Rubino (eighth) rounded out the top 10.

The freshman girls ran a 1.6-mile race with Meghan Sidorowicz coming out as the winner. Kara Culpin, Danielle LaRose, Lily Luo and Emily Walsh also ran well.

"We have a lot of work to do," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "But the bright spots were Brenna O'Brien and Beth Goodrich, both freshmen placing in the top five. Meghan Haines and Lisa Rubino are also improving nicely."

North Quincy traveled to Silver Lake Tuesday and it will host Falmouth today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Pageant Field before participating in the Manchester Invitational in New Hampshire Saturday.

Quincy Girls Picks Up 4th Win

The Quincy High School girls' volleyball team picked up its fourth win of the season Monday by knocking off Plymouth South, 15-1, 15-9. Senior outside hitter Ilana Saxe led the Presidents' attack with seven kills and three digs. Co-captain Jacqui Niosi added eight assists, five digs and two service aces, while Diane Gilbody had three service aces.

Quincy faced Brockton Tuesday and Bridgewater-Raynham yesterday (Wednesday).

Last week, Quincy defeated Whitman-Hanson and Taunton before losing to Barnstable Friday. In the 15-12, 15-6 win over Taunton, co-captain Christina Keenan powered Quincy with seven kills, three blocks and two service aces. Niosi tallied 12 assists and five digs, while

Volleyball

Saxe added three kills, four service aces and four digs. Sophomore outside hitter Stephanie Fiandaca cranked out three service aces and seven digs.

In the 15-12, 15-5 win over Whitman-Hanson, Keenan again led the way with eight kills, while Niosi set up 18 assists, two service aces and five digs. Saxe and Fiandaca combined for 13 kills. Gilbody added two service aces, five digs and four kills.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you know your hands can and do betray your thoughts? For example, clapping hands express agreement. Fists express rage. Fidgeting hands express discontent, inhibitions. Doctors watch the hands of patients for tell-tale signs. Well-trained detectives watch the hands of a suspect during questioning.

One of the nation's top sales managers told how he schools his salesmen to interpret hand actions of customers. His men stop making statements when hands are pocketed, clasped or hidden. They start asking questions to re-open and enliven the mind. He cited the picturesque pose of old Chinese philosophers. Their characteristic pose shows arms folded across the chest, hands hidden in flowing sleeves. The philosophers knew, centuries ago, the hand could indicate the thinking of the mind.

A tiny baby can certainly tell you whether he wants something offered to him. Open, outstretched hands indicate acceptance. Clenched hands close to the body indicate rejection. Even a baby, without realizing it, relays inner mind thinking with the hands. We thought the idea was worth passing along to both salesmen . . . and buyers . . .

Pre-arranging: peace of mind for every family

ONE GUARANTEE TWO OPTIONS

As early as 1940, we began helping families pre-arrange their funeral expenses. So, the concept is not new to us. But today, there are payment options that some funeral homes don't offer.

Irrevocable Trusts—Many financially secure persons appreciate making one payment or several payments over a short time period. For these persons, we can offer an interest-free plan and payments spread over twelve months. (Endorsed by Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a way to reduce assets and meet state and federal requirements for Medicaid or nursing home care.)

Flexible, Tax-Free Insurance Plans—Budgeting your payments over additional time offers an affordable way for other families to pre-arrange. We can help structure an individualized plan with reasonable premiums, payable within three, five or ten years.

With either pre-arrangement option, protection begins immediately. Since 1917, we've provided the highest degree of understanding and personal assistance to South Shore families. Call us at 617-773-2728 for a free pre-arrangement consultation. We'll help find a plan that suits your family's individual needs.

Call (617) 786-SHOW (7469)

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Too much daydreaming could cause you to lose momentum on your current project. Stick with it until it's done. Then indulge in some well-earned woolgathering.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your common sense is warning you to be cautious about committing to a new romantic situation. Listen to your head before you give in to your heart.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You still need to be wary of potential schemers who are prepared to double-talk their way into your confidence. Continue to avoid being pulled into workplace intrigues.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Single or attached Moon Children can expect to see their relationships grow stronger this week. A misunderstanding might create confusion for a while, but it is soon explained away.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Be ready to expand your new career situation as opportunities start to come your way. Personal relationships are favored for both single and attached Leos and Leonas.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A family member shows distress at something you said. Reach out to comfort and reassure your loved one so that the wound can be healed and your relationship restored.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Education looms large in your career aspect this week. Take the time to learn more so you can soon earn more. Also, make time for a long-overdue fun family weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This week can put even your well-developed sense of self-control to the test. Be careful about overindulging in anything, including food, fun—or even work.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A flurry of demands might fluster the usually calm and cool Archer. Instead of trying to deal with them all at once, target just one at a time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You Gorgeous Goats need to take some time away from the hectic pace of your workday world and kick up your heels with some well-earned fun and games.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone who was once a part of your life might be trying to reconcile with you. Spend time getting to know each other again before rushing into any commitment.

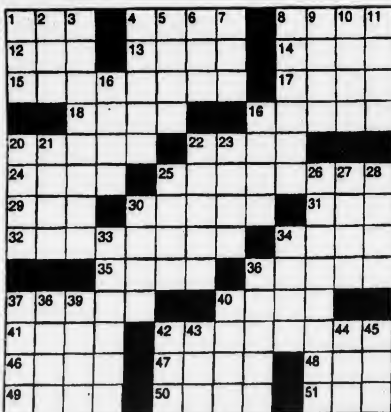

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Some opportunities might demand changes in your life that you're reluctant to consider. But be flexible and avoid making a decision until you know all the details.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have a pioneering spirit that encourages you to look beyond the here and now, and toward whatever might lie beyond the horizon.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

FORMER C.J. PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY
REAR 221-227 QUINCY AVENUE
QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
RTN 3-1902

Pursuant to the Massachusetts Contingency Plan, 310 CMR 40.0705 and 40.0707, a Tier I Permit transfer application has been submitted to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) at the Northeast Regional Office in Wilmington, Massachusetts, for the above-referenced site.

This Site has been classified as Tier IB, pursuant to 310 CMR 40.0500. The permit was originally assigned to Bethlehem Steel for the above referenced Site. The application will transfer the permit from Bethlehem Steel to the city of Quincy. Response actions at this Site will be conducted by the city of Quincy who has employed Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc. represented by Mr. Prasanta K. Bhunia, Ph. D., LSP, to manage response actions in accordance with the MCP.

Additionally, an Immediate Response Action Plan (IRA) Plan has been submitted to DEP. The IRA Plan describes the relocation and capping of fill materials that will be completed prior to construction of a new High School.

As this Site is a Public Involvement Plan (PIP) Site, the city of Quincy, as the new Permit holder, will continue with the PIP requirements, 310 CMR 40.1400. Previously public meetings have been held at the Community Room in the Roche Brothers Supermarket at 101 Falls Boulevard in Quincy, Massachusetts. A public meeting to present the IRA Plan will be held at the same location, on October 18 at 7:00 p.m. Copies of the IRA Plan are available for review at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Reference Department, 40 Washington Street, Quincy, Massachusetts.

To obtain more information on this site and the IRA Plan, please forward correspondence or e-mail to the attention of Mr. Kerry R. Tull, Project Manager, Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc., 5 Centennial Dr., Peabody, Massachusetts 01960. The Internet e-mail address for Mr. Tull is tullk@wseinc.com.

Marriott Hotel Set To Open In Spring

constructed so as you drive up Marriott Drive into the garage and then end up on the fourth floor, which is at the same level as the hotel.

He said the main lobby will have a restaurant with an open kitchen concept and to the right an Irish Pub.

McFarland said there are two model rooms already completed and could be shown to the board at any time. However, Shea said he would probably wait until January when there will be more to see.

Paul V. Puzanghero, general manager of the Marriott in Newton will be general manager of the Quincy Marriott within the next four weeks, he said.

Puzanghero compared the Marriott in Newton to the one in Quincy where there will be 465 guest rooms versus 435 in Newton. He said the function room will be 1,500 square feet.

Puzanghero said this is the first hotel built in nine years in Massachusetts and said it was a "privilege to be granted a license in Quincy."

Others addressing the group were Marty Joyce, director of sales and marketing; Mark Jeffrey, director of food and beverage; and Richard Sharp, director of loss prevention. (formerly known as security).

Joyce said the restaurant will seat 175 persons and serve breakfast, lunch and dinner. He said adjacent to the restaurant will be an Irish Pub which will seat 50 persons. It will serve fish and chips, and many Irish specialties.

Joyce said the lounge will seat 38 persons and also be used as a coffee bar in the morning and an oyster bar and cocktails in the afternoon.

He said the grand ballroom will have 10,000 square feet and will be able to seat 850 persons for a sit down dinner if needed. He said a 2600 square foot junior ballroom will also be available.

Jeffrey told the board that all employees will attend a mandatory TIPS training course. He said anyone looking under 35 years of age will be carded. He said identification could include a passport or military ID. He said a monitor will be in the front entrance and that those employed by room service will also be responsible to card and ask for an ID.

He said the last call for ordering liquor will be half hour before the 2 a.m. closing time.

Sharp told the board that security will be available 24 hours a day, seven days a week and they will also be TIPS trained. He said his department would meet with other staff members regularly. He said no alcoholic beverages could be brought into the hotel, but would have to be purchased inside.

Shea said "we have been hearing about the hotel for a long time" and added "this is a big step today."

Shea said the application would now go before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. (ABCC) for approval.

Firechief Thomas Gorman said the policy of the license board is usually to have two hearings when a first time liquor license is requested. But he said the reason this license was issued on the first try was that the abutter is the landlord of the Marriott, Thomas Flatley plus the fact that the City Council already had a public hearing.

McFarland said they hope the hotel would be open between May 15 and June 1, 2001.

In Just Seven Hours:

A Playground Is Born In Germantown

More than 500 CNA employees, community volunteers and families from the surrounding area hammered and sawed Saturday to build a new, safe playground -- from the ground up -- at Quincy's Snug Harbor Community School. The school serves 450 students from preschool through grade five.

Volunteers began working at 8 a.m. and seven hours later celebrated the playground's completion with a ribbon-cutting ceremony. Mayor James Sheets was among several local officials participating in the festivities.

CNA has joined forces with Snug Harbor, Germantown Neighborhood Council and South Shore YMCA as part of the KaBOOM! LET US PLAY campaign. KaBOOM! has committed to building or restoring more than 1,000 playgrounds nationwide as part of the campaign. Snug Harbor, Germantown Neighborhood Council and South Shore YMCA served as the community partners for the build, continuing their efforts to enhance the school's environment for children and their families.

"CNA and the numerous CNA employees, families and friends out here today are committed to improving communities -- by working directly with the community," said Christopher Dye, branch president of New England Operations, CNA Commercial Insurance.

West Quincy, Houghs Neck Seen In Running

Fourth Ladder Truck Needed But For Where?

By CRAIG SALTERS

Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman is in full agreement with union leaders and many city councillors that a fourth ladder truck is needed for the city.

He cautioned, however, that debate as to where that future ladder truck might go is a bit premature.

"We definitely need a fourth ladder truck," Gorman told the Sun Tuesday. "As to where it goes, that will be decided by myself, the mayor, and the results of the Fire Needs Study."

Gorman said he expected said study to be completed sometime around mid-2001.

Gorman's comments come on the heels of Monday night's meeting of the City Council where William Arienti, president of the Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792, presented a report outlining the need for a ladder truck in South and West Quincy.

In a brief overview to councillors, Arienti touched upon: budget cuts of the early 1990's which brought the city's number of ladder trucks from five to its current three; the economic boom in West Quincy which has caused a dramatic increase in its "fireload" (the amount of flammable structures in an area); and current OFD problems such as response time during peak traffic hours and the wear and tear on fire fighting apparatus.

Arienti's report also presented a revised financial plan which estimated the total cost of re-activating Ladder 3 in West Quincy -- consisting of $650,000 for the purchase of a specially designed truck to fit West Quincy's station and $861,640 for personnel costs -- at $1,511,640, much less than earlier projections of over $2 million.

Throughout his remarks Arienti hammered home one point consistently: "The Quincy Fire Department is stretched to its limits. A fourth ladder truck is needed for this city."

When questioned by Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley -- who introduced a resolve recently proposing the re-activation of a ladder truck in Houghs Neck -- whether a similar needs study might be done in that area, Arienti said the two reports would be "identical" except for the increased development in South and West Quincy, adding that fireload concerns dictated the next ladder truck be sta-

Hat Rack Remains Open Pending Appeal

By CRAIG SALTERS

After hearing roughly six hours of testimony from both sides regarding alleged drug use and gambling at the establishment, the License Board voted 5-0 to revoke the liquor license and all other licenses of the Hat Rack Bar in Brewer's Corner.

The bar, however, remains open pending an appeal to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

Attorney Louis Cassis, who represents the Hat Rack and its owner, Donna Hatfield of Pembroke, said a decision on the appeal could be reached as soon as late October or early November. "I'm pretty confident," Cassis said of the appeal, noting that the ABCC does not review the decision of the Quincy board so much as decide the case anew on its own merits.

The revocation of the Hat Rack's liquor license comes after License Board meetings Sept. 19 and 28 to decide the fate of the bar following an Aug. 11 raid by the Quincy Police Department which netted nine arrests on various drug and gambling charges.

Assistant City Solicitor James Timmons -- using testimony from Det. Sgt. Patrick Glynn, Det. Mark Foley, and Det. John Kelly as well as Community Police Officer Timothy Sorgi and Lt. Robert Perchard, the city's liquor inspector -- successfully made the case that, as the license holder, Hatfield either "knew or should have known" that illegal activity was taking place at the bar and, therefore, should forfeit her license.

Cassis used the same testimony, along with several character witnesses who spoke on behalf of Donna Hatfield and her husband

James Hatfield, Jr., to contend that the Hatfields had been cooperative with the police only to be targeted by a political system intent on the bar's removal.

"This is a political lynching," charged Cassis at the hearing, later remarking that he might as well have been "talking to the chairs" during his summation. "You will do what the city apparatus demands that you do, despite the evidence."

Police Chief Thomas Frane took exception to the charge, stating that the board's decision was based solely on evidence, specifically the illegal narcotics and gaming activity recorded by officers between July 21 and Aug. 11 of this year, including cocaine buys made by undercover Quincy police officers.

Fellow board member and Inspectional Services Director Walter White agreed. "No politician has asked to influence my vote," White said. "This is a very difficult vote and I take it very seriously."

Other board members include: City Clerk Joseph Shea, chairman of the License Board; Fire Chief Thomas Gorman; and Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue.

During the three-hour hearing Thursday, Cassis said that, on several occasions, the Hatfields had brought concerns of drug use at the bar to Community Police Officer Sorgi, even providing the police with a list of nicknames of suspected individuals. Despite their efforts, Cassis said, the Hatfields received no response until the night of the raid. "These people did what they were supposed to do," Cassis said. "They got slapped in the face for trying."

Not so, countered Timmons, who said the Hatfields provided "vague and useless" information already known to the police in an attempt to paint themselves as cooperative. Why, Timmons asked, did the Hatfields provide partial names such as "Tex" or "Linda" or "Hector" when it is common state practice for bartenders to ID customers? And why, asked Timmons, did the Hatfields not speak to the city's drug unit or police chief themselves, or keep in contact with Officer Sorgi despite having his beeper and business card?

As for why the Hatfields were not included more in the investigation of their bar, Timmons explained that the Hatfields were the target of the investigation.

Tax Classification Still A Burning Issue For Business

With two months to go before new percentages are set, the tax classification percentage for commercial property is still an issue for Quincy business leaders.

The Quincy Business Council was scheduled to meet Wednesday at 8 a.m. at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Rd., to discuss the current commercial tax classification and how to have a say in the classification percentage for next year.

In an effort to create useful dialogue, said QBC Chairman Anthony Agnitti, Mayor James Sheets and all nine city councillors have been invited to attend the meeting.

Going into the meeting, Agnitti said that the most important goal for QBC members was that, this year, their voices be heard. "Last year councillors said they weren't aware of our (business leaders') opinion on the issue," Agnitti said. "So, this year, we'll make them aware."

QBC members, Agnitti said, were still upset over last December's City Council vote to increase the tax classification from its decade-long 169 percent to 175 percent, the state maximum, and especially the manner in which it was handled.

"We weren't even allowed to speak," Agnitti said, referring to a special council meeting Dec. 13 where a vote to reconsider and discuss the classification was defeated.

Although Agnitti said the QBC would advocate a return to the 169 percent tax classification -- a percentage Mayor Sheets said he would present to the council, as he did last year -- Agnitti did not want the issue to pit business owners against residents in a battle over the proper tax split. Said Agnitti:

"We're all in this together. If they (the councillors) listen to the logic of the businesses and then the logic of the residents before making their decision, then so be it. But anything less is just not leadership."

Classification, whereby the CIPP (Commercial, Industrial, and Personal Property) is multiplied by a percentage, is a means of shifting the tax burden from residential to commercial property.

The mayor and council are expected to approve the tax classification percentage and tax rates in December.

COPY NO. 1 of Councillor Frank McCauley's book Quincy, Massachusetts, A Political History 1889-2000 was presented to Mayor James Sheets Tuesday morning in the mayor's office. Copies of the former mayor and noted Quincy political historian's 353-page book will be available Saturday beginning at 10 a.m. at the Quincy Historical Society, Adams St. McCauley will be on hand to autograph copies of the book, as he did for Mayor Sheets.

Sheets: No Plans To Cancel Fire Needs Study

Citing its long-term importance for the city, Mayor James Sheets said the $75,000 Fire Needs Study would proceed as planned.

"We're going to move forward with it," Sheets said of the study, which is currently in the RFP (Request for Proposals) stage. "This study will serve as a blueprint for the next 50 years."

Debate over the study's usefulness occurred at Monday night's meeting of the City Council when Councillor Frank McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee, wondered aloud why such a study was necessary when the mayor and the council seemed to be already moving ahead with a $500,000 appropriation for a fourth ladder truck for the city, currently in the Finance Committee.

"The mayor ought to cancel this $75,000 study," McCauley told his colleagues. "We're going to need it to pay for the added personnel we're going to need for this (the ladder truck)."

By McCauley's figures in a recent financial report to the city, the costs associated with a fourth QFD ladder truck would be in excess of $2 million.

Speaking on the study itself, Sheets argued that the Fire Needs Study was essential not only to the long-term planning of the city's public safety needs but its financial needs as well.

Faxon House Gets Indefinite Stay

The Faxon House detox center has been granted an indefinite reprieve by Quincy Medical Center.

The hospital had given the center until last Saturday, Sept. 30, to find a new home but no new deadline for the 32-bed alcohol treatment center to leave the medical center building has been set.

"We all know that the Sept. 30 deadline was not valid," said hospital spokesman Kris Danna.

"We are now working with Faxon House to facilitate a move."

Faxon House officials are negotiating for space at the former Robin House nursing home on Elm Street in Quincy or the Resthaven nursing home on Quincy Avenue, East Braintree.

The Quincy Interfaith Association had asked hospital officials to let the detox center stay until Jan. 1 but Danna said no new deadline has been worked out.

The original date of Sept. 15 was extended to Sept. 30 by Quincy Medical Center management when Faxon House Director Shawn Sheehan came up with the two possible alternative sites.

The detox center was asked to leave because hospital officials feared for the safety of detox patients in the building at 150 Whitwell St. on the hospital grounds.

A fund-raiser of entertainment and food to aid Faxon House in making the move will be held Wednesday, Nov. 1 at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy. Tickets are $50 apiece,

Quincy High School Copes With Loss Of Classmate

Quincy High School students were informed Monday by Principal Robert Keuther of the death of a 9th grade classmate at home over the weekend.

Superintendent Eugene Creedon said that appropriate procedures were being followed to provide counseling to those students who may have difficulty in dealing with the tragedy.

As of press time, no other information was available.

Cronin Will Be Back

Quincy's Mary Ellen Cronin wasn't a winner in the Sept. 19th primary but she looks like one for the future.

She'll be back and maybe as soon as next year's city election.

Making her political debut, she lost the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County Register of Deeds to a veteran campaigner, City Council President and former state Senator Paul Harold.

But topped another political veteran, County Commissioner Peter Collins of Milton, the third Register of Deeds contender in the primary election.

"I was very pleased with the results for a first time run," she says.

And, should be.

She took eight of the 28 communities in the county, including Brookline, a prize in any county campaign, edging Harold there.

She also won in Dedham, Dover, Franklin, Needham, Norfolk, Plainville and Wellesley and tied with Collins 128-128 in Westwood.

Cronin, who is an attorney and chairwoman of the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals polled 9,203 votes in a county-wide light turnout.

Harold had 13,816 and Collins 7,151.

"I campaigned hard for five months," Cronin says. "I am very proud of my campaign and my people who worked very hard for me and kept me going. They were a good mix -- both women and men."

And some, she says, are already urging her to run again and promising to help if she does.

Could it be next year's city election?

"If the right opportunity comes along locally, I would look at it," she says.

She lives on Elmwood Ave. in Ward 3.

Would she run for that seat if incumbent Patrick McDermott ran at-large? Or maybe run at-large herself?

"I'm keeping my options open," she says. "I'm not closing the door on anything. I never say never."

Cronin would bring more woman power to the local political scene which many think is needed.

Only three women hold elective office today: JoAnn Bragg, Christine Cedrone and Linda Stice, all members of the school committee.

The city council is all-male.

CRONIN

Only three women in the city's 111-year history have been elected to the city council: Edna Austin, Joanne Condon and Patricia Toland.

And the first woman mayor is still nowhere in sight. Someone like Cronin could make things a little more interesting on the local scene.

She says she really enjoyed that first campaign.

Has she been bitten by the political bug?

"Yes, I think I have been," she laughs.

Sounds like it feels good.

But, no, Paul Harold isn't running for that job. He's still a candidate for Register of Deeds.

The sign isn't in Quincy or Norfolk County. It's in McClellan County, Tex. The photo was sent along by Joseph Fasci, formerly of Quincy now living in Granbury, Tex., who keeps tabs on his hometown with a mail subscription to The Sun. He thought Paul and our readers would get a kick out of the sign.

Joe, incidentally, participated in the recent VA Golden Age Games patterned after The Olympics in Topeka, Kan. Some 423 men and women competed, the oldest 89 and the average age 68.

Joe won a gold medal but forgot to tell us what for. Obviously it wasn't in the Sharpest Memory competition.

LEO KELLY may be getting ready to return to the political scene. Kelly, who was elected to six terms in the City Council and served two terms as council president, admits he is looking at next year's city election.

"I think I might run," he says. "Especially if there's an open seat. I'll be looking it over either way."

Kelly has been keeping busy lately as chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission which produced a survey and then the popular "A Guide To Quincy's Beaches" booklet.

Ordinance Would Define 'Half-Story' In Single Family Homes

An ordinance clarifying the "two-and-one-half" story limit currently on the books for Residence A single-family homes was proposed by Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

The proposed ordinance, tabled at a previous council meeting, would eliminate the need to obtain building variances for homeowners whose third levels were in keeping with the defined requirements.

Although city ordinances state that single-family homes can be two and one-half stories, the city has no definition of "half-story" and city building codes define "story" as the space between a floor and the ceiling and/or roof above it, making variances for third level construction work necessary, explained Walter White, director of Inspection Services.

If approved, a "half-story" would be defined as a level having a "knee wall" -

- the wall which meets the slope of a pitched roof -- of three feet or less.

"This clarifies an ambiguity in the zoning ordinance," said John Keenan, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, at the Sept. 25 meeting.

Hanley's ordinance was referred to both the Ordinance Committee of the City Council and to the Planning Board.

The original intention behind the "half-story" designation, White said, was either lost over the years or never officially recorded in the first place.

James Buchanan was the only United States president never to marry.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1906 postcard view of the US Battleship Rhode Island (BB-17) which was launched in 1904 at the Fore River shipyard with its sister ship the New Jersey. They were the first battleships built at the yard and at 15,000 tons they were considered the huge ships in their day. In 1907 the Rhode Island joined the Great White Fleet of the US Navy on a one-year round-the-world tour demonstrating both good will and America's might to friends and adversaries alike. After serving with the Atlantic fleet in WWI the battleships made five crossings of the Atlantic as a transport bringing home more than 5,000 US troops. She was decommissioned in June 1920.

Hardtopping Front Lawns For Parking Cars Tacky Idea

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I await the upcoming November Quincy City Council meeting when the issue of cars on lawns and front yards comes up for discussion. Already on the books is an ordinance prohibiting the placement of cars on lawns but, if you look around the city, that ordinance is constantly being broken.

Now the city council will be taking up the issue of hardtopping front lawns for cars. Personally, whether you hardtop or just kill your grass, don't cars belong in driveways or in front of your residence? Sadly, to say an ordinance is even necessary says just how far removed we have come from my childhood memories when common sense seemed far more prevalent than it obviously is today.

This tacky idea that seems to be growing quite popular is a bad idea for Quincy and our quality of life. City councilors apparently are divided over this issue. Some feel that citizens have a right to do with their private property as they wish. Some feel it is proper and right to have some standards set about things like killing your lawn to rest your sleeping car. And some are sitting on the fence looking at the driveways and lawns, wondering what to do. Quincy is a nice family-oriented community. We take pride in our neighborhoods and we try to keep them looking good.

While I'm not usually in favor of government butting their noses into our lives, I truly believe if folks are allowed to blacktop lawns, it will only hurt our city.

The City of Quincy needs to pass an ordinance that would prevent folks from turning our city into an auto landfill. We shouldn't need such an ordinance because folks should know better but a community has a right to set certain baseline standards and our city council needs to do just that. The Montclair neighborhood is fighting a gas station at the Newport Ave. Stop & Shop. If the neighborhood wins or loses, the impact is on them alone. However, cars on lawns affect every ward of this city; every neighborhood will be, to some degree, negatively impacted.

Cars don't belong on lawns anymore than trees should be planted in the middle of a roadway. Call your city councilor and tell them where they can't put the cars. This debate is such a silly one because we shouldn't even be having it.

The Jimmy Fund Salutes Stop And Shop's Bill Grize

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I am writing to acknowledge the exceptional leadership and dedication of Bill Grize, president and CEO of the Stop and Shop Supermarket Company, who will be moving on as president and CEO of AHOLD USA, the parent company of Stop & Shop.

During his tenure, Bill has played an instrumental role in the success of the Stop & Shop/Boston Red Sox Triple Winner Program. To date, the program has raised more than $13 million to help children and families fight cancer. Because of this, Stop & Shop has become the single largest corporate supporter for Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

We are very fortunate to have worked with Bill on the Triple Winner Program. It has become a monumental weapon in the fight against cancer. Without his leadership, passion and commitment, the Triple Winner program would not be soaring to its new height of more than $3 million in its most recent campaign. In fact, Stop & Shop and Bill were recognized recently with the Thomas A. and Jean R. Yawkey Memorial Award. This award, presented every year by the Boston Red Sox, is the highest honor bestowed on any Jimmy Fund supporter.

We salute Bill Grize and wish him well in his new endeavor, and applaud the Stop and Shop Supermarket Company for their long term commitment to the life saving mission of Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and the Jimmy Fund.

Federal Experts To Inspect Elms

By PAUL HAROLD

City Forester Warren Stewart said that experts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture would visit the city to inspect the city's 7,500 Elm trees for evidence of Dutch Elm disease.

It appeared that the disease had spread city-wide, with symptoms of the disease found in trees at Safford Park and the homes of Henry Faxon on Adams St. and Councilor Clifton Baker on Pines St. State inspectors here earlier in the week hurried off to Beverly when an outbreak of the disease was reported there.

QUINCY MAN HONORED BY NAVY

Lt. Commander Charles Gunnels, Jr. of Fairmount Way was honored by the Navy at Annapolis with the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross. He was credited with dropping the last bomb over Japan. He was with the Bombing Fighting Squadron 67, attached to the USS Ticonderoga.

Gunnels was a graduate of Annapolis. His first assignment was with the USS California that was destroyed at Pearl Harbor. He was assigned to Quincy for the commissioning of the USS Massachusetts, where he met his wife Phyllis O'Brien of the Fairmount Way address.

FENNO STREET WIDENING OPPOSED

At City Hall, Fenno Street residents voiced vigorous and unified opposition to the proposed widening of the street from Hancock to Thornton Streets. Eighty-eight residents signed a petition against the project, with no one in support.

It was argued that the widening would remove 60 trees, destroy front lawns and gardens, would depress property values and would create a speedway.

Raffael's Presents 'A Grand Night For Singing'

Quincy-based JM Productions and Raffael's Restaurant are staging Rodgers and Hammerstein's A Grand Night For Singing tonight (Thursday), its fourth in a series of six musical revues in a dinner theatre format for Quincy residents.

Other show dates include Oct. 11, 12, 25, and 26. Dinner for all shows begins at 6:30 p.m.

The Quincy production is directed by John F. McDonald, Jr., and stars five singers from the Boston and South Shore area: Ramone Robinson of Randolph, David Costa of South Dartmouth, Lauren Dooley of Somerville, Caitlyn McKay of Norwood, and Allison Couture of Bridgewater. Rob Goldman of Norwood is the musical director and accompanist for the production.

An entire evening's entertainment is centrally located at Raffael's Dinner Theatre. Patrons will find free parking at the complex and a ticket price that includes the evening's performance, dinner, tax, and gratuity. Additionally, guests can enjoy an after-dinner cocktail or coffee in the piano bar lounge with professional singers immediately after each performance. Raffael's has long had a reputation as an elegant and sophisticated restaurant on the South Shore. The beautiful views of Boston and the harbor from the new Skyline Room are a major attraction to Raffael's, as are the fine cuisine and service.

Ticket prices for all evening performances are $40 per person. Credit card purchases are available by calling Raffael's during normal restaurant business hours at (617) 328-1600. For additional information, patrons can call JM Productions directly at (617) 786-SHOW (7469).

KISS ME KATE, with Cole Porter hit songs, will open at Eastern Nazarene College Oct. 12 at 7 p.m. Shown in a scene from the backstage musical are Emily Plank as Bianca, Michael Caulfield as Petruchio and Maureen Wall as Kate.

(Becky Galbraith Photo)

ENC Opens Season With 'Kiss Me, Kate'

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will present the backstage musical, Kiss Me Kate, Oct. 12-13, 19-21 at 7 p.m. and Oct. 14 at 6 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Cole Porter's hit songs include "Another Op'nin, Another Show," "Wunderbar," "Too Darn Hot," and "Brush Up Your Shakespeare." Kiss Me, Kate opens the college's 2000-2001 Theatre Season as it celebrates 25 years of theatre at ENC. In addition, the musical is an integral part of Eastern Nazarene College's Centennial Celebration.

Fred Graham, played by senior Michael Caulfield, is an egotistical stage actor who is producing a musical version of Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew at Ford's Theatre in Baltimore. He recruits movie star Lili Vanessa, played by senior Maureen Wall, his acerbic ex-wife, to play the lead part of Katharine opposite his Petruchio. Sparks fly on stage and off as the actors' post-marital battles parallel Shakespeare's plot about the overconfident Petruchio's attempts to "tame" his chosen wife, the beautiful and wealthy, but shrewish Katharine.

Surrounding the warring couple is a cast of colorful characters including some meddlesome gangsters whose hilarious burlesque number, "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," is sure to please young and old alike. The musical numbers take place both in the "real" and "stage" worlds and the action is ingeniously interwoven between the two stories.

Dr. Ronda Rice Winderl, chairman of the Communication Arts Department, will direct and choreograph the musical. Professor Michael Ballard will design the sets and lighting.

Tickets are $10 and can be ordered by calling the box office at (617) 745-3715 or by sending a check to Eastern Nazarene College, Department of Communication Arts, 23 East Elm Ave., Quincy 02170.

Educational matinees are offered Oct. 12, 19 and 20 at 10 a.m. Tickets for those matinees are $6 and require advance reservations. For more information, call the box office at (617) 745-3715.

Emblem Club Craft Fair Sunday

The fourth annual Craft Fair of the Quincy Emblem Club will be held Sunday, Oct. 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St., West Quincy.

Admission for adults is $1 and free for children 12 and under. Parking is free.

A handicapped ramp is available. Refreshments will be served.

Taber Concert Series Begins Sunday

Father Bill's Place will benefit from the first performance of the Taber Concert Series Sunday at 3 p.m. at East Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., Milton.

The concert will feature an afternoon of light romantic chamber music. The performers are: Jane Harrison, oboe; Lynn Salmonsen, piano; Richard Shaughnessy, clarinet; and Scott Woolweaver, viola.

The four musicians, who play in and around the Boston area, will play works of Schumann, Mendelssohn, Bruch, Saint-Seans, and Thompson.

Jane Harrison, oboe, is a member of Arcadian Winds and also plays regularly with Emmanuel Music, Alea III, and the Cantata Singers. She is on the faculty of Boston College, Gordon College, and the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra.

Lynn Salmonsen, piano, has extensive experience as an accompanist and chamber musician in the Boston area. She has performed in Europe as well as with the Britt Festival Orchestra in Oregon.

Richard Shaughnessy, clarinet, has appeared with Emmanuel Music, Handel & Haydn Society, and is the principal clarinetist with the Nashua, New Hampshire Symphony.

Scott Woolweaver, viola, has premiered numerous 20th century works for the viola, many of which were written for him. He has been soloist or guest artist with many organizations across the United States, including the Boston Chamber Music Society, Bay Chamber Concerts, and Handel & Haydn Society. He is presently a member of the Ives String Quartet.

The Taber Concert Series was established in 1998 after a generous donation made possible the purchase of a new piano for the Sanctuary of East Congregational Church. The series features musicians of many styles.

Admission is $10, $8 for students and seniors with $1 of each ticket benefiting Father Bill's Place.

The concert will be followed by a coffee and dessert reception with the artists. All are welcome and the concert is handicap accessible. For additional information, call East Church at (617) 698-0270.

The Squantum Women's Club will meet Thursday, Oct. 12 at noon at the First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd.

It will be hosted by the music and drama committee.

John Wagner, a noted antiques dealer, will discuss antiques and appraise any that are brought to the meeting.

The public is invited to attend at 1:30 p.m.

Sarah Houghton Earns AP Scholar Honors

Sarah Houghton, a graduate of North Quincy High School, recently earned the designation of AP Scholar With Distinction.

The designation signifies that Houghton is one of a unique group of students worldwide who have successfully completed a rigorous series of college-level achievement on Advanced Placement (AP) Examinations.

The "distinction" designation is granted to students who receive an average grade of at least 3.5 on all

AP exams taken and grades of 3 or higher on four or more AP exams on full-year courses.

Houghton also earned the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System Certificate of Mastery based on her MCAS scores. The certificate earns free tuition if a student decides to attend a public university or college.

Houghton is in the Bio-Tap Commonwealth College Program at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, studying pre-med.

DAVID MURPHY and AMY MADDEN

Amy Madden Engaged To David Murphy

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Madden of Quincy announce the engagement of their daughter, Amy Elizabeth Madden, to David C. Murphy, both of Quincy.

Miss Madden is a graduate of Notre Dame Academy and has earned a bachelor's degree from Providence College. She is a teacher in the town of Weymouth.

Mr. Murphy is a graduate of Boston College High School and holds a bachelor's degree from Suffolk University. He is employed as a program manager with the city of Quincy.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Murphy of Quincy.

An August, 2001 wedding is planned.

Program Ideas Topic of QJC Meeting

Mark Niedergang, a consultant working for Combined Jewish Philanthropies, will attend the Quincy Jewish Committee meeting scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the community room of Roche Bros., Falls Blvd.

Niedergang will help brainstorm, develop, and build on program ideas for the coming year which could become part of a grant from Combined Jewish Philanthropies.

While Combined Jewish Philanthropies is especially interested in seeing programs that might engage families with children and younger people, it wants to support programming designed and developed by the Quincy Jewish Committee.

For more information, call (617) 984-0502.

Quincy Art Exhibit At Renaissance Coffee And Tea

The Quincy Art Association is exhibiting 25 paintings at the Renaissance Coffee and Tea Emporium, 45 Billings Rd., North Quincy, through October.

The public is invited to a water color demonstration by Michael Domina on Tuesday, Oct. 10 at the Quincy Art Association center on High School Ave. A general meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., followed by the demonstration at 8 p.m. The event is free and refreshments will be served.

Members' art work will be on display Nov. 11 through Dec. 9 at the Church Street Winery exhibition rooms in Raynham. The exhibit, "Vintage and the Arts," is free. The public is invited to attend the opening reception Sunday, Nov. 12 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Julia Wilkinson To Attend 4-H Congress in Atlanta

Julia Wilkinson of Quincy, a junior at the Norfolk County Agricultural High School, has been chosen as one of 19 teens to represent Massachusetts at the National 4-H Congress in Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 24-28.

The congress is an intensive program focusing on leadership development, community service learning and formation of "back home" action plans to address current youth issues. This year's theme is "Make a Difference."

Wilkinson is a four-year member and secretary of her local 4-H club, a Special Olympics volunteer, a member of the high school volleyball team and rides with the Equine Club.

Over 6,000 Enjoy Quincy ArtsFest

More than 6,000 people enjoyed the third annual Quincy ArtsFest held recently in Merrymount Park.

The event featured more than 320 works of art and photography from the area's finest artists and photographers.

"On behalf of the organizing committee for Quincy ArtsFest, I would like to congratulate all of our winners and participating artists," said Thomas Koch, executive director of Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments. "I was most impressed with the amazing artistic talents of our local community. This was the best showing we have had in three years of the Quincy ArtsFest."

This year's show also featured a variety of live entertainment all weekend long including: Made in the Shade, Forbes School of Irish Dance, Riverside Theater Works, Joe Lundbohm, Chris Bonoli Band, and Blossom the Clown. There were activities for children including rock-painting, cookie-decorating, and mini-sailboat decorating.

This year's Quincy ArtsFest was sponsored by the Quincy Art Association, the Quincy Park & Recreation Departments, and the Best Western-Adams Inn.

"I would like to thank the City of Quincy and the Best Western-Adams Inn for making the success of this show possible," said Anet Paglierani of the Quincy Art Association. "In just three short years, we have teamed with them to create a show that gets better and better each year. I hope the Quincy Art Association can continue to work with them in the years to come."

Added Barry Welch, director of the Quincy Recreation Department: "This year's Quincy ArtsFest was a huge success. The weather was great, the crowds were remarkable, and the art on display was tremendous. It's going to be a challenge trying to top this show next year."

This year's winners from the Juried Art Show included:

Best of Show: Paul Lindstrom.

Oil and Acrylic, first place: Kris Kreitman.

Pastel and Drawing, first place: Tony Andrade.

Watercolor, first place: Mary A. Smith.

Mixed Media, first place: Phyllis Andrade.

Best Quincy Painting, first place: Lisa Mazey.

This year's winners from the Juried Photography Show included:

Best of Show: Michelle Kelly.

Best Color, first place: Marie Doland.

Best Black and White, first place: Meredith Wodzinski.

Best Digital, first place: Peggy Roth Major.

Best Young Photographer: Dottie Jones.

The Quincy Art Association Members' Show winners included:

Oil and Acrylic, first place: Stanley Mikal.

Pastel and Drawing, first place: Edwina Caci.

Watercolor, first place: Virginia Wilson.

Mixed Media, first place: Marilyn Reisberg.

Quincy Cultural Council Receives $49,766 Grant

The Quincy Cultural Council has received a $49,766 grant from the Massachusetts Cultural Council, announces Sen. Michael Morrissey, Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano, Bruce Ayers and Quincy Cultural Council Chairperson Arthur Keough.

"The Massachusetts Cultural Council is a state agency that supports public programs in the arts, sciences and humanities,"

Morrissey said. "This local grant plays a significant role in our community's cultural and economic life."

Quincy Cultural Council has been allocated $49,766 and individual awards will range from $250 to $1,500. Past projects have included trips to the Boston Ballet for sixth graders, a visit to Emerson Theatre and a visit to the Museum of Science.

"The program also reflects a unique state-local partnership of grassroots public support for culture in Massachusetts," Tobin said. "This year, it will distribute $3.9 million to 335 local cultural councils statewide."

Applications for funding requests are being accepted until Oct. 16.

"Individuals and organizations may apply for general support of projects such as workshops, lectures, exhibitions, festivals, science education and artist projects," Mariano said.

Grants are allocated accordingly after taking a number of considerations into account, including the benefit to the community and the qualifications of the program.

"Each community's allocation from the MCC is determined using a Local Aid formula," Ayers said. "The local councils are run by municipally appointed community volunteers who evaluate applications once a year based on local needs and interests."

"We want to publicly express our gratitude to the residents who generously volunteer their time to work on the local council in order to make quality cultural programs available in the City of Quincy," said Morrissey, Tobin, Mariano and Ayers.

The Legislative delegation praised the Cultural Council's efforts.

Morrissey added, "They are one important reason for the good quality of life we enjoy."

Applications and guidelines are available at Quincy City Hall and the Thomas Crane Public Library. All completed applications should be sent to Arthur Keough, Chairperson, 595 Hancock St., Quincy 02171. (617) 376-1322.

Walter Timilty Candidate For County Clerk Of Courts

Walter F. Timilty, Jr. of Milton, a Democrat, is a candidate for the office of Norfolk County Clerk of Courts.

Timilty has been with the Norfolk County Superior Court for 17 years, more than 11 as assistant clerk.

Current Clerk of Courts Nicholas Barbadoro of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, is retiring in January.

"It is with a strong sense of duty to the citizens of this County that I announce my candidacy and ask for their support," Timilty said. "Working with Nick Barbadoro has been a wonderful experience, both personally and professionally, and I look forward to carrying on his great legacy. I will work tirelessly to make sure that this court system continues to operate efficiently and effectively."

Timilty noted he has worked in the criminal justice system for almost 20 years. Prior to joining the Norfolk County courts, he was director of the Governor's Committee on Criminal Justice under former Governors Edward King member of the Norfolk County Advisory Board.

Timilty said that among his goals as Clerk of Courts is to work with judicial administrators and the Legislature to guarantee the adequate resources are allocated to the Norfolk County Superior Courts system.

"It is the role of our court system to safeguard all of us, and that can only be done if the courts receive adequate resources," he said. "Because I have worked within the Norfolk County court system, I know what needs to happen to make sure these courts operate properly. As Clerk of Courts, I will proudly represent this county's citizens as we fight for the funding necessary to enforce our laws and punish criminals."

Timilty and his wife, Marcia, have three children: Walter, the state representative from Milton and Randolph; Kerry, a financial manager for Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Massachusetts; and Michelle, a registered nurse at Brigham and Women's Hospital.

WALTER TIMILTY JR. and Michael Dukakis. As director, he managed a staff of 45 public policy professionals and oversaw the funding for the Law Enforcement Administrative Assistance program with an annual budget of $15,000,000.

Timilty's public service dates back to the 1970s. He was elected selectman in Milton in 1976 and served the town for 10 years, during which time he held the position of chairman. A former Milton town meeting member, Timilty was a local delegate to the state Democratic convention and a

Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Re-Dedicated

The City of Quincy's Park Department recently celebrated a re-dedication of the Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Stone at Freedom Park.

The Rev. Garrett Barry of St. Ann's Parish gave the blessing at the ceremony.

The creation and the placement of the Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Stone was an Eagle Scout project for Gerald Grindlay in 1994.

Grindlay raised the money for the stone and landscaped the area around the stone, which was originally placed at the intersection of Hancock St. and Southern Artery.

The memorial stone was moved to Freedom Park along Burgin Parkway to make way for the construction of the Formal Garden at Upper Merrymount.

"This re-dedication ceremony allows us to pay tribute to three men who represented the Boy Scouts program at its best," said Michelle Lydon of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board. "The Fuller brothers and Grindlay were all committed to the scouting programs and we are glad to remember them through the re-dedication of this memorial."

The Fuller brothers, John and Buell, were honored by Grindlay for a lifetime of service to the Boy Scouts of America. The Fuller brothers, who lived in North Quincy, made the rank of Eagle Scout in 1924 and spent the next 60-plus years dedicating their time to various scouting endeavors. The brothers started Troop 51 of Quincy, organized specifically to enroll boys with special needs into the scouting programs.

Buell died in 1987 and Grindlay in 1989. Both had their ashes spread at Boy Scout Camp Massasoit.

Grindlay died tragically last year at age 22 when, while walking in Boston, he was struck by a motorcycle.

WILLIAM GRINDLAY, financial officer for the Quincy Police Department and former city auditor, admires the Fuller Brothers Boy Scout Memorial Stone, which was re-dedicated Saturday at Freedom Park. The stone, a tribute to John and Buell Fuller, was the Eagle Scout Project of Grindlay's son Gerald, who died tragically last year after being struck by a motorcycle.

can you pass this good health quiz?

- 1 Do you have a primary care doctor?
- 2 Do you have access to Boston's best hospitals—Brigham & Women's and Children's?
- 3 Does your doctor's practice offer a 24/7 nurse advice line or urgent care?

There are immediate steps you can take toward living a healthier life. Start by choosing a doctor you're comfortable with. One who has access to world-class hospitals like Brigham & Women's and Children's Hospital Boston. A doctor whose practice offers both urgent care and a 24/7 nurse advice line.

You can have all of this at Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. It's not an HMO—it's a group of doctors and other caregivers focused on your good health. And Harvard Vanguard accepts many types of insurance. To find a doctor that's right for you, visit www.harvardvanguard.org or call 1-888-876-HVMA today.

THEY DID IT — Here are the more than 500 volunteers who hammered, sawed, dug and raked to create the new playground at the Snug Harbor School in just seven hours

Saturday.

A Playground Is Born In Germantown

"For too many children --- 200,000 this year alone --- playgrounds are the site of serious injuries. The new playground will provide a safe, healthy place for children to play."

"Today is a great day for the children and the families of our community," said Ann Marie Henley, president of Germantown Neighborhood Council. "It is critical that we help to provide our children with a safe and fun learning environment and we are glad to be a part of that process."

Sheets cut the ceremonial ribbon with the help of volunteers and key project officials.

"Today's construction illustrates what can be accomplished when partnerships between business and community organizations are created. I am impressed by the level of commitment demonstrated by CNA, KaBOOM!, Germantown Neighborhood Council, South Shore YMCA and Snug Harbor," Sheets said.

CNA Foundation

recognizes that safe and accessible playgrounds are critical to the development of America's children, and is a founding sponsor of the KaBOOM! LET US PLAY campaign. As part of the campaign, CNA has committed to building 50 playgrounds across the nation in the communities CNA serves. This construction represents CNA's 32nd playground build.

"It is amazing how one day's efforts will benefit our children for many years to come. We are starting the new school year off on such a positive note," stated Dr. Alan Osborne, principal of Snug Harbor Community School.

Headquartered in Chicago, CNA is a leading insurance organization offering a broad range of insurance products and insurance-related services. Since 1897, CNA has built a foundation of financial strength, stability and commitment to customers and business partners.

KaBOOM! is a national non-profit organization dedicated to providing healthy play opportunities by inspiring individuals, communities and businesses to build safe and accessible playgrounds.

The Germantown Neighborhood Center, founded in 1982 and located within Snug Harbor Community School, serves the children and families from the surrounding area. The Germantown Neighborhood Council is a non-profit organization that sets policy and supervises the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

In 1999, the South Shore YMCA increased its commitment to Germantown by entering into a unique private/public partnership with the city of Quincy and the Germantown Neighborhood Council in order to manage the center. The YMCA's goal is to build strong kids, strong families and strong communities in Germantown.

Snug Harbor Community School, opened in 1952, is located in the Germantown section of Quincy.

Christopher Gorham Receives National Merit Recognition

Christopher Gorham of Quincy was recently honored for academic excellence at the Belmont High School.

Gorham, son of Christopher Gorham and Stephanie Gorham, received National Merit recognition for the 1999-2000 academic year. The recognition was part of the Fall Awards presentation attended by faculty and families.

Out of more than 1.2 million students nationwide who took the test, Gorham scored among the top 50,000.

Grossman Seeks To Buy Quincy Center Landmark

The Grossman Companies, Inc., the commercial real estate firm, is under agreement to purchase the Munroe Building in Quincy Center from the Faxon Family Trust.

President Louis Gross-man said the deal has not yet been closed but the company "hopes" to buy it.

The Munroe Building at 1229-53 Hancock St. celebrated its 70th anniversary in 1997 with an art display by photographer John Dodge that highlighted the early days of Quincy's history.

It houses such business firms as Barry's Deli, Clifford Florists, Kids' Closet and Rhyme 'n Reason with a vacant section that formerly housed the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

A new financial institution, the South Coastal Bank (formerly the Rockland Savings Bank) plans to expand its retail branch network into the building later this month.

Ward 4 Meeting Oct. 18 To Discuss BFI Issues

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico has scheduled a neighborhood meeting Wednesday, Oct. 18 at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center to discuss resident issues concerning the BFI Company.

Over the last four years, D'Amico said, many residents have been frustrated regarding BFI response to such issues as odors, proper fencing, and parking and curbing plans.

"This (the lack of response) is unacceptable for a corporation operation located in and serving our community," D'Amico said.

The Ward 4 Community Center is located on Brooks Ave.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Designing With Decorative Windows

Provide Both Form And Function

If you're looking to add interest and character to your home, there's a window of opportunity. Tastefully placed -- and designed -- windows let you create special architectural effects, or recreate the style and elegance of the past while taking advantage of today's innovative technology.

• Shapes and styles. You can choose from a myriad of window shapes and styles, including triangle, hexagon, circle or oval, or combination shapes, such as segmented head, half-round or pointed head.

• Choose window designs wisely. It is important to try to maintain the home's architectural style when choosing windows. Too many windows or too few, or the wrong shapes and sizes, can result in a house that looks off kilter. Try to select from shapes apparent in the home, and don't be afraid to try combinations of those shapes. Mixing fixed lites (panes that don't open) with operable windows can create interesting architectural designs. Decorative glass -- etched, beveled, stained -- can also help you achieve the look you desire.

• Beauty combined with efficiency. Used alone, or in combinations with standard-shaped windows and doors, decorative windows offer benefits beyond just beauty. They enhance the home's lighting design, improve its ventilation and can help to conserve energy.

One way windows can help conserve energy is through their construction. With the knowledge that double-pane window construction can double the R-value -- the higher the R-value, the more efficient the window -- the window and door industry began designing many decorative windows using triple-pane construction.

• Warm-edge boosts energy savings. Another major advancement in window design is the "warm-edge" spacer system designed specifically for triple-pane window construction.

"TruSeal Technologies developed the grooved Swiggle TL to significantly improve the thermal performance of a window," said Ric Jackson, director of marketing for TruSeal Technologies. "Grooved Swiggle helps reduce heat flow through the perimeter of the window and reduces condensation, improving the thermal performance of the window and helping to keep decorative windows clear and beautiful."

Triple-pane windows also boost the advantages the window's individual components already provide. Triple glazing doubles the Low-E surface, it uses current standard window dimensions, it provides the added advantage of two hermetically sealed air spaces, and offers the capability of filling both cavities with gas.

A Cleaner Home Can Mean A Healthier Family

If you or your family suffers from allergies, you are not alone.

According to the Centers for Disease Control, 50 million Americans suffer from allergies, and an estimated 17.3 million suffer from asthma.

"Simple changes in your routine house cleaning can reduce allergies and help your family live more comfortably. Removing dust and soil often from all surfaces is a key element in maintaining good indoor air quality," says Dr. Mary Lasley, a pediatric allergist.

Carpet and Flooring -- Vacuum carpet regularly, usually once a week (twice in high-traffic areas), using a high-efficiency air filter. When choosing a vacuum, look for the CRI green label, which indicates that the model has been evaluated by an independent testing laboratory and met the carpet industry for soil removal, dust containment, and carpet appearance retention. Dust and wet mop smooth floors twice weekly.

Furniture -- Vacuum upholstery furniture and clean hard pieces with a damp cloth weekly.

Ceiling fixtures -- Wipe ceiling fans and light fixtures with a damp cloth on a weekly basis.

Windows -- Dust window sills and frames weekly, and clean blinds often with a damp cloth. Vacuum fabric window treatments.

Pillows and mattresses -- Encase pillows, mattresses and box springs in "allergen control" covers.

Bed linens -- Wash sheets in hot water, at least 130 degrees, each week to kill dust mites. Comforters, blankets, and curtains should be washed often.

Accessories -- Limit the books on shelves, decorative accessories on table tops, clutter on the floor, and the children's stuffed animals to reduce dust accumulation.

Kitchen -- Mop floors at least weekly with a clean mop, using a disinfectant. Store the mop in a clean condition, to avoid bacterial growth. Clean daily all grease and food from around the stove. Seal cracks around cabinets, and keep food in closed containers.

Bathroom -- Clean shower stalls and bathtubs weekly. Areas under and around sinks and toilets should be cleaned and kept dry. Bath mats, towels, and washcloths should be washed often.

Additionally, be sure to keep your home's relative humidity level below 65 percent.

Historically, there has been a stigma attached to mental health issues. This is because people often think of mental health differently than they think of physical health. While most people will seek treatment for any number of medical illnesses and injuries — like pneumonia or broken bones — there is a hesitation for people to get the help they need for issues related to mental health — like depression or substance abuse.

Overcoming the Stigma

The feelings of shame and embarrassment associated with mental health issues are caused mainly by fear and misinformation. The key to overcoming this social stigma is education, with the most important message being that mental disorders are not personal weaknesses or character flaws. They are real illnesses that can be successfully treated by mental health professionals.

There are many situations and feelings we face in life that may respond to professional counseling. These include anxiety, depression, fears and phobias, marital/relationship conflicts, family difficulties, substance abuse, reactions to trauma, loss and grieving, eating disorders, and issues of aging, to name a few.

Getting the Help You Need

So, where do you go when you or someone you know needs mental health counseling? Who can you turn to for help ending the cycle of substance abuse? What resources are available for children with developmental disabilities? If you have ever sought answers to any of these questions, you should know there is somewhere you can turn to for help. It's called South Shore Mental Health and it's located right here in your own community.

South Shore Mental Health is a non-profit agency that provides counseling and support for people of all ages throughout Southeastern Massachusetts, including the South Shore, Plymouth and Cape Cod. We offer professional counseling, substance abuse programs, around-the-clock emergency evaluation, and early intervention for children and families.

Look No Further Than Right Here

Because we know that the first step in overcoming the stigma attached to mental health issues is education, we created this monthly health column, Mental Health Lines, to provide you with information about issues related to mental health and substances abuse counseling. Each month, we will cover a different topic — like depression, alcoholism, stress, and anxiety — that we hope helps you or someone you know seek the support you need.

Always remember, there is a place for you to turn to when you need help — we at South Shore Mental Health are here for you.

South Shore Mental Health is a community resource providing mental health and substance abuse services throughout the South Shore, Southeastern Massachusetts and Cape Cod. For more information about any of our programs, call us at (617) 847-1950 or visit our website at www.ssmh.org.

Smoke Detectors To Be Checked At Seniors Homes

Trained volunteers will team with firefighters to visit the homes of more than 300 Quincy senior citizens Saturday, Oct. 7 to make sure that they have smoke detectors that are working and installed in the proper places.

Beechwood Community Life Center's fourth annual Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) is offered to "at risk" seniors, said Sharron Beals, Beechwood's Executive Director.

Considered "at risk," she said, are those who are 75 years old or older or who have difficulty installing or checking smoke alarms and batteries. Beechwood estimates that almost one-third of the more than 18,000 seniors living in Quincy fit this description.

On "Senior Serve Day," volunteers will be trained to install smoke detectors and answer questions before they are teamed with firefighters to visit the city's seniors. This year detectors will be provided through Home Depot and Beechwood's fund-raising efforts. All three Quincy service organizations, Rotary, Lions and Kiwanis clubs, will participate.

Beechwood, supported by the Quincy Fire Department, National Fire Prevention Association and Quincy Rotary, started the SAFE program in 1997 because of a lack of working smoke detectors in the homes of seniors, Beals said. When the program began, volunteers expected to check smoke detectors and replace batteries. However, it was discovered, the majority of seniors did not have an adequate number of working detectors, and thus were seriously "at risk."

Beechwood's Elder Home Repair Program assists seniors year round with detectors, but the City-wide one day/outreach with the Quincy Fire Department and volunteers on Senior Service Day is an expansive annual effort.

This year's event will launch National Fire Protection month, noted Kathleen Prince, Director of Elder Services at Beechwood. "Mayor Sheets has proclaimed October to be 'Fire Prevention and SAFE Month' in Quincy."

The National Fire Protection Association is a non-profit agency organization that provides fire prevention information and materials internationally. Sharon Gamache of Quincy is NFPA's National Director of "At-Risk" Outreach. She helped start Project SAFE and continues to actively participate with the project.

For more information or to register for Senior SAFE Day, call (617) 471-5712.

Ward 5 Association To Present Home Heating Seminar Tonight

The Ward 5 Community Association will conduct a home heating seminar for Quincy residents tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School on Fenno St.

Coffee and refreshments will be served. All are welcome.

Guest speaker will be Larry Chretien, executive director of the Massachusetts Energy Consumers Alliance. Chretien, former Ward 3 councillor, heads the non-profit organization whose mission is to help provide affordable and environmentally sustainable energy for the consumers of Massachusetts. The Alliance has more than 6,400 members from

LARRY CHRETIEN
Executive Director
Mass. Energy
Consumers Alliance

throughout the state.

Chretien will discuss the current energy situation and steps that the average homeowner can take now to avoid a home-heating oil crunch this winter.

"Every winter we read stories about homeowners who are hit hard by home-heating crisis and every year the experts advise homeowners to prepare early. This meeting will provide valuable information to Quincy homeowners on how to avoid any major issues this winter. I strongly encourage people to join us tonight," said Dave Murphy, president of the Ward 5 Community Association.

Also to be discussed at the meeting will be the summer activities of the Ward 5 Community Association and upcoming meetings and events for the fall.

For more information, call Murphy at (617) 479-3631.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyers Workshop Oct. 21

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHFA & HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First Time Homebuyer's Workshop Saturday, Oct. 21 in collaboration with Dedham Savings Bank, 55 Elm St., Dedham.

The all-day workshop will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. Lunch will be provided.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property within budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Each participant will have an opportunity to meet individually with mortgage professionals, Realtors, and an attorney. Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

Contact Debbie Kidd at Neighborhood Housing Services at 617-770-2387 for more information or to register for this workshop.

City, Housing Authority Receive $400,000 Grant

The City of Quincy and Quincy Housing Authority will receive a grant of $399,883 from the federal Housing Urban Development agency through Massachusetts Job Training, Inc., the Youthbuild Implementation Grant.

Through this H.U.D. grant, from the office of Cardell Cooper, U.S. Assistant Secretary for Community Planning and Development, 14 participants will learn on-site construction skills, while in the process of rehabilitating 400 residential housing units in public housing for use as rental homes. The program will provide a comprehensive and integrated effort to increase the academic, leadership and vocational levels of trainees.

In announcing the grant, Sen. John Kerry said, "Youthbuild is a proven tool for educating and providing skills to an at-risk youth population, and I'm particularly thrilled about this funding for Quincy."

The grant will allow 14 young people to acquire, much-in-demand, state-of-the-art construction skills, which will result in good, well-paying employment for those individuals. Sheets said in this period of very tight rental situations and climbing rents, the program will be of great assistance to the City of Quincy in allowing the City and the Housing Authority to bring 400 affordable, rentable units back to the market more quickly.

Sheets also expressed his appreciation to Sen. Kerry and H.U.D.'s Secretary Cooper for their support of programs like Youthbuild which address both urban employment and housing needs.

Massachusetts Job Training, Inc. has received two previous Youthbuild grants. Proposed cash and in-kind leveraging sources total approximately $3,782,832 in support of this grant.

FALL CAR CARE

AAA Advises Motorists To 'Take Five' During October

AAA is urging motorists to "take five" before the onset of colder weather and the winter driving season.

More than recommending a pause in normal driving routines, AAA suggests motorists take time out in October to remember there are five primary maintenance items that should be attended to during this time of year.

They are:

1. Check all fluid levels, vehicle lights and belts and hoses. Refill, replace or adjust as necessary.

2. Replace wiper blades if they are more than six months old.

3. Change the oil if it has been more than 7,000 miles since the last oil change.

4. Flush and refill engine coolant if it has been more than three years since the last coolant change.

5. Inspect tires and check brakes if the vehicle has more than 30,000 miles on the odometer. Recheck tires, brake pads and shoe conditions every 6,000-7,500 miles during tire rotation.

"The best place to learn about preparing a vehicle for 'The best place to learn about preparing a vehicle for the winter driving season is . . . your owner's manual.'

-- John Paul, AAA Southern New England's Car Doctor

the winter driving season is as near as the glove compartment," said John Paul, AAA Southern New England's Car Doctor. "For specific maintenance information about the vehicle you drive, there is no more authoritative source than your owner's manual."

According to AAA, vehicle maintenance schedule and practices have changed over the years, but one piece of common-sense advice remains as true today as it did in the early years of the automobile. By taking time to regularly assess the condition of your vehicle, you improve the chances of avoiding a safety or security situation down the road.

(John Paul is certified by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE) as a Master Automobile Technician. He holds a vocational teaching certificate from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He is a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers, International Motor Press Association, and the New England Motor Press Association. He writes an automotive question-and-answer column and reports on new vehicle road tests for AAA Horizons, and hosts a Saturday radio car care show in Quincy.)

And, Remember To Buckle Up
For Safety

Research shows consumers are confused about the type of maintenance their vehicles need. Advanced technology, confusing advertising messages, and changes in driving styles and distances add up to unfamiliar territory for today's drivers. Since October is National Car Care Month, AAA clubs across the country are focusing on proper vehicle maintenance.

Twenty years ago, each vehicle was maintained in basically the same way on essentially the same schedule. Driving time was less severe because city traffic wasn't as hectic, and there were few cars with computer components. But today's motorists need to study their owners manuals and consult with repair providers to understand the specific maintenance needs of their vehicles.

"More than half of us still take our vehicles in for 3,000-mile oil changes," said John Paul, AAA Southern New England's Car Doctor. "Depending on the vehicle you own and the type of driving you do, you may only need oil changes at intervals of 5,000 miles or more. Those extra oil changes are not improving the life of your vehicle, and they're costing an extra $60 each year."

AAA's research shows that most consumers overlook proper tire maintenance. In a recent survey, 20 percent of respondents said they have never rotated their tires, and the average consumer has the tires of their vehicle rotated every 9,000 miles. Most manufacturers recommend tire rotation every 6,500 miles.

"Tires are a critical safety element on your vehicle," Paul said. "Proper tire maintenance helps ensure tires can safely grip the road and help your vehicle to maneuver on wet surfaces. Without proper maintenance and rotation, tires wear more quickly. The price of regular tire rotation service is more economical than a set of new tires."

AAA's survey also shows that many people do not know how often to inspect their belts and hoses. And those who do, often don't check them frequently enough. Yet, just a little attention on these vital components can ensure a vehicle is operating at its best.

"Belts and hoses are such inexpensive items to replace. However, failure to maintain these parts can add up to a major expense," Paul said. "By simply inspecting their belts and hoses on a regular basis, vehicle owners can prevent costly engine damage and the inconvenience of emergency repairs."

Fourth Ladder Truck Needed But For Where?

Ariente answered questions from councillors, particularly Frank McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee, as to whether the city should wait for the results of the $75,000 Fire Needs Study -- currently in the RFP (Request for Proposals) stage -- before making such a large financial commitment.

"I don't think the city has that luxury," Ariente responded, explaining that such a study could take months and that ordering a new ladder truck could take up to a year. By that time, Ariente said, the city would already be facing such new development as the new Marriott Hotel at Crown Colony and the HighPoint development on Quarry St. Ariente's report was placed on file with the council and will be referenced by both the Finance and Public Safety Committees when discussing Mayor James Sheets' proposed $500,000 appropriation for a new ladder truck.

According to a financial report authored by McCauley in September, one new ladder truck would require 12 firefighters, four lieutenants, and one captain to man it.

Residents, Officials Discuss Sea St. Dunkin' Donuts Move

By CRAIG SALTERS

Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley held a meeting with Adams Shore residents to discuss the possible relocation of the Dunkin' Donuts at 399 Sea St. to a new site at 364 Sea St.

Paul Cleary, owner of both locations, attended the meeting held Sept. 27 at Adams Shore Library as did more than a dozen residents.

DPW Commissioner David Colton, Inspection Services Director Walter White, and Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon also attended the meeting to gather input from residents and discuss potential issues involved with the relocation such as traffic, odor, hours of operation, rodent control, and lighting.

Cleary said that he wanted to relocate because of safety concerns at his current location, citing the many Broad Meadows Middle School students who cut through his parking lot and the poor motorist sight lines which made driving in and out dangerous.

Residents, some of whom expressed regret that the relocation was even occurring, countered that any possible improvements in safety would be outweighed by increased traffic, long drive-through lines spilling onto Sea St., and negative impacts to the residential homes which abut the 364 Sea St. property.

Hanley made it clear that, given the location's Business B zoning status, Cleary's relocation was "a done deal" and that the issue now was "how can we lessen the impact for this community?"

Mitigation ideas discussed included landscaping, increased parking, dumpster modifications, and the possibility of a hired police detail to coordinate traffic during peak hours.

General, long-term improvements to Sea St. itself were also discussed, with Colton and Gillon agreeing that traffic was the most important concern for the area. "Capacity is not the issue here, it's safety," said Gillon, calling traffic levels for the street "acceptable" but adding that potentially long drive-through lines at the new site was the issue which concerned him most.

Two suggestions for long-term traffic improvement were the reconfiguring of Curlew Rd. and/or the lessening of the curve of Sea St. itself to improve motorist sight lines and driving lanes.

Cleary stated several times that he came to the meeting as a community member and not as an opponent, adding that he welcomed neighborhood input as to what type of business to put at what will become, eventually, a vacant lot at 399 Sea St. "I am open to any suggestions and I am willing to work with Councillor Hanley," Cleary said. "I think the meeting went beautifully and, if the community wants something, I'm going to do it."

Cleary, who said there is no timetable for the opening of his new Dunkin' Donuts, goes before the Zoning Board of Appeals Oct. 10 at 7:15 p.m. He is applying for a variance to the property which would allow him to build 15 parking spaces instead of 11 in addition to handicapped parking.

Cleary must also go before the License Board at some point for the transfer of licenses from one property to the other.

Possibly As Early As January South Shore Savings To Open Across From Birthplaces By March

The sign in front of the building across the street from the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams birthplaces will soon read South Shore Savings Bank and not Dunkin' Donuts.

Arthur Connelly, president and CEO of South Shore Savings, told The Sun he expects the branch to be open in three to five months.

"We have to go through the banking regulatory process first but I would say we should be open by March 30 at the latest and possibly in January."

The building at 138 Franklin St., South Quincy, was built by Quincy Savings Bank as its South Quincy branch in 1969 and continued as a branch for Citizens Bank when it purchased Quincy Savings. Citizens later closed it after acquiring U.S. Trust and moving the South Quincy operation to Quincy Ave.

"It has always been a bank building," says Connelly. "So there won't have to be a major undertaking to get it ready for opening. Some cosmetics, paper, and paint and then we will see what is needed as we go along."

Connelly said South Shore Savings had earlier picked the Franklin St. site as the potential No. 1 spot for the future.

The building, however, was purchased by William Donovan who owns a Dunkin' Donuts down the street at 95 Franklin St.

His plans to move his operation to 138 Franklin St. touched off a controversial firestorm.

Residents and city officials cited traffic, parking, litter, and other problems which they complained would be caused by the proposed 24-hour coffee shop with a drive-in window -- just across the street from the two oldest presidential birthplaces.

A petition signed by more than 1,000 residents was being circulated throughout the area.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico teamed on a resolve opposing the venture which was passed by their colleagues.

Mayor James Sheets and Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon were also opposed.

Last week as the opposition storm continued, Donovan reached an agreement with South Shore Savings Bank to buy the property.

Connelly did not disclose the price but Raymond said it was over $1 million.

Connelly had praise for Donovan and Dunkin' Donuts.

"William Donovan and Dunkin' Donuts are wonderful corporate citizens," he said. "They are long-term players. They are interested in the welfare of the city where Dunkin' Donuts was also born. They have poured a lot of money into the city."

That sense of gratitude was shared by residents as well.

"I'm happy to see a bank moving in as a new neighbor," said John Ruggiano, owner of the Hair After Salon at 124-126 Franklin St. and one of the authors of the neighborhood petition along with his wife Susan and fellow residents William and Judy Turner. "I thank Councillor Raymond for his efforts and I thank Bill and Kevin Donovan for listening and for doing the right thing."

This will be South Shore Savings' 11th branch, the second in Quincy. The first is at Quincy Ave. and Southern Artery in Quincy Point.

"But our goal isn't to be the biggest," Connelly said. "What is important to us is to serve our customers and do it well."

"If people were happy doing business when this was the Quincy Savings Bank South Quincy branch, they are going to be happy with the way we do business. They can count on that."

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Stop The Flu Bug -- Before It Bites You

"Oh, it's just a touch of the flu," so you say. Suddenly, you're extremely tired and achy, your nose is running and you have a cough. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Massachusetts' (BCBSMA) Prevention and Wellness Program gives you tips on how you can avoid the flu.

Influenza, or "the flu," is a contagious disease that strikes the lungs, causing swelling and inflammation. The virus is spread from person to person by direct contact and by air-borne drops.

The flu affects the whole body with chills, high fever, weakness, dry cough, sore throat, severe headache, loss of appetite, muscle aches, and backaches. After 48 hours of exposure, the virus spreads through your body and the onset of symptoms becomes worse.

There's no cure for the flu. It has to run its course. The goal is to minimize discomfort and prevent complication. The best way to do that is to get plenty of rest so your body can fight off the virus.

Flu season typically begins in December. The flu vaccine is designed to prevent or at least ease the symptoms of infection. Early October to mid-November is the best time to get your flu shot. Due to the flu vaccine shortage this year, it is recommended that high-risk people get vaccinated in October and healthy people can receive flu shots in November and December.

As we approach the flu season, until the vaccine supply is restored, try to avoid crowds and, as the weather gets colder, wear a scarf to cover nose and mouth and wash your hands often.

If you develop the flu, try these self-care procedures to speed up your recovery:

- Drink hot (not scalding) fluids and avoid all dairy products because they make mucous thick and hard to cough up.

- Let yourself cough; don't suppress a cough that produces mucous. If mucous is bloody, yellow, or green, contact your physician immediately.

- Gargle with warm, strong tea or warm salt water (one-quarter teaspoon of salt in one-half cup of water).

- Suck on lozenges or hard candy to lubricate your throat.

- For aches and pains, take acetaminophen, aspirin, ibuprofen, or naproxen sodium (Note: if you are 19 years of age or younger, have a history of ulcer disease or abnormal bleeding, or are pregnant, consult with your physician before taking any kind of pain medication).

These suggestions were adapted by BCBSMA and taken from Self Care: Your Family Guide to Symptoms and How to Treat Them by Don R. Powell, Ph.D., and the American Institute for Preventive Medicine (Peoples Medical Society) available in bookstores.

BCBSMA's Prevention and Wellness Program started in January 1995 with a series of initiatives designed to promote preventative health to nearly two million members. For more information about this program, please call 1 (800) 262-BLUE.

My Patients Speak For Themselves...

"How do I spell relief? Acupuncture. For years I have suffered with arthritis in the feet, neck and back, not to mention the work-related injuries of carpal tunnel and tendonitis in both arms and hands. WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

Helping Teens Lose Weight The Healthy Way

Diabetes (Type 2) has been considered primarily a grown-up disease, a preventable illness that strikes adults, obese and sedentary.

Not anymore. The American Diabetes Association says diabetes among children is reaching "epidemic proportions." Today, 25 percent of all school-age children are obese — an increase of 20 percent in the last 10 years.

Experts say a high-fat diet and inactivity are responsible for the rise in obesity among young adults and children.

Florine Mark, president and CEO of the Weight Watchers Group, advises parents to take an active role in seeing that children get enough exercise.

"Encourage your child to get involved in school sports, and lead by example," Mark says. "Take a walk with your children, go biking, play baseball in the back yard. Just get moving."

Equally important, says Mark, is a healthy diet.

"At Weight Watchers, we are committed to helping put an end to adolescent obesity," she says, "through a program aimed at helping young people develop healthy eating habits to last a lifetime."

In October, as part of the "teens for free" program, anyone 10-18 years old can join Weight Watchers and pay a one-time $15 fee to cover cost of materials. The teen can then attend weekly meetings free of charge as long as they like. The only stipulation is that the teen join with a paying adult member.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"
Where to purchase a hearing aid.

You thought I would say HERE please! Sorry if I disappointed you. It's not that I don't want your business. I do! What's more important is that you feel comfortable where you go. you get excellent service.

you hear as well as possible and for a fair price. You do not want to feel rushed into making a decision without exploring all of your options. If your doctor recommends a hearing aid and conveniently sends you across the hall, that is not giving you much choice. Good service is very important and you'll need it for the life of the hearing aid. Select carefully and go with the professional that has the most qualities. Bring your hearing test results to two or three other Hearing Instrument Specialists. Shop for a professional that is caring, is fully equipped, highly experienced and fairly priced. If you feel like you're in a factory, then you're in the wrong place. Hearing aids can require a lot of service, it's a marriage between specialist and patient. North Quincy Hosts
Barnstable Friday At 7PM

Red Raiders Rally For First Win

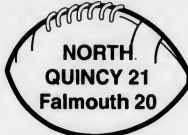

By CHRIS POISSON

For 22 minutes Friday night on the Cape, everything seemed perfect for the Falmouth High School football team.

The Clippers had stormed out to a 20-0 lead against North Quincy and were on their way for their first win of the season. And, more importantly, for some, they were getting revenge from last year's devastating overtime loss.

But the Red Raiders will remain on Falmouth's Most Wanted list as they rallied for three second-half scores to pull out an improbable 21-20 victory to break into the win column.

North Quincy (1-2, 1-0) will try to keep its magic alive Friday (tomorrow) night when it returns home to take on Barnstable (0-3) at 7 p.m. Although Barnstable hasn't won this season, it's an explosive offensive team as it scored 44 points in a loss to New Bedford last week.

"It will be a tough one," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "They had a shootout with New Bedford. They have a real talented team. They have a good tailback [Clinton Brown] with great speed. I think he had five touchdowns in that game."

What makes the come-from-behind win over Falmouth (0-3, 0-1) even more unbelievable is that North Quincy had scored only three touchdowns in its first two games and it matched that total in one half.

So what inspiring words did Chrisom say to his team at the half?

"Nothing really," Chrisom said. "We didn't make many adjustments. I just told them to come out and play and pick up the intensity, and that showed in the second half. But we can't do that every game."

In the second half, the defense played the best it has the entire season as it stopped Falmouth on several third-and-one and fourth-and-one plays. Their effort carried over to the offensive side. The Red Raiders turned to their running game, rather than abandoning it, and it cashed in.

Juniortailback Pat Bregoli (130 yards) scored North Quincy's first touchdown when he plunged in from two yards out. Senior quarterback Max Repoff hit senior quarterback Joe Holleran for the two-point conversion to cut the deficit to 20-8.

Bregoli made it 20-14 when he busted loose for a 47-yard touchdown run. The two-point conversion attempt failed.

In the fourth, senior fullback Dean Zoia tied the score with a 3-yard touchdown run and senior Chris Donovan booted the extra point for the win.

"The offensive line did a good job," Chrisom said. "They just came out with a different attitude. We just kept pounding and pounding and eventually we broke through some holes. We changed a couple of the formations to mix things up."

In the first quarter,

Falmouth went up 7-0 when quarterback Tom Summers hit Daragh McCann for an 11-yard pass. Bill Berry made it 14-0 after he took off for a 67-yard touchdown run.

In the second frame, Summers connected with Tim Duffany on a 65-yard pass and Falmouth held a 20-0 lead at the half after missing the extra point.

Youth Football League Celebration Oct. 29

The Quincy Youth Football league will celebrate its 50th anniversary Sunday, Oct. 29 at Veterans Memorial Stadium with the time to be announced.

The league is looking for alumni to join the celebration. Former board members, franchise holders, coaches, players or cheerleaders who would like to participate are asked to call Lynne Garland at (617) 647-5314 before Oct. 18.

Quincy Recreation Registration For Instructional Ice Skating

The Quincy Recreation Department will hold registration for its Instructional Ice Skating Program Tuesday, Oct. 10 at the main office.

The fall program, which has been conducted at the Quincy Youth Arena for over 25 years, is for boys and girls, ages 6-14, and will be conducted Wednesday afternoons beginning Oct. 18.

Instruction will be under the supervision of Anne Eagles, a United States Figure Skating Association professional, and will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the USFSA.

Instruction is from beginners to advance with two separate classes: class one at 3:10 p.m. and class two at 4:05 p.m. Both classes offer the same levels of instruction and are conducted for nine weeks. The cost is $50, which includes instruction and ice time.

Registration will continue at the Quincy Recreation Department office, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Enrollment is limited and will be taken on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Presidents Visit Falmouth Friday Quincy Defense Strong But Offense Stalls

By CHRIS POISSON

Although it scored only 21 points in its first two games, the Quincy High School football team managed to pick up yardage on a consistent basis in those games.

Friday night, the only thing it picked up was a loss.

Wasting another outstanding performance by the defense, Quincy's offense sputtered all night as Bridgewater-Raynham (2-2, 1-0) held the Presidents to under 100 yards in total offense and five first downs in a 20-0 win at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy (0-3, 0-1) travels to Falmouth (0-3, 0-1) Friday (tomorrow) night to face the Clippers, which are coming off a heartbreaking 21-20 loss to North Quincy.

"We just couldn't get anything going offensively and that just put too much of a burden on us defensively," said head coach Bob Noble. "That was really the story of the game. We weren't giving our defense a chance. They kept us in the game for three quarters."

The defense, which struggled last year as it gave up the most points in the league, has been the strongest part of the team in 2000. In three games, it has yielded just five touchdowns, and one of the reasons for the improvement has been the play of linebacker Tom Shruhan.

"Tommy has played extremely well for us on defense," Noble said. "He's really starting to step up. He's a junior and he's going to get better. He's improving every week."

The Trojans scored on their first possession of the game when junior tailback Luther Smith darted in from 36 yards out, but that was the only scoring of the half as Quincy shut down the Trojans. Smith, who had 59 yards and a TD on his first four carries, had only 10 yards on seven carries the rest of the half.

Quincy, meanwhile, gained a pathetic 18 yards as the passing game never got in sync and the running game couldn't break through the Bridgewater-Raynham defense.

"Defensively, I thought we played extremely well, particularly in the first half," Noble said. "Offensively, we just did not play well at all. We didn't block well. We didn't execute well. [B-R] did a nice job. You have to give credit, really, to them as far as their defensive scheme is concerned."

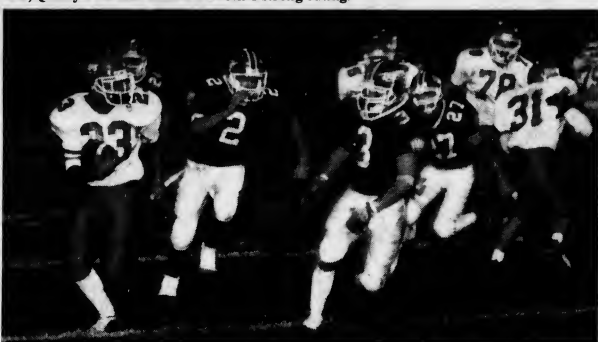

Bridgewater-Raynham all buticed the game on the opening possession of the second half, when it ate up 8:45 with a 14-play, 73-yard scoring drive. On third-and-goal from the five, Smith (168 yards) scampered into the end zone for his second touchdown of the game. Sophomore Ben Katz added the extra point for a 14-0 lead.

"They had a nice drive there," Noble said. "They made a big third-down conversion that really kept their drive alive. They kind of wore us down a little in the second half."

After each team turned the ball over on fourth down, Quincy put together its best drive, highlighted by junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano's 11-yard bullet to junior Scott Kelley on third-and-8 that pushed Quincy into Trojan territory for the first time all game.

JUNIOR TOM SHRUHAN (3) wraps up Luther Smith in the backfield as Quincy's defense stuffed Bridgewater-Raynham on a fourth-and-1 play early in the fourth quarter. Despite the loss, Quincy's defense turned in another strong outing.

TROJAN LUTHER SMITH (23) jets by the Quincy defense for a 36-yard touchdown to give Bridgewater-Raynham a 7-0 lead in the first quarter. Quincy went on to lose, 20-0, Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium. (Quincy Sun Photos)

The Presidents, however, stalled at the 26-yard line.

Quarterback Ryan Post closed out the scoring with a 9-yard TD run late in the game, which was set up by Smith's 55-yard run. Katz missed the extra point.

"We have to do a better job of moving the football," Noble said. "Once we do that, we're going to do well. Like I said last week, we're right on the verge of winning football games. There isn't a team we can't play with."

No Perfect Season For Storm; Manets Win 28-0

The Houghs Neck Manets knocked the Squantum Storm from the unbeaten ranks with a 28-0 victory in recent Quincy Youth Football action.

The Storm controlled the ball for most of the first half as fullback Tim Kennedy picked up yards behind a strong offensive line of Kevin Barry, Nisson Wong, Mike Gibson, Mike Powers, Kris Borgendale and Vinny Pastore.

However, the game changed on one play as Dean Sandomato intercepted a Storm pass and returned it 75 yards for a touchdown. The Manets tacked on three late scores as Joe Keefe scored on two hard runs and Shayne Murray on a screen pass.

Ricky Schifone, Rob Gardiner, Paul Graham and John Black played well for the Storm on defense.

The Squantum J.V. squad earned a 18-12 win. Steve Spring capped off a long scoring drive with a 4-yard scoring plunge for the Storm's winning score.

Mike Garland scored two touchdowns, and Tom Pasquantonio and Kevin Bossag made some nice runs. Nick Brown and Roger

Youth Football

Cufaunder anchored the offensive line and newcomer Steve Yovens recovered a fumble to halt the Manets from tying the score.

Tom Hazlehurst scored twice for the Manets while Jarrod Tucker, Lammi Papalambros, Brian Sullivan and Teddy Walsh were outstanding on both sides of the ball.

The Squantum freshmen outlasted the Manets for a 30-12 win. Rookie Billy Kiley sparked the offense with a 45-yard TD run on his first carry of the game. Jay Lewis returned two interceptions for touchdowns, Dom McDougal ran one in and James Sullivan put one in the end zone on an exciting broken field run.

Ethan Thomas scored two long touchdown runs for the Manets.

Squantum lost three tough games to the West Quincy Elks. Jeff Ruggiano scored on a sweep and Chris Pratt recorded a safety. Dan Reggioninni, Drew Loud and David Djerf were strong defensively for the Elks.

David Jaehnig almost tied the game for the Storm as he returned a punt 40 yards to the 15-yard line. Defensive end Mike Faherty played a solid game, Ryan Barter had another strong game punting and Ross Pasquantonio was solid defensively.

Nick Malomes broke a tackle for a 30-yard touchdown to lift the Elks J.V. team to a 12-6 win over the Storm. Joe Reggioninni, Adam Tragellis, Matt Boyle, Ryan Donovan and Nick Masone stood out for the Elks.

Quarterback Anthony Black scored on a 1-yard sneak behind a crushing block from Nash Winters to give the Storm a lead in the first half. Chris Rooney and Mike Lohnes played well.

The Elks freshman notched an exciting 18-16 victory. Alex Tragellis shined for the Elks and Matt Jaehnig was outstanding at fullback.

Dom McDougal and Billy Kiley scored touchdowns for the Storm, while Kyle Tobin, Brian McKeon, Tim Nogira and Rob Yovens scored two safeties. Zack Deegan, R.J. Barden, J.J. Downs and Andrew Jaehnig played well.

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy Granite has enjoyed some success in its first two seasons of semi-professional football.

They reached the New England Football League Division Championship game in their rookie campaign last year, and this season they have made a smooth transition into the Eastern Football League.

Saturday, Quincy (6-4) faces its biggest game in the franchise's short history when it travels to Middleboro to battle the Cobras (8-2) at 7 p.m. in the first round of the playoffs.

"We've made it two years in a row and that's a credit to these guys," said head coach Ken McPhee. "They wanted to jump up a league and see if we could make the playoffs. And we did."

It was only three weeks ago when the Cobras slithered into Veterans Memorial Stadium and poisoned the Granite with a 34-0 shutout. But Quincy was shorthanded, banged up and had a wide receiver running the show at quarterback.

This time around the Granite will have two quarterbacks available — Liam Higgins and Mike Thomas. Although Higgins will get the starting nod over Thomas, McPhee will not hesitate to pull Higgins if he struggles early on.

"I'd make the switch in a heart beat," McPhee said. "It's the playoffs and you have to win. It's a one game season now."

It was thought Thomas would no longer be available to play for Quincy after his tryout with Vince McMahon's new football league, the XFL. But Thomas wants to stay sharp and said he could play, which leaves Quincy with an explosive backup.

Higgins, meanwhile, returned two weeks ago after missing the entire year with an injury to lead Quincy to a win over Providence. Although he struggled early on, he found his groove in the second half. With the team having last week off, he should be prepared for Middleboro Saturday.

"All Liam has to do is get a football in his hands," McPhee said. "He'll be fine. He's certainly a gamer. He knows how to play the game. He's one of the toughest quarterbacks I've ever coached. He's a linebacker playing quarterback. And the team loves him."

With both quarterbacks back, the running game should improve. In the Providence game, it showed signs of improving. Tailback Jackson Vetic turned in a decent game as he found the end zone on a nifty 13-yard run.

"The problem we've had running the football is that we've had no way of loosening up the defense," McPhee said. "They were putting eight or nine in the box because they didn't have to worry about us throwing the ball. Any team can beat you if they take one particular part of your offense."

Defensively, Quincy will have to find some way to try to contain Middleboro's offense, which as both a potent passing and running attack. Quarterback John Lindskog, the 1999 offensive MVP, threw for a touchdown and ran for one in the first meeting, while running backs Duane Greenridge and A.J. Viera picked up a lot of yards on the ground.

"I think we kind of got out of sorts a little bit," said McPhee about his defense in the game against Middleboro. "We were undermanned and we didn't have the right people. [Defensive tackle] Al Casey was dinged up a little bit and he didn't perform the way he normally does."

"We need the defense to play like it has the whole year. If there has been a star of this team, it has been our defense, no question. The offense has put them in tough positions and they've bailed them out all the time."

Quincy Girls On National Hershey Relay Team

Two Quincy girls were part of a 4x10 relay team that recently finished eighth in the nation in the 9-10 age group at the North American finals of the Hershey's Track and Field Youth Program.

Alex Nee and Krystin Newsom joined with Taylor Reftery and Nicole Affannato, all members of the Quincy Track Club, in the annual event held in Hershey, Pa., that brings together boys and girls from all over the United States and Canada.

They had the opportunity to meet Rafer Johnson, a national Hershey Track spokesman and Olympic gold medalist.

The girls had advanced to the national finals by first competing in a local meet sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department at Veterans Memorial Stadium. After winning that meet, they advanced to the state championship in Billerica, which they also won.

As Massachusetts' winners, they were selected to a regional team made up of youngsters from New England and some provinces in Canada.

The Hershey's meet, conducted nationally since 1978, is designed to promote physical fitness, participation, friendship and sportsmanship.

Recreation Director Barry Welch was also pleased that Angela Hogrell, a supervisor with the Recreation Department, was selected to attend the championship as a regional volunteer chaperone.

Hogrell, a graduate of Quincy High School, attends UMass-Boston where she plays basketball. She also coaches several sports at Quincy High. She has been active in the local Hershey championship.

"Angela was ideally suited for her role at the national championship and was an excellent leader and role model that related well to the participants," said regional coordinator Bill Cameron.

North Quincy Earns 3 Ties

Girls' Soccer

The North Quincy girls' soccer team earned its third straight tie last week when Plymouth South scored with 43 seconds left in the game to knot the score at 1.

North Quincy (3-1-3) battled rival Quincy Tuesday and today (Thursday) it hosts Silver Lake at 4 p.m.

"It was a frustrating day, to say the least," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "To see us outwork and outplay our opponents for 79 minutes and then have them score that late goal was a shame."

The Red Raiders took an early lead as sophomore forward Christina Conley netted her fourth goal of the season with Katy Mercurio assisting. They squandered several other quality scoring chances when Mercurio's blast from 25 yards out hit the cross bar with no teammate there to knock it in.

North Quincy dominated the entire second half, but was unable to increase its lead. Lauren Sleeth's header off a corner kick was saved by a diving Plymouth South keeper. Allie Lacey and Jen Djerfeach had shots sail over the cross bar.

"I thought our effort was good and that Sleeth played her best game of the year," Bregoli said. "She finally seems to be healthy again. We've had a tough stretch of games playing six of seven on the road while not being at full strength. Lacey is still hurting and Lauren Kalil still has not seen any action."

"However, the good news is that our most difficult stretch is just about to end and we'll play all but two of our remaining games at home."

On Sept. 21, in a rematch of last year's first round playoff match, North Quincy battled Bridgewater-Raynham to a hard-fought 3-3 tie. The Red Raiders had upset Bridgewater-Raynham, 2-1, in overtime last year.

The Red Raiders broke the ice early as Lacey pressured the 'Trojans' outside back, causing a turnover which she deftly put past the keeper.

Bridgewater-Raynham tied the game six minutes later when a 25-yard direct kick eluded the leap of keeper Kathryn MacRitchie. A misplayed ball 10 minutes later gave the Trojans a 2-1 lead.

North Quincy tied the game at 2 late in the half when Christina Conley netted a goal, taking a direct kick from Katy Mercurio.

Bridgewater-Raynham controlled play in the second half as it kept the ball in the Red Raiders' end. North Quincy, though, took advantage of one of a handful of chances when Rachel Enos beat two Trojan defenders and crossed a great pass to Kelly Conley positioned at the far post. Conley notched her third goal of the year for a 3-2 lead.

Jeff Bartoloni Paces North

Cross-Country

At the annual Manchester Invitational at Derryfield Park Saturday, Jeff Bartoloni placed second in a field of 175 to lead the North Quincy High School boys and girls cross-country teams.

Brian Breslin made the top 30. John Fidalgo, Steve Barkowski, Will Gardner, Paul Griffith and Frank Alibrandi rounded out the seven-man roster. Gardner finished in 19:48, his best performance to date on the grueling 5 kilometer course.

In girls action, Natalie Caron finished 17th. Brenna O'Brien, Lisa Rubino and Lauren Ready were the only other competitors.

North Quincy competed in a tri-meet at Taunton with New Bedford Tuesday and it will compete in the Baystate Invitational Saturday at Franklin Park.

Track Club Members In Ollie Classic

Several members of the Quincy Track Club cross country team competed in the 60th annual Ollie Classic in South Boston directed by Abp. Williams coach Brian Van Dorp.

In the girls 10-14 division, Bethany Keenan (3rd), Kayla Martin (4th), Nicole Affannato (5th), Elizabeth Bock (6th) and Casey O'Connell (7th) all placed in the top 10 in the 1.2-mile run.

In the boys division, Jack Kilcommons (2nd), John Casper (4th) and Dave Allen (5th) also finished in the top 10. Ryan Columbo took 13th place. There were 31 finishers.

In the 8-9 division, Allen took first place in the 800-meter run with a record time of 2:10. Trevor Sullivan finished seventh. Kayla McGonigle (4th) won a medal for the girls. In the 6-7 group, Trevor McCarthy, Daniel Hartell and David Westerman were outstanding.

In the first of a three-meet Sunday morning series at Franklin Park, Martin, Keenan and Affannato all won ribbons for placing in the top 5 in their age group. Allen was first in the boys 9-10 division.

The club will run this Sunday at Franklin Park and it is looking for more boys and girls, ages 7-14. Practices are Mondays and Wednesdays from 6 to 7 p.m. at Pageant Field.

For more information, call Geoff Hennessy at 510-1456. There is no cost and non-residents are welcome.

PUBLIC NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY TO CONDUCT SMOKE TESTING

In order to improve the sewer service in your area, the City's contractor New England Pipe Cleaning Company (NEPCCO) will be conducting smoke testing of the sanitary sewers starting Tuesday, October 10 through Friday, October 13 from 8:00 AM to 5:00 PM on the following streets:

Abnion Road, Beach Street, Billings Road, Buckingham Road, Cheriton Road, Dunbarton Road, Earle Street, Ellington Road, Felton Street, Ferndale Road, Flynt Street, Freeman Street, Lunt Street, Marlboro Street (from Willet Street to Beach Street), Muirhead Street, Oxenbridge Road, Phillips Street (from Willet Street to Beach Street), Pierce Street, Rawson Road (from Hamden Circle to Bromfield Street), Thatcher Street, Tyler Street, Vane Street, Vassall Street, Willet Street (from Rawson Road to Hamden Circle), Willow Street (from Willet Street to Beach Street).

During the test, white smoke is introduced into the sanitary sewer system. During this procedure, white smoke will be venting from holes in manhole covers located in the street and from plumbing vent pipes located on or near your roof surface. THIS IS NORMAL AND SHOULD NOT CAUSE ALARM.

Smoke should not enter your premises unless there is either a dry trap in an unused fixture or a defect in your plumbing. You may wish to pour 2 gallons of water down your basement floor drain or unused plumbing fixture to ensure that the drain trap will be effective.

Should smoke enter your building it may set off smoke detectors. Do not be alarmed. If you are home, open all windows to aid in the ventilation of the smoke, and notify the field crew in the street, who will be easily identified by their orange shirts and white truck. The smoke is NON-TOXIC, NON-STAINING, and should pass in 15 to 20 minutes. IF YOU HAVE A LUNG AILMENT or RESPIRATORY CONDITION SUCH AS ASTHMA or EMPHYSEMA, STAY AWAY FROM THE SMOKE. Your cooperation and patience are appreciated.

For assistance, please contact Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc. at (978) 532-1900 ext. 2305, Tom Fabrizio, Contract Manager for the Quincy Department of Public Works, at (617) 376-1123 or Sue Clifford at the Quincy Engineering Department at (617) 978-1934.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

DO YOU HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING HEART? ... Someone once said that the realization that there are other points of view (other than your own) is the beginning of wisdom. Understanding what they are is a great step ... And the final test is understanding why they are held.

With this thought in mind, let us all work towards "building bridges of understanding." Today, perhaps more than ever in history, we need to "build these bridges."

The need today for understanding hearts is just as great as it ever was. The lack of them explains much of the mindless cruelty at work in so many parts of the world today.

Today we cannot ignore the visible and invisible walls dividing countries, races and families. We must tear the walls down and build bridges instead. Each bridge is worth building, even in frustrating times and on unknown territory.

Let us get to work today!

Pre-arranging: peace of mind for every family

ONE GUARANTEE TWO OPTIONS

As early as 1940, we began helping families pre-arrange their funeral expenses. So, the concept is not new to us. But today, there are payment options that some funeral homes don't offer.

Irrevocable Trusts—Many financially secure persons appreciate making one payment or several payments over a short time period. For these persons, we can offer an interest-free plan and payments spread over twelve months. (Endorsed by Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a way to reduce assets and meet state and federal requirements for Medicaid or nursing home care.)

Flexible, Tax-Free Insurance Plans—Budgeting your payments over additional time offers an affordable way for other families to pre-arrange. We can help structure an individualized plan with reasonable premiums, payable within three, five or ten years.

With either pre-arrangement option, protection begins immediately. Since 1917, we've provided the highest degree of understanding and personal assistance to South Shore families. Call us at 617-773-2728 for a free pre-arrangement consultation. We'll help find a plan that suits your family's individual needs.

Prayer Through Application

To The Holy Spirit

Holy Spirit, You who solve all problems, light all roads so I can attain my goals; You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life You are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank You for all things as You confirm once again that I never want to be separated from You, even in spite of all material allusions. I wish to be with You in eternal glory. Thank You for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer for 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the favor requested will be granted. Even if it may appear difficult, this prayer must be published immediately without mentioning the favor. Only your initials should appear at the bottom. M.D. 10/5

A MASS FOR Gold Star Mothers of wars was celebrated Saturday in Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck. Displaying special flag that was blessed at the church are two Gold Star Mothers and a Gold Star "Father." From the left are Nellie Bourassa, whose son First Lt. George Bourassa died in the Korean War; Bernard MacDonald, whose son Army Cpl. Raymond J. West gave his life in Vietnam; and Theresa Davis, whose son Richard Davis Jr. served as a Green Beret in the Army Special Forces and who also died in Vietnam.

Gold Star Mothers Honored At Mass At Blessed Sacrament

By LANCE MORGANELLI

Gold Star mothers were honored and a Quincy Gold Star flag was blessed at Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck Saturday.

Bernard MacDonald of Quincy, whose late wife Mildred served in the Quincy chapter, hopes the honoring service will occur yearly.

MacDonald, whose son Army Cpl. Raymond J. West died Dec. 13, 1968 in Vietnam, wanted to show some respect and appreciation for Gold Star mothers in Quincy by having the service, and was among those attending the Mass.

A Gold Star mother is a mother who lost a son or daughter in war and who dedicates her time at various veteran service organizations.

Two Gold Star mothers, Nellie Bourassa, who son First Lt. George R. Bourassa died in the Korean War, and Theresa Davis, whose son, Richard Davis, serving with the Army Airborne, died in the Vietnam War, attended the Mass dedication.

"They (veterans) feel free to talk to us. We listen to them as mother to son," said Theresa Davis, past national president of the Gold Star mothers.

"May the sacrifices of these young lives move all of us to a greater love of one another, always," "Father English said after blessing the Gold Star flag:

"Heavenly Father we ask you to bless this flag which we dedicate in memory of the Gold Star mothers whose sons and daughters sacrificed their lives to preserve the liberty and freedom we enjoy. Christ himself told us that "Greater love than this no one has than one who lays down his life for his friends." May the sacrifices of these young lives move all of us to a greater love of one another, always."

MacDonald wanted some respect to the shown to the Gold Star mother saying, "Without our mothers where would we be?"

6 Honored In His Political History McCauley's Mayoral Hall Of Fame Sparks Reader Interest

By TOM HENSHAW

Most of the 156 persons who purchased copies of "Quincy, Massachusetts, A Political History, 1889-2000" by novice author Francis X. McCauley last Saturday were interested in one thing.

Who are the six former mayors of the city that McCauley, a former mayor himself, found worthy of placing in the city's Mayoral Hall of Fame?

The well-kept secret was finally divulged when the book was released for sale Saturday at a book-signing by the author at the Quincy Historical Society.

They are, alphabetically, Charles M. Bryant (1902-04), Thomas S. Burgin (1935-42 & 1950-51), Amelio Della Chiesa (1954-65), Walter J. Hannon (1972-75), Thomas J. McGrath (1937-32) and James R. McIntyre (1966-71).

McIntyre, the only Democrat selected by the Republican McCauley, was identified as "the best educated and probably the brightest of Quincy's mayors."

"His most important work as mayor was the expansion of the M. B. T. A. Red Line to Quincy in the late 1960s and the early 1970s," wrote McCauley, who served briefly as City Councillor from Ward 1 while McIntyre was mayor.

"In his dual capacity as mayor and state senator, Jim McIntyre saw to it that Quincy and its citizens got a favorable deal in return for the city's cooperation in implementing the rapid transit extension to the South Shore."

McCauley insisted that political partisanship played no role in his selections. "Republican or Democrat never came into it," he said. He excluded the current mayor, James Sheets, and himself from consideration.

The other five Hall of Famers, Republicans all, reflect McCauley's own political philosophy and work ethic.

"McGrath, an avid reader, became an expert in municipal finance and guided the city through the first years of the depression," wrote McCauley, who was best known — and proud of it — as Quincy penny-pinching chief executive.

$18-To-$20 Million Project For Quincy Center 8 Story, 111-Unit Luxury Apartment Building Planned

By CRAIG SALTERS

Architectural plans are already in place for an $18-to-$20 million, 8-story, 111-unit luxury apartment building for Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

The new building will be sited on an existing 27,000 square foot parking lot adjacent to the Munroe Building and will have 155,000 square feet of space, including 10,634 square feet of retail space on street level.

Floors two through eight will have 57 one-bedroom and 54 two-bedroom apartments -- with rents ranging from $1,200 to $1,900 per month -- and will be serviced by a two-floor, heated underground garage with one parking space per unit and security card access.

The Grossman Companies, Inc., unveiled plans for the apartment building at a Tuesday meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"I'm very excited about this project," said Louis Grossman, president of The Grossman Companies, who attended the meeting to inform QCBPA members of the project and request their support.

The presentation on the new building, which is as yet unnamed, was made by Attorney Robert Fleming of 85 Clay St. and Dana Wolfe, manager of Acquisition and Finance for the Grossman Companies.

Architect's

The Grossman Companies, Fleming said, have entered into a purchase and sales agreement with the Faxon Family Trust to buy the Munroe Building at 1229-53 Hancock St. -- site of such businesses as Clifford's Florists and Rhyme and Reason -- and the adjacent 27,000 square foot parking lot. The 8-story building will be built over the parking lot and abut the Monroe Building, which will remain intact and receive only cosmetic changes.

The apartments will include washer, drier, dishwasher, microwave oven, and other amenities, Fleming said. An athletic gym is also planned for the building.

Fleming said he will file an application this week with the Zoning Board of Appeals and expects a hearing on the issue sometime in mid-November.

"This is one of the most dramatic and exciting proposals in Quincy," Fleming said. "We've been waiting for so long to bring a residential component into the downtown. This will bring people to the area, especially at night, and make the area more vibrant."

Grossman's Wolfe said groundbreaking for the $18-$20 million project is slated for March of 2001 and should be completed by the summer of 2002. The parking lot will be sub-divided, she said, so that the parcel on the northerly side of the Quincy Center MBTA station access road -- referred to as the North Parking Lot -- will remain as is for use by

MHI Faces Financial Re-Organization Deadline

Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI) had until 4 p.m. Tuesday to submit a financial re-organization plan for its renovation of the Fore River Shipyard.

If accepted by Judge William C. Hillman of the United States Bankruptcy Court, the plan would enable MHI to continue its multi-million dollar efforts to restore the shipyard.

If rejected, it would allow other groups to submit plans for the site's revitalization and all but end MHI's involvement with the project.

Mayor James Sheets said that Judge Hillman would have 60 days to examine and evaluate the proposal before making a decision.

The shipyard has been the object of a legal dispute since February 25 of this year when the United States Maritime Administration (MARAD) seized control of the 135-acre property after MHI defaulted on a $55 million dollar loan guaranteed by MARAD.

MARAD has begun foreclosure proceedings to liquidate assets at the site and hopefully recover its losses as well as those of other creditors.

MHI filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection and has steadily maintained that it will obtain the financing necessary to complete the project.

As of press time, there was no word as to whether MHI had made the deadline or not.

Flu Clinics Start Nov. 7

The Quincy Health Department announces flu clinics for Quincy residents over 18 years old will be held Nov. 7 through Dec. 8.

This year's flu shot contains the strains A/New Caledonia A/Moscow B/Beijing to provide immunity against the types of flu which have been circulating in the past year and thought to be most likely to occur in the United States this winter.

Because influenza vaccine contains only killed viruses it cannot cause influenza.

The annual flu vaccination is recommended for:

- Persons 65 or older.
- Adults with serious long-term health problems such as heart, lung, kidney disease, asthma, diabetes, anemia and other blood disorders.

• Adults whose immune system is weakened due to HIV/AIDS or other diseases that affect the immune system, those receiving treatment with drugs such as long-term steroids and those

City, Business 'Summit' Meeting On Tax Issue

By CRAIG SALTERS

A recent meeting of the Quincy Business Council attended by Mayor James Sheets and five city councillors fanned hopes that this December's debate over tax classification would progress more smoothly than last year's.

But, amidst the generally cordial dialogue, pointed comments from some QBC members showed that last year's vote to increase the classification on commercial property from 169 percent to the state maximum 175 percent was neither forgiven nor forgotten.

And, although the mayor reaffirmed his commitment to submit a 169 percent classification -- as he did in December of 1999 -- the five councillors present emphasized they would need to review the actual figures before committing to a decision.

All nine city councillors were invited to the Oct. 4 meeting. Council President Paul Harold and Councillors Frank McCauley, Timothy Cahill, Patrick McDermott, and Gregory Hanley accepted the invitations; Councillors Daniel Raymond, Stephen Durkin, Michael D'Amico, and Joseph Newton were not present.

"This was a tremendous meeting," said QBC Chairman Anthony Agnitti of Agnitti Insurance, who persistently advocated that lowering the tax classification and broadening the tax base was the best long-term plan for the city. "Good, bad, or indifferent, at least this year they're allowing us to speak on the matter."

Agnitti's comment refers to December of 1999 when councillors voted to increase the classification and, at a subsequent special meeting requested by Mayor James Sheets to reconsider the matter, voted 4-3 not to reconsider, ending the meeting after only a few minutes and angering many business leaders who had come to make their case against the increase.

"We got bushwhacked and we didn't even have a chance to tell you our side of the story," South Shore Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Ronald Zooleck told councillors at the QBC meeting.

Zooleck, who argued that maximum classification sends a "don't invest in Quincy" message to companies like State Street, the largest employer on the South Shore, pulled no punches in his opinion that raising the rate without warning was the wrong thing to do. Said Zooleck:

"This (the increase) was a total surprise. There was no planned process. You've set the maximum for taxes in the best of economic times and that shows a lot about your governing. What will you do in bad economic times?"

Zooleck's rebuke of what he saw as short-sighted governing stood out in a meeting otherwise marked by discussion and conciliation on both sides.

"There's no question that business and industry is really the engine that drives our society," said Mayor Sheets. "The key is balance. I have put forward 169 percent since 1995 and I will submit it again. It is reasonable and fair and I hope the council will approve it."

President Harold said the issue was one of "fairness and predictability," noting that businesses had no time to prepare for the classification increase. Harold, who voted against the increase last year, said the maximum classification rate hurts Quincy's competitive edge on the South Shore and told QBC members "those in the council got the message from the business community."

Frank McCauley, who also voted no last year, called the increase "self-defeating" and warned that the tax issue would not be solved by "socking it to the business community."

McDermott, last December's third and final no vote, said that he would examine the incoming figures before voting but said he was willing to follow the mayor's leadership on the issue. "There are a few votes as a ward councillor where you have to take a more global, more city-wide view," McDermott said.

Cahill, the lone yes vote to attend the meeting, defended his decision by saying the bailout of what is now Quincy Medical Center made last year "somewhat unique" and that he sought to balance the tax burden between residents and business, who both sustained increases. "It was a matter of looking starkly at the figures and realizing that somebody was going to get whacked," Cahill told business leaders.

But Cahill was quick to add that, although he voted to increase the classification, he was not able to attend the special meeting in which business did not get a chance to speak. Cahill called that December "the worst month" of the council and called that meeting "one of the low points" of his years on the council.

Similar to his colleagues, Ward 1's Hanley, who was not on the council last year, said he needed to see actual figures before making a decision, but he also said

President Signs Delahunt International Adoption Bill

An historic measure, long championed by Rep. William Delahunt, that streamlines the international adoption process has been signed into law by President Bill Clinton.

Delahunt was represented at the White House signing ceremony by his daughter, Kara, who was adopted by the congressman 25 years ago from Vietnam as part of Operation Babylift.

Delahunt recalled the anxious hours waiting with hundreds of other adoptive parents at Kennedy Airport in New York for two planes bringing the young refugees to the States just before the fall of Saigon in 1975.

One of them crashed soon after takeoff. Fortunately, Kara was on the other one. Today she is a graduate of Middlebury College with a masters degree in Spanish and German. She works in Washington.

"If life is a long and winding road, then this day is one of its destinations," said Delahunt.

The legislation implements the 50-nation Hague Convention of Intercountry Adoption, a global legal framework designed to protect adoptive children and their families and ease the cost and paperwork American families must endure.

Another key element in Delahunt's international adoption reform agenda, a measure to provide automatic naturalization of adopted children, is still pending in Congress.

Last year alone, American families helped to rescue more than 16,000 youngsters from other countries, far more than any other nation in the world.

From One Mayor To Another

Coming from one mayor to another, you might say it ranked way up there in the political compliments department.

It was Jim Sheets pitching and Frank McCauley receiving.

And, it happened at last week's full-house Quincy Business Council meeting at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Attending, in addition to business owners and leaders were guests: Sheets, five of the nine invited city councilors and several department heads.

The main subject--and still an angry bone of contention for the business community--was the City Council vote last December to hike the commercial tax classification to the maximum 175 percent instead of staying with the 169 percent proposed by Sheets.

That and the fact that at a special council meeting where a vote to reconsider the 175 percent classification was quickly shot down, business representatives weren't given a chance to speak in their behalf.

Ron Zooleck, president and CEO of the Chamber, fired away at the city maximizing the tax classification during "the best economic times in the history of the country." And wondered what was in store for the city in the event of bad economic times.

Councillor Tim Cahill noted that it was just as hard or harder to govern in good financial times because everyone feels there's enough to go around. Leaders, he added, have to be strong enough to say no.

And as an example he pointed to McCauley, city councillor and former mayor sitting across from him.

"Frank had to say no for eight years and got more unpopular as it went along," Cahill said.

"I think I've hit rock bottom," McCauley laughed. "Don't worry, you'll do better next time," added a voice in the audience. (That could be the beginning of a mayoral draft, Frank.)

McCauley was a tight fist mayor and still enjoys the reputation as the Jack Benny of Quincy politics.

Now, as chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee, he is back as a financial watchdog.

Which apparently prompted this compliment from Sheets:

"I'm glad Frank McCauley is a city councillor. We need Frank McCauley. Frank McCauley is watching everything that I do. And that is good."

Sounds like you have his vote, Frank, if you decide to make another run for mayor.

But after, of course, he leaves office. And that might be awhile yet.

The pretzel was first made by monks in southern Europe as a reward for children who learned their prayers. It is shaped to represent the crossed arms of a child praying.

GEORGE BURKE, who has had both a long and successful political and law career, has an honor coming up.

The Quincy City Democratic Committee will present him with the Dennis F. Ryan Award at a 9:30 a.m. breakfast Sunday, Oct. 29 at the Bryan VFW Post at which Senator Edward Kennedy will be the keynote speaker.

For Burke it will be a special honor because he idolized Ryan, the late clerk magistrate of Quincy District court who was affectionately known as "Mr. Democrat."

Burke will receive the award for his community and public service and his many years as a loyal Democrat.

Burke started his political career winning the Ward 5 city council seat in 1959 and went on to become a state representative and then Norfolk County district attorney.

Burke still gets around in political circles and seldom misses a biggie.

He was there at the Al Gore-George W. Bush debate at the University of Massachusetts in Boston and also the big reception following at the Kennedy Library.

He received the coveted tickets for both events from UMass President William Bulger with whom he served in the House of Representatives before the latter became Senate president.

George, known as "Trigger" as a basketball star at UMass at Amherst in the 1950s, is a generous benefactor to his alma mater. He was honored there in 1994 with the dedication of the "George Trigger Burke Athletic Hall of Fame."

And by the retiring of No. 32, the number both he and Julius Erving wore. Two No. 32s hang from the rafters in the Mullin Center in their honor.

Incidentally, Burke gave the nod to Gore in the debate. "I thought he was more decisive," he says. "He put Bush on the defensive and Bush, I thought, was vague in his responses."

George says that was his impression as an observer--not as a loyal Democrat.

SPEAKING OF HONORS, a little reminder that former Quincy High School football coach Bill Sullivan will be honored for his outstanding player days Sunday at a dinner at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St. (Social, 2 p.m., dinner 3 p.m.)

Sullivan's No. 15 which he wore as an all-scholastic at QHS in 1928-29-30 will be retired at the dinner sponsored by the Quincy High School Alumni Benefit Fund.

Tickets are $25. A few are still available. Call Ron Ivil, president of the QHS Alumni Benefit Fund at 781-340-9880 or Vin Moscardelli at 617-328-1312.

As head football coach, Sullivan had a 6-2 winning record in the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day rivalry--five of them in a row, the longest win streak in the 67-year rivalry.

But there's more to Bill Sullivan than a good football player and coach. He was and still is a role model. The kind we should have more of today.

Issue Of Hardtopping Front Lawns, Property Rights

Editor, The Quincy Sun: This is a letter in response to a letter appearing in the Oct. 5 edition of The Quincy Sun. The letter was entitled "Hardtopping Front Lawns for Parking Cars Tacky Idea" and was authored by Sal Giarratani.

Well, here we go again. It seems I'm becoming more and more leery of opening my weekly edition of The Quincy Sun. The relentless litany of ordinances and socialistic letters to the editor are a weekly dose of truly alarming ideology. Once again the issue of personal property rights is at the fore.

Mr. Giarratani, in his most recent submission to The Quincy Sun, reaffirms his adamant support of our local government, effectively, stepping upon our front lawns and barking out orders. In the case at hand the "orders" relate to where one "may" place one's automobile upon one's property. While I am admittedly not a tarot card reader, I feel safe in predicting the fast approach of the day when the private citizen will defer to city halls in many more such instances.

Perhaps there are certain species of trees that are more adorning to our city than others. Perhaps we may develop "a need" for government "guidance" in the areas of shrubbery or maybe the colors of our home sare a bit "out of line." I find that those who don't close their curtains tightly at night are particularly offensive and in need of "superintendence" or "redirection." After all, the sight of a family at the dinner table may offend passersby.

And, of course, I look forward to the day when basketball boards and poles are brought down off garage tops and driveways -- the ball invariably rolls in the street and this is just too "risky" for our young people. Yes, Mr. Giarratani it would be wonderful indeed to return to our "childhood memories."

Mr. Giarratani's argument in support of socialism collapses in paragraph five of his letter. Here he readily concedes that whe he purports is "... government butting their noses into our lives..." He swiftly attempts to absolve himself of the evils of his position by stating that he's, "not usually in favor" of such. Well, Mr. Giarratani at what point does what one adamantly supports in multiple publications become that of which one is "usually" in favor?

Furthermore, Mr. Giarratani, if the position you advance is the "common sense" argument, why do you qualify it by stating that you don't "usually" "favor" similar policies? In closing, I would warn the kind folks of our fine city to be wary of those who would advance a position while at the same time distance themselves from similar such positions.

West Quincy Ladder Truck 'Sorely Needed'

Editor, The Quincy Sun: In my opinion, as a former firefighter and officer in the Quincy Fire Department, no more time should be wasted in re-activating a new aerial ladder truck in West Quincy.

Mayor Sheets, Councillor D'Amico, Union President William Arienti, etc. have fought long and hard for the much needed apparatus.

Due to public safety issues faced daily at Crown Colony, the new Marriott Hotel, High Point construction, National Fire Protection Association, Expressway accidents, MBTA stations, etc., time is of the essence for quick response.

We should move ahead immediately in the above purchase of Ladder 3 which is sorely needed.

As the Fire Needs Study is implemented and the city's need assessed, Ladder 4 in Houghs Neck should be given next priority in apparatus placement. The "Neck" also had the ladder truck taken out of service years ago due to Proposition 2 and 1/2 and budget restraints.

Time to move ahead!

Life safety is not totally valued in dollars and cents but common sense.

Faxon Land Off Limits For School

By PAUL HAROLD

A somewhat surprised school committee learned from Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa that Faxon Field, adjacent to Quincy High School, would not be available as the site for the new trade school.

The mayor's disclosure came following a meeting with Robert M. Faxon, whose father Henry M. Faxon donated the land in 1919. Faxon said the land would be "very costly to build on and it is not up to me to change my father's wishes." The land was given to the city for recreational purposes.

The mayor said, however, that Faxon had suggested other sites for the $3 million school. Those sites would not be made public at this time because, according to the mayor, naming them would generate petitions in opposition.

CARGO SHIP LAUNCHED

U.S. Lines' cargo ship the S.S. American Crusader was launched at Fore River Shipyard this week. It was the last of six that were contracted in 1961 to be built at the Quincy yard. Its launching completed U.S. Lines' replacement program.

The 13,600 deadweight vessel was of the Challenger Class, with an overall length of 560 1/2 feet.

MYSTERY MONKEY SPOTTED

Quincy's mystery monkey was spotted for the first time in six weeks in a backyard on Pearl St. in South Quincy. Ten year-old Anthony Pusateri saw the small brown monkey munching in the family's pear tree. Reports of the monkey first came from a sighting in nearby Faxon Park.

Officials from the Animal Rescue League cited the necessity of capturing it because of the monkey's inability to survive in the cold weather. Gilbert Morrill of the Museum of Science suggested that the best way to catch the monkey was with bowls of champagne. He said that monkey were fond of champagne and after they'd had their fill they would be easy to grab.

NQHS Alumni Theatre Opens With 'On Golden Pond'

The North Quincy Alumni Theatre will open its season with the play "On Golden Pond" tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m.

Other performances, all at the Black Box Theatre at North Quincy High School, will be Friday and Saturday, Oct. 20 and 21 at 8 p.m. and a matinee Sunday, Oct. 22 at 3 p.m.

The cast includes Susie Lawler, Renee Miller, Jay Morise, Jim Seaquist and Dick Sherrell.

Parking is free and the theater is wheelchair accessible. Tickets are $10 and $6 for students and senior citizens. To reserve tickets call 617-769-0232.

NQHS Graduates In ENC's 'Kiss Me Kate'

North Quincy High School graduates are featured in Eastern Nazarene College's fall production of Kiss Me Kate, which opens tonight (Thursday) and runs for two weekends.

Nathaniel Scott, son of John and Margaret Scott, is the student director and also plays the part of a comedic gangster. He is a senior communication arts major with a theatre focus.

Colin Martin, son of Dan and Wendy Martin, has been cast as the Backstage Doorman. He is a sophomore majoring in communication arts.

Scott and Martin both participated in choir while students at North Quincy High School. They have been active in ENC performance groups since their respective freshman years.

Kiss Me Kate opens the college's 2000-2001 theatre season celebrating 25 years of theatre at ENC and the college's centennial anniversary. The musical received five Tony Awards this year. This play-within-a-play about Broadway actors behaving badly during a musical production of Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew features hit songs by Cole Porter. The musical numbers take place both in the "real" and "stage" worlds and include "Another Op'nin, Another Show," "Wunderbar," "I Do Darn Hot," and "Brush Up Your Shakespeare."

Performance dates for Kiss Me Kate are tonight and Friday, Oct. 12-13, and Oct. 19-21 at 7 p.m. and Oct. 14 at 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center, Eastern Nazarene College. Tickets are $10. For more information call the box office at (617) 745-3715.

'Maypole Of Merry Mount' At Independent Film Series

The experimental short film Maypole of Merry Mount makes its premiere tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the South Shore Independent Film Series at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St.

Adapted from Nathaniel Hawthorne's tale of the same name, the film offers a poetic nod to Thomas Morton, whose controversial settlement in what is now an area of Quincy caused much trouble in Colonial America.

The film is the work of Andrew Knight, a graduate of Eastern Nazarene College, and is produced by Poets' Mirk, a loose collaboration of various artists. The film features ENC alumni and faculty "in the ongoing tradition of Quincy folklore."

The evening also features the best of the Boston Underground Film Festival, including: Chicken Pox Pak, Like Neddie, Like Ned; Sporting Dog; and There Once Was a Man from Pawtucket.

Patrons are asked to bring flashlights and balloons to add to the celebration.

Admission is $5 and refreshments will be on sale. For more information, call (617) 773-5306.

The program is supported in part by a grant from the Quincy Cultural Council, a local agency supported by the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

As heard on WJDA Radio, 1300 AM every Thursday at 11:00am!
A VIETNAM VACATION
It may seem difficult to think of Vietnam as a vacation destination, but the South Asian country is becoming more popular. On the streets of Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon, vendors sell their wares in shops, stalls and sidewalk cars. A busy city that holds on to its culture and traditions, Ho Chi Minh is worth a visit. In Dalat, famous for its coffee shops, visitors find a good base from which to tour the Southern Highlands. In the Valley of Love, you can hire a paddleboat or horse from a Dalat Cowboy. Hue is considered one of the most beautiful Vietnamese cities. This former capital, located on the Perfume River, is filled with cultural, religious and educational sites.
Our specially trained, well-traveled consultants here at PRIME TRAVEL, know you'll discover that visiting unusual, far away places like Vietnam will add more to your vacation memories than you could ever imagine. Let us put our knowledge, resources and experiences to work for you. Wherever you are planning on exploring the world, we'll help you get there at the best rate, with the least trouble and the most fun. We're located at 500 Victory Road, Marina Bay. PH: 617-472-3697. Clam Stuffed Haddock

At a recent rare sunny weekend, we were expecting our daughters Nancy and Suzie and their families for dinner. In addition to gnocchi's that my husband was preparing (Since I showed him how, I just let that be his domain.)

I decided to also have some seafood. Especially since it's our son-in-law Anthony's favorite.

Here is a recipe for stuffed haddock made with clams that got raves!

Clam Stuffed Haddock

1 to 1 1/2 pounds haddock (I used 1 1/2)
1 container of fresh minced clams (canned may be used, but fresh is better) favorite prepared stuffing mix
1 stalk celery (chopped)
1 small onion (chopped)
1 teaspoon fresh parsley (chopped) cooking sherry juice from fresh lemon

In a frying pan in hot oil and a spot of butter or margarine, sauté the celery, onion. Add the clams and the juice, the parsley then the stuffing mix. If dry, add a bit of chicken stock and the sherry and lemon juice. Cook for a couple of minutes until blended. Remove from heat.

Prepare haddock by putting salt and pepper and rubbing it with melted butter or margarine, the parsley and some of the lemon juice. Place in a slightly greased baking dish and then top it with the stuffing. I piled it high on top and then topped it with some more lemon juice. Cover., add a quarter cup of water on the bottom and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 25 minutes. Uncover for the last five minutes. Check to see if done.

Seaside Gardeners And 'Friends' To Clean Squantum Causeway Saturday

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum and their "Friends of the Squantum Causeway" will join forces Saturday at 9 a.m. to clean up along the causeway.

The group will meet at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St. which is the causeway.

Sally Erickson, Seaside

Gardeners' liaison for the project, invites new "friends" to join the group and to bring work gloves, yard and lawn tools.

"The Squantum Causeway Project," produced by Mark Crosby of Quincy cable aired recently on Ch. 8.

It is a documentary of the improvements along the causeway and the coming together of the 200 volunteers who assisted in planting 5,000 daylilies in April, 1998. The group of volunteers became the "Friends of the Squantum Causeway" and have met several times since for planting and cleanup projects.

For more information call Sally Erickson at (617) 328-6818.

Beechwood Knoll PTO Fall Festival Saturday

The Beechwood Knoll School PTO's annual "Fall Festival" will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., rain or shine, on the school grounds, Fenno St., Wollaston.

This year's festival will feature a "Food Court" with many food items donated by local restaurants and distributors, such as chowder, sandwiches, hot dogs, soda, juice, chips, candy and much more.

Bake sale will offer various homemade breads, cakes, cookies and brownies. All the food will be sold inside the school gym where seating is available.

Another attraction is the silent auction and main raffle. Items include tickets to the Celtics, the Nutcracker at the Wang Center, and other theater tickets; restaurant gift certificates; beauty salon treatments; and other goods and services donated by local merchants. There will be music, arts and crafts for children, clowns, a moonbounce, pony rides and hayrides.

Cerebral Palsy Auction, Gala Saturday

Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts will hold its "Autumn Auction and Gala" Saturday, Oct. 14, from 6 p.m. to midnight at the President's Place Atrium in Quincy Center.

All proceeds benefit the new Children's Developmental Disabilities Center (CDDC) in Quincy, a program that has been servicing children with disabilities from birth to eight years for the past 48 years.

The evening will feature both a silent and live auction with Dan Flynn serving as auctioneer, assisted by two Patriots Cheerleaders. A hot and cold buffet will be provided by Deli Zioso Catering and The Legendary Voices will serve as the night's entertainment.

Title Sponsor for the event is Rockland Trust Company; Associate Sponsors include Amex, Inc.; Citizens Bank; Nova Marketing; Atlantic Charter Insurance; and South Shore Savings Bank.

Helen Garvey of Rockland Trust Company and Jay Flanagan of Amex, Inc., are chairwoman and chairman of the event, respectively.

Auction donations are still being accepted. To make a donation or to inquire about tickets, call Ann or Joyce at (617) 479-7443, extension 102 and 103.

Park Department Announces 'Neat Neighbors' Winners

Quincy Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch recently announced the winners of the Park Department's third annual "Neat Neighbors" contest.

The "Neat Neighbors" contest aims to recognize property owners who maintain their yard and/or property in the spirit of a Cleaner, Greener Quincy.

"I would like to personally congratulate and thank each and every one of this year's Neat Neighbors," said Koch. "These people work countless hours in their yard throughout the year to make their entire neighborhoods more picturesque. We all benefit from their hard work and dedication through a more beautiful city. I hope this recognition awards our winners, with some satisfaction for all their hard work."

Each of the winners will be awarded with a $25 gift certificate at a local garden center to help further their beautification efforts in the future. Each winner will also receive a small "Neat Neighbor 2000" lawn placard recognizing their award.

There was a new commercial property category in this year's Neat Neighbors contest. The first-ever winners in the Neat Neighbor commercial property category are: Stop & Shop Supermarket Co., LeColson Jewelers, Bolea Funeral Home, 1000 Southern Artery Senior Living Complex, and Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

"Our business community has been vital in helping Quincy become cleaner and greener," added Koch. "I congratulate all our commercial property winners and thank all businesses who take the time to recognize that the appearance of their business plays an important role in our community."

The Neat Neighbors contest was initiated by the Quincy Park Department in 1998 as a way of recognizing people who maintain their yards and/or properties in the spirit of a cleaner and greener Quincy. The contest also hopes to encourage others to join in the effort to beautify our city one property at a time.

Winners were chosen at random from more than 110 nominations received this year that met contest requirements. Properties are not judged in a competitive manner. Nominations are open every year from Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Gloria Kavell of Baxter Ave. received the most nominations for the third consecutive year.

Honorable Mention was given to all those nominees who met the contest requirements.

This year's winners are:

Kevin Sullivan, 32 Mofat Rd.; The McMillen Family, 371 Main Ave.; Dave Kraunelis, 68 Norton Rd.; Arthur Sutliff, Sea St.; Pauline and Dennis Sweeney, 68 Elm St.; John and Julie McKinnon, 10 Lorton St.; Anne and John Grant, 38 Cherry St. (four nominations); Charlene Tinkham, 44 Cherry St.; Gloria Kavell, 60 Baxter Ave. (10 nominations); Frances Nihill, 192 Summit Ave.; Anthony and Gertrude Grazer, 72 Hamilton Ave.

Robert and Barbara Barry, 100 Sherman St.; Peter Salidas, 149 N. 'Blue Mass' At St. Joseph's Church Honors Police

REV. ROBERT MONAGLE of St. Joseph's Church, the Catholic chaplain of the Quincy Police Department, blesses a basket of St. Michael's medallions to be distributed to former and current police officers and their families a recent 'Blue' Mass. At left is the Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, who concelebrated the Mass with Rev. Monagle. At right is the Rev. Anderson "Andy" Rearick of Bethel Church of the Nazarene, Protestant chaplain of the QPD. St. Michael is the patron saint of police officers.

A 'BLUE' MASS was offered recently at St. Joseph's Church in honor of police officers and their families. The memorial Mass was filled to overflowing with members of the Quincy Police Department, retired QPD members, families, friends, and parishioners.

Fire Dept. Family Safety Day To Be Held Saturday

The Quincy Fire Department will hold a Family Fire Safety Day Saturday, Oct. 14 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Fire Headquarters, 40 Quincy Ave.

Various safety agencies will be attending, including the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit, Quincy Emergency Management, Fallon Ambulance, the Boston Gas Company, Massachusetts Electric, the MBTA, and the Shriners' Burn Institute. These agencies will be offering information handouts and discussing various safety issues.

Deputy Chief Paul Cuddy, Chief of Fire Prevention, said families will be able to view various fire and rescue vehicles, including an aerial ladder and pumper, a hazardous material truck, a tunnel rescue vehicle, a fire investigation van, and an antique fire engine from the Hingham Fire Museum.

Quincy's Rescue 1 will demonstrate the use of the "jaws of life" in freeing trapped victims from automobile accidents, and the Braintree Fire Department's "fire safety house" will be available for tours.

Papa Gino's Restaurants will provide free pizza and soft drinks.

The program is part of the Quincy Fire Department's observance of Fire Prevention Week. Admission is free, and all families are invited to attend.

Quincy Center Family Harvest Festival Oct. 21

The 10th annual Quincy Center Family Harvest Festival will be held Saturday, Oct. 21.

Hancock St. will be transformed into a pedestrian mall from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the event sponsored annually by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Hancock St. will be closed to vehicular traffic from Granite St. to Cliveden St.

Rain date is Saturday, Oct. 28.

The traditional favorite Costume Parade for youngsters in kindergarten to grade 5 will form at 1:30 p.m. and pass for reviewing and judging at 2 p.m. Prizes for the best costumes will be awarded in several categories.

There will be music by Scott Campbell throughout the day. Gymboree Play & Music of Quincy will have a demonstration size play area for tots from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Pickles the clown will entertain from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Winning posters created by youngsters on the theme "Our Favorite Fall Family Activity" will be displayed in store windows.

In addition to local businesses, guest vendors have been invited to participate. Local restaurants will offer their specialties from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

There will be free parking offered in the Hancock lot and the Ross garage, both off Hancock St.

After 75 Years, Flavin & Flavin Still Has The Personal Touch

This year Flavin & Flavin Insurance and Real Estate celebrates 75 years of business in Quincy and Edward P. Flavin, its president, offers this secret of success: it's all about people.

"This is a people business so you have to know and enjoy working with a lot of people," said Flavin, who joined the agency in 1966 and runs the company with his brother John, who is vice-president. Both are the sons of Edward M. Flavin who, at the age of 17, joined founders James and John Flavin in February of 1925, the same year F. Scott Fitzgerald published The Great Gatsby.

Cousin Marguerite Flavin, a daughter of co-founder James, joined the family business in the 1980's and a third generation is represented with fellow sales agent Michael Flavin, Edward's son.

"We sort of grew up around the business and it gradually becomes a part of your life," continued Flavin. "If you're honest and sincere, most people appreciate that and it builds a long-standing, friendly relationship."

Flavin said it was not uncommon to work with clients who once dealt with his father and uncles, a source of pride for Flavin. "A good part of our business is based on generational ties," he said. "That makes all the time and effort worth it."

Flavin & Flavin, which has been located at 1085 Hancock St. since 1948, is a full-service real estate and insurance agency serving the needs of individuals, families, and companies throughout the South Shore area. The office features a state-of-the-art computer system, including a special rating computer which can provide instant rate comparisons of various insurance companies.

But advanced technology aside, Flavin emphasized that helping people make important life decisions was the common thread of the company's 75-year history in the city. To that end, Flavin & Flavin is open seven days a week, including weeknights.

In addition, the agency tries its best to recruit agents with experience in other professions to be of optimum help to its clients. "It's very helpful if employees have experience in business or in other fields -- banking, accounting, especially teaching -- because our job is to provide information," Flavin said. "In a sense, what we're doing is teaching our customers how to buy a house."

Other members of the Flavin & Flavin "family" include: Steve Fishman, real estate sales manager; Bill Geller, sales; Jean McGinnis, sales; Donna Sweeney, sales; Don McHugh, sales; Marion Byrne, insurance manager and customer service representative; Dolores Belcastro, customer service representative; Phyllis LeRoy, customer service representative; Roma Paige, accountant; and Eleanor Golden, clerk.

John McCarthy Named Bank Of Canton V. P. Of Community Lending

John G. McCarthy, formerly of Quincy, has joined the Bank of Canton as vice president of lending based at the Quincy office. 275 Hancock St.

Now a Dedham resident, McCarthy has over 11 years commercial lending experience, ten of which have been in Quincy. His most recent position was assistant vice president of commercial lending at Citizens Bank.

"I am pleased to continue working in Quincy as I was born and raised here and am very familiar with the area," McCarthy said. "Working for a community bank will give me the opportunity to work with area businesses and help them with their financial needs."

The Bank of Canton, a

JOHN MCCARTHY community bank in operation since 1835, has offices in Canton, Quincy and Randolph and is in the process of opening an additional branch office in Canton on Route 138.

"Mr. McCarthy will be an important part of our commercial lending team. His background and extensive experience in the Quincy area will support our strong growth in this marketplace," said Senior Vice President Stephen P. Costello.

Harriet Baker To Attend Tufts Animal Expo 2000

Quincy resident Harriet Baker will have a display booth at the Tufts Animal Expo 2000 Oct. 11 through 13 at the Hynes Convention Center, 900 Boylston St., Boston.

Baker will be distributing free informative brochures and displaying copies of her book The Shocking Truth About Declawing Cats.

You Auto Know

by Tony Centorino, Kevin McGroarty and Bill Starkle

SHOCKS TO THE SYSTEM

Aside from providing a smooth ride, shocks are an integral part of the vehicle's finely tuned suspension, which is designed to keep the vehicle stable and predictable during cornering, maximize tire grip, protect the vehicle from hard jolts and dampen out road bumps and irregularities. While most automobile owners know when their shocks are completely worn, most find it difficult to detect their gradual deterioration. In the meantime, worn shocks compromise the effectiveness of the suspension. Drivers can note declining shock performance by observing their vehicles' reactions during driving. An increase in ride harshness, increased suspension bottoming or the vehicle oscillating up and down after hitting large bumps are all symptoms of loss of damping control. When you bring your car into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing, don't hesitate to ask any questions about anything relating to your car's shocks and suspension system or other system. We have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Morrissey Co-Sponsors Stalking Criminalization Law

A new law co-sponsored by State Sen. Michael Morrissey protects victims of stalking by criminalizing stalking behavior that is not accompanied by an overt threat.

Before this bill was signed into law, men and women who were stalked, but could not prove they were overtly threatened, had no protection under Massachusetts law. This crime is now known as "criminal harassment" and carries a lesser penalty than stalking with a threat.

"The passage of this legislation should serve as a strong message to those who have up to now been able to avoid criminal prosecution for harm they inflict on others," Morrissey said.

"This bill will not only appropriately punish extremely dangerous behavior, but will intervene in stalking situations before they become life threatening. I am pleased that the House and Senate have acted to fill this gap in our criminal laws," said Sen. Pamela Resor, who also co-sponsored the legislation. She is a longtime advocate for women and victims of domestic crimes.

To be convicted of stalking someone must "willfully and maliciously engage in a knowing pattern of conduct or serious acts over a period of time directed at a specific person, which seriously harms that person and would cause a reasonable person to suffer substantial emotional distress." This is the precise language used in the current stalking law, without the additional requirement of a threat.

Although the bill was filed long before the tragic death of Sandra Berfield of Everett, the bill was expedited through the process because of this tragedy. Berfield was harassed by her killer and ultimately was killed by a package bomb sent to her house.

"The passage of this legislation will give law enforcement officials the opportunity to intervene before the problem escalates," Morrissey said.

Harold Campaign Fundraiser Oct. 18

A fundraiser for City Council President Paul Harold, candidate for Norfolk County Register of Deeds, will be held Wednesday, Oct. 18 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Donation is $100 per person. Tickets may be obtained by calling Mike Lin-nane at 770-0166 or Anne Corcoran at 471-9404.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

MADD Seeking Donated Unwanted Automobiles

Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) is seeking donations of unwanted cars. The car campaign helps raise funds for MADD and is being conducted throughout the state. Anyone interested in donating a car is asked to call 1-800-720-6233.

MADD will pick up most any car that is in running condition. Cars before 1980 will not be acceptable. The cars need to be intact and the certificate of title must be presented at the time of pickup. While MADD benefits from the sale of each vehicle, the person donating may also be able to claim a tax deduction if they itemize their taxes. The IRS requires the donor to determine the fair market value.

Historic Find At Caddy Park Topic Of Lecture Saturday

In July 1999, construction workers building a new play set at Caddy Park put their shovels in the ground and unearthed a spectacular 13-inch stone blade.

The workers stopped construction and called in Metropolitan District Commission archaeologists who, through careful excavation, discovered an intact site with stone tools sitting exactly where they were placed over 2000 years ago.

This discovery, as well as subsequent research and excavation conducted at the site, will be the topic of Prehistoric Time Capsule: Discovering the Past in Caddy Park, to be presented Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at the Commonwealth Museum at Columbia Point, located at the Massachusetts Archives, 220 Morrissey Blvd., Boston.

The event is part of Archaeology in New England, a free lecture series presented by State Secretary William Galvin, who is also chairman of the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

Guest speaker will be Margo Muhl Davis, a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Archaeology at Boston University, who is studying Archaeological Heritage Management and New England Prehistory and will be studying the Caddy Park feature as part of her dissertation research.

Davis also works as an editor for the Archaeological Institute of America, the largest archaeological organization in North America.

The last lecture in the series will be Underwater Archaeology in Massachusetts, Victor Mastone, Massachusetts Board of Underwater Archaeological Resources, Nov. 18.

All lectures are presented on Saturdays at 10:30 at the Archives Building next to UMass-Boston and the John F. Kennedy Library. For more information, contact (617) 727-8470.

Henry Bradley Elected American Legion National Vice Commander

Quincy's Director of Veterans' Services Henry Bradley was elected to a one-year term as one of five national vice commanders of the American Legion at its recent convention in Wisconsin.

"It's a good tie-in with my profession," said Bradley. "I'll be able to assist more veterans."

Bradley has been director of veterans' services for the past 10 years, ever since he resigned with a back injury after 20 years on the Police Department to take the new post.

He is a veteran of the Vietnam era Air Force with 36 years in the active reserves and the National Guard.

He is a past commander of the Morrisette Legion Post and also past commander of the Fitzgerald VFW Post in South Boston in the mid-1970s. He was State Legion commander in 1994-95.

Bradley has been active in the Veterans' Administration affairs and was instrumental in bringing a VA clinic to Quincy to serve the older veterans. He started work on it in 1994. It opened last July.

He has also given his time to the community as leader in the drive raise rethe stricken Midwest community.

Bradley is also known for 30 years of playing Santa Claus at the Quincy Police Christmas party. He has played Santa in the city's Christmas parade for the past four years.

He is the second Quincy veteran to achieve national recognition in the American Legion. John Comer, the former head of the Quincy Housing Authority, was national commander in 1987-88.

Bradley, whose Region One covers all New England and six other states, assumed office Sept. 7 but already he has been to Indianapolis in the line of duty.

This week he will leave for North Carolina to welcome home the new national commander, Ray Smith, also a Air Force veteran.

Business Loan Workshop At Quincy 2000 Oct. 18

Quincy 2000 is offering a workshop for expanding businesses Wednesday, Oct. 18 from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in their 8th floor boardroom at 1250 Hancock St.

The two and one-half hour program is designed to help existing companies who are expanding and need, or will shortly need, to deal with financing growth.

Featured speakers are: Ken Goode, senior business development manager, MassDevelopment; William Kyriakakis, lending officer, The Trust; Henry Longmire, program manager, Massachusetts Community Capital Fund; Scott True of the U.S. Small Business Administration; and Gary Mansfield of Quincy 2000.

The workshop will highlight the programs of each agency and offer practical advice on obtaining the financing option that best serves a growing company.

Program costs are $10 for members of Quincy 2000 and $20 for non-members and will include refreshments. The evening workshop is handicapped accessible.

Early registration is encouraged due to limited space and an early response to the program. To pre-register by phone, contact Marcia Golden at (617) 847-1454.

Steven Crosby Inducted Into National Pharmacy Honor Society

Quincy resident Steven Crosby was inducted into the National Pharmacy Honor Society (PSI Chapter of RHO CHI) at ceremonies held recently at Anthony's Pier 4 restaurant in Boston.

Crosby recently completed his fourth year at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, receiving Dean's List Honors for both the spring and fall semesters.

He is currently doing his rotations at Norwood Hospital and plans to graduate from school in May of 2001.

Crosby is the son of Frederick and Dorothy Crosby of Quincy.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Choosing A New Look For Your Home

It's simple and inexpensive to add value and personality to any home with exterior decor touches such as shutters and window head-ers. Getting started is easy.

Exterior accents come in a wide variety of styles, shapes and colors to create a stunning new look for any home. To maximize the positive elements of a home's design, experts at Builder's Edge, a manufacturer of exterior decor products, suggest the following:

- A home's exterior is a work of art, so look at it as a painter would look at a canvas. Decide what elements of the exterior you wish to highlight. Then, gather ideas and compile a list of exterior accent options.

- Think detail. Focus on appealing or unique features. Elements such as doors and bay windows look more appealing when highlighted with color. If a home is a neutral color, choose bold colors for accents.
- Warm colors like beige and off white attract attention, while cool colors like blues and greys tend to blend and do not attract attention. Chose warm colors for accents to be emphasized and cool colors for elements to de-emphasize.

- Choose shutter and window header colors that harmonize with the home's fixed colors (roof, masonry, metal flashings, etc.) and landscape.

- Lighter colors can make a home appear larger, while darker colors make it appear smaller.

No matter what style or color exterior decor products you choose, look for these characteristics before you buy:

- Easy to install — some can be installed in an afternoon.

- Maintenance free, durable and fade-resistant — products made from vinyl-like materials last longer.

- Versatile — many products can be installed over existing sided surfaces including brick, stucco, and vinyl.

- Custom sizes and styles — enable a perfect fit for unique-shaped or-sized windows or other exterior elements.

To receive a free idea book and for more information on how to achieve dramatic results for your home's exterior, call Builder's Edge at 1-800-350-1706.

Dirty Dishwashers Can't Clean Themselves

In a country and culture where we are consumed with cleaning everything, American homeowners are washing the family dinner dishes in an appliance that doesn't clean itself — the dishwasher.

Every time a family runs the dishwasher, lime scale, soap scum, food oils, stains and grime build up on the interior surface and mechanisms. This buildup robs the dishwasher of its ability to perform at its optimal level — and that means the family dishes might not be as clean as they should be — or that we think they are.

This build up is compounded by the prevalence of hard water in America. Despite having the best water in the civilized world, nearly 100 percent of American homes have hard water. Hard water causes the lime scale buildup that consumers have battled in their bathroom showers, sinks and bathtubs. It also causes buildup on the inside of a number of appliances in the kitchen.

In the case of the family dishwasher, this buildup has a real cost to consumers — more than $1.8 billion each year is spent replacing dish-washers that no longer operate as they did when they were new.

If the dishwasher is cleaning the dishes, why isn't it cleaning itself at the same time?

Hard water minerals form lime scale, which is insoluble in water and is resistant to the normal alkaline detergents used in automatic dishwashers. Food oils, grease and particles combine with the hot water and detergent and cling to the filter screen, jets, and pump. Over time, the impact of accumulations resulting from hard water reduces the overall performance of the dishwasher.

"The consumer notion that dishwashers clean themselves is incorrect," said Kevin Schmidt, CEO of Dishwasher Magic LLC. "Consumers spend billions on cleaning products for their bathrooms, cars, ovens and floors, yet few ever clean the appliance they trust to get the family dinner plates clean."

Fortunately, Schmidt has come up with a solution: an all-natural product that not only makes lime scale more soluble — and thus easier to remove — but also dissolves the soap scum and food oils and greases that are left behind during normal operation of the machine. After the scale and greases have been dissolved, they are flushed away by the normal rinsing cycle of the machine.

The product, called Dishwasher Magic™, is easy to use. Simply remove the cap, put the bottle upside down in the silverware bin of the dishwasher and run the machine on its normal wash cycle. No soap is needed, and the product will not damage septic tanks, dishwasher surfaces or the environment. To keep your dishwasher at optimal cleaning performance and free of buildup, monthly use is recommended.

To learn more about cleaning your dishwasher, call 1-800-818-MAGIC.

At Historical Society Signing Reception

McCauley Book Does Brisk Business On Debut Day

By LANCE MORGANELLI

Standing on the Quincy Historical Society's rear porch, City Councilor Francis McCauley waited silently in his gray suit with a Quincy print tie hoping that his book signing would attract a good turnout.

His hopes were more than fulfilled when 156 books were sold and over 200 people attended the signing.

McCauley's more than 26 years of political service to Quincy and love for government has resulted in a book accounting the government history of Quincy entitled Quincy, Massachusetts, A Political History 1889-2000.

Prior to the book signing Saturday, McCauley walked in long strides around the large rooms checking to see if all was in place, pointing to a table, whispering quick comments to those running the event and making sure the guests were filing into the proper room.

His countenance changed in an instant from semi-stressed to calm whenever Quincy residents talked with him. He did not make time an issue.

While Quincy Historical Society President Joyce Baker and Executive Director Dr. Edward Fitzgerald gave commentary about the need for a chronicle of Quincy politics, McCauley sat, eyes fixed pensively, leaning on his elbows and folding his hands.

"I'm Frank McCauley, Quincy's answer to Ernest Hemingway," he joked at the start of his speech.

The 353 page book was written in long hand by McCauley and then typed by his wife, Sandra.

"Everyone complains about my [hand] writing. You can't read it from where you sit, and even if you were up here you couldn't read it," McCauley said during his remarks, as he held up one hand-written page of his first draft.

For over two hours there was a steady flow of people wanting a McCauley signature on their books. "The guardians of the quality of life in West Quincy. Enjoy, Frank McCauley" was the inscription in the book purchased by John Vallier of West Quincy.

"Of the many mayors, we believe he is one of the most forward thinking," Paul and Jennie Perito of Merrymount said about McCauley. "We're looking forward to reading about the history of Quincy through the eyes of a mayor."

McCauley had a remark of personal touch for each person who asked for a book to be signed. He asked one man if he was any relation to a clam digger who used to dig with him out on Wollaston Beach.

FORMER SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN Charles Sweeney who is among the subjects in Frank McCauley's new book looks on as the author autographs a copy for him at the book signing reception at the Quincy Historical Society.

FRANK McCAULEY signs his new book, Quincy Massachusetts, A Political History 1889-2000, for John Vallier of West Quincy Saturday at the Quincy Historical Society.

After years of being involved in Quincy politics, McCauley continues to hold public office as councilor at large. Although he describes himself as a retiree, he wakes up at 5 a.m. every morning for a six-mile walk, attends the city council meetings, goes to community events, walks Quincy's various walk fund raisers and spends three days a week with his grandchildren.

During the nearly two years, April 1998 to Jan. 2000, it took to write his book, McCauley arranged to arrive at the Thomas Crane Library at 7 a.m. on certain days to work on the research for two hours before it opened.

McCauley was commissioned by Mayor James Sheets to write about Quincy's political history because the Mayor knew that McCauley is well organized and has accumulated a large amount of data from his year of public service.

"[We] need someone who looks at it [government] from the inside out," Mayor Sheets said. Someone who participated in the city's government, Sheets said, should write the account to show how city government truly works.

The book, which McCauley wrote as a labor of love — he charged no fee — sells for $21 a copy, tax included.

McCauley keeps his pen moving as he is working on an autobiography. He currently has a few chapters written. Soon enough he'll be hosting his second book signing narrating a politician and community man who helped give structure to the city he honored in his first book.

McCauley's Mayoral Hall Of Fame Sparks Reader Interest

city in which to live, work and raise a family, the city needed a strong business, commercial and industrial base."

"He was a man ahead of his time," said McCauley of the mayor who is the only one of the six still living. "He made some controversial decisions that turned out to be the right ones."

"Noted for his political honesty and his frugality in administering the city's finances, Mayor Della Chiesa was a pioneer in the field of privatization of city services."

"Burgin came to the office of mayor under difficult circumstances. During his tenure as mayor he faced the continuing problems of the Great Depression and the 1938 Hurricane and the start of World War II."

"Bryant built a reputation of doing 'his homework' on all issues of the day, big or small, that came before him as an elected official."

"Bryant reminds me of me," said McCauley in a post-signing interview.

But the Hall of Fame takes up only four pages in the 353 page book. The rest deals with Quincy's government from 1889, when the town of Quincy became a city, up to the current administration of Mayor James Sheets.

McCauley eliminated Sheets from consideration for the Hall of Fame because he has not yet completed his administration. And, being the author, eliminated himself.

The strongest emphasis is on the period from 1958, when the city ditched its seven-year experiment with the Plan E form of government, to the present.

If you missed the first signing Saturday, there will be another Saturday, Oct. 28, from 2 to 4 p.m., this time at the Adams Mansion.

"A number of people at the signing asked to have books put aside for them," said McCauley.

"I signed a lot of them that will be given as Christmas presents."

Right now the book is not available for sale in bookstores but McCauley is conferring with his publisher — actually the city of Quincy, which commissioned the book and reaps the profits — on the future. First printing was 1,000 copies.

"We're not sure where we're going with it," said the author, who researched and wrote the book as a labor of love. "Things are still up in the air. We'll decide by next week."

Meanwhile, copies are available from McCauley himself at his Houghs Neck home, 210 Manet Ave. People have been dropping by or calling for them this week. The book costs $21, tax included. Proceeds go to the city.

If you are interested in a copy call him at 479-6230.

Home Buyer Alert: Tips On Financing Your Home

Buying a new home can be exciting, but the prospect of obtaining a mortgage on the Internet can be confusing to someone unfamiliar with the process.

To eliminate some of these concerns for prospective borrowers, Quicken Loans (www.quickenloans.com), a leading online mortgage lender, has developed a "Top Tips" list to abolish the more common worries borrowers have when financing a home online.

Here are a few "Top Tips" you should consider before getting a mortgage online:

• Know how much you can afford to spend on your new home.

It's important to know not only what the home itself with cost but also to understand the additional costs associated with the loan process--closing fees for example. Closing fees vary, but typically include appraisal; credit report; flood certification; title insurance; processing; settlement or closing; and survey fees.

• Know you don't need to put 20 percent down on a home.

Fear of making large down payments should not discourage potential homeowners from fulfilling their dreams. There are plenty of options available, such as 0 percent down or low down programs, that make the home buying process affordable.

• Know all the different loan options available.

Depending on a borrower's status (purchasing a home for the first time, refinancing, consolidating debt, home improvement, etc.), there are various programs available to consider, ranging from loans for individuals with imperfect credit to zero-down federally subsidized (FHA) loans. Adjusted rate mortgages (ARMs) have an interest rate and monthly payment that will change periodically and are ideal for short-term home ownership. Borrowers should consider their future plans and explore all options with their loan officer in order to find a loan that is best for their situation.

• Know if buying points is good or bad for your situation.

Buying points is a way to lower your interest rate. The more points bought up front, the lower your rate. Here are three situations when borrowers should consider paying points.

• Buying vs. refinancing a home. Points paid when you buy a home are 100 percent tax deductible in the year in which the house is bought. Points paid when you refinance your home must be amortized and deducted over the life of the loan.

• Relocating. Typically, companies will offer a relocation benefit and pay up to three (3) points on your behalf.

• Planning on staying in the home. You need to feel confident that you will be staying in the home long enough to save enough money to cover the initial cost of the points.

For more detailed information on the home buying process, visit the Quicken Loans Web site at www.quickenloans.com.

FALL CAR CARE

Maintain Tires Properly For Longer Wear And Safety

A flat tire is inconvenient any time of the year but can become a serious problem in the dead of winter, according to AAA Southern New England.

"Many drivers aren't aware that as the temperature drops air pressure drops with it and this can result in motorists having to deal with tire problems during severe winter weather," said Alfred Ruggiero, manager of AAA Approved Auto Repair.

A recent poll of motorists showed that 55 percent said they generally checked tire pressure at least monthly, but only 38 percent know their tires' proper pressure. The survey also found that 28 percent said they had experienced a flat tire during the previous year.

"While discovering a flat tire on a frigid morning can be a hassle, tire neglect during winter months can also be a major hazard," Ruggiero said. "Underinflation and tread-worn tires substantially degrade performance, safety and efficiency."

Severely underinflated tires provide less grip surface on the road, compromising steering, maneuvering and braking, all of which are even more essential during winter driving conditions. Tire neglect can also cause blowouts, resulting in "fishtailing," which is particularly hazardous on slick roads. Underinflated tires can also reduce gas mileage.

As with most auto maintenance, a little preventing can go a long way. AAA estimates that one-third of vehicles on the road have underinflated tires.

Here are some easy tips to avoid tire trouble:

- Check your tire pressure at least twice a month. Incorporate the procedure into your routine when getting gasoline. Make sure you know your tire's proper air pressure, which is typically specified on a placard on the glove box or on the driver's door in the owner's manual.

- Check the tread of your tire in relation to its treadwear indicator with every oil change; accelerate these checks as the tire ages.

- Consult the owner's manual for specific tire rotation information, but longer-wear tires should be rotated every 6,500 miles. This is also a good time to check the brakes.

"Replacing tires can be expensive, but that painful experience can be delayed with regular tire inspection and rotation," Ruggiero said. "The popularity of front-wheel-drive vehicles, sport utility vehicles and light trucks makes rotation even more important since these vehicles tend to wear tires unevenly."

More Electronics Make Battery Care Critical

Motorists are placing increased demands on their vehicles' batteries and electrical systems by installing upgraded audio components, adding anti-theft devices, using cellular telephones, and plugging in lap top computers.

To help keep all electrical equipment functioning properly and reduce the chance of being stranded by premature battery failure, AAA says motorists need to pay more attention to battery selection and care.

"Simple maintenance can play a key role in maximizing the life of your battery," said John Paul, AAA Southern New England's Car Doctor. "It is important to have your battery and charging system checked at least once a year. Early detection of a weak component can save time and money."

The major functions of the battery are to supply current that the starter motor requires to start the engine, provide power to electrical components and accessories when the vehicle's engine is not running and to supply current when the electrical system load exceeds charging system capability. The battery also acts as a voltage stabilizer.

Before replacing a battery, have the battery, electrical and vehicle-charging system checked for problems. Look for an automotive service facility that is part of AAA's Approved Auto Repair program. They will have the parts, tools and training needed to determine why a vehicle electrical system is not performing properly. Most AAA approved shops will also sell and install replacement batteries.

Signs of a weak battery are slow engine cranking, dim headlights and illumination of the battery/charger system warning light on the dashboard.

Keeping the battery case clean by rinsing with water and mild detergent will help reduce any current drain caused by dirt or grime.

Corrosion around the terminal connections and the battery hold-down that secures the battery can be cleaned with a small stiff brush and a solution of baking soda and water. Rinse the battery with water, but be careful of staining floors or driveways.

If the battery has removal vent caps, check the electrolyte fluid level. It should be above the tops of the plates inside the battery. If fluid is needed add distilled water, but do not overfill. Battery terminal connections should be tight. Adjust loose fitting terminals or replace terminals that have cracked.

When working around automotive batteries always wear proper eye protection, gloves and never smoke or work near an open flame. Explosive hydrogen gas is present and may explode.

Instructions for jump-starting a failed battery can be found in vehicle owner's manuals, however, jump-starting can be serious and motorists who are uncertain about battery maintenance and safety should seek professional assistance from a certified technician or AAA members should contact AAA Emergency Road Service.

When selecting a new battery, always choose one that is of the same physical size as the original battery. This will ensure proper fit and avoid excess vibration, which will shorten battery life.

Never install a battery with a lower than the vehicle manufacturer's recommended rating. For the do-it-yourself consumer, the best location to purchase a battery is a professional auto parts retailer. Mass merchandise retailers often do not have trained sales staff to advise consumers, and their stock may not be rotated frequently enough to ensure freshness.

Project SAFE Installs 300 Smoke Detectors For Seniors

Beechwood Community Life Center's fourth annual Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms For Elders) saw 21 teams of volunteers fan out across every ward in the city Saturday, installing 300 new smoke detectors and providing 500 new alarm batteries to Quincy's "at-risk" senior population.

The teams visited over 200 Quincy homes.

Volunteers also provided information, advice, and four foot check sticks to those defined as "at risk:" seniors over 75 years of age and/or with impairments that might inhibit a quick exit from a burning home.

Project SAFE -- which is sponsored by Beechwood on the Bay, The Quincy Fire Department, the National Fire Protection Association, The Quincy Firefighters, the Community Emergency Response Team (CERT), and the city's primary service clubs of Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions -- has installed over 2,000 smoke detectors over the course of four years and is being used by the NFPA as a national and international model.

"It was a fantastic day," said Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood, who also thanked the North Quincy High Rotary-Interact service group and the entire class of QFD firefighter recruits, who also volunteered at the event. "The youngest volunteer was 17 and the oldest volunteer was 82. That's quite a range."

According to the NFPA, said Beals, the combination of fire and falls is the No. 1 cause of death among seniors 75 years of age or older, "so this is definitely a life-saving project."

Not counting the Quincy firefighters who led the inspection teams, Beals said, there were over 60 volunteers lending a hand at Project SAFE, including Beechwood seniors coordinated by Kathleen Prince, director of Elder Services, and Lillian Shionis, program assistant. Prince and Shionis also organized breakfast and lunch for the volunteers, the lunch being provided by the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

The day began at 8 a.m. with welcoming remarks from Beals and Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. Volunteers were then briefed by Deputy Fire Chief Paul Cuddy about how to properly inspect and/or replace smoke detectors as well as fire safety tips and how to conduct a fire safety survey with seniors. Walter White, director of Inspectional Services, and Sharon Gamache, executive director of the NFPA At-Risk Outreach Program, provided training along with Cuddy.

"Today we are going out to save lives," Gamache told the volunteers. "You are the real heroes of life saving and fire protection."

Beals said the inspiration for Project SAFE came from Beechwood's 12-year Elder Home Repair Program, which provides support devices such as "grab bars" for at-risk seniors who still wish to live independently. The workers installing grab bars, Beals said, would constantly notice and repair faulty or non-existent smoke detectors until the scope of the problem became "overwhelming."

Quincy's one-day use of civic organizations and community involvement to solve the problem, Beals said, has been adopted by the NFPA as its national and international model. The NFPA, a national organization based in Quincy, first took the model to several rural and urban areas and then to a Navajo Reservation out west. After proving its effectiveness, the program was translated into Spanish and brought to Mexico and countries in South America.

And just less than a month ago, Beals said, the Quincy model was presented at an International Fire Fighter Education Meeting in Paris, France, and will be translated into several languages for use in Europe.

In recognition of Project SAFE and the organizations which make it possible, Mayor James Sheets issued a mayoral proclamation declaring October National Fire Protection and Safe Senior Month and thanking the groups for their efforts.

In keeping with safety guidelines, Beals reminded seniors that smoke detectors should be in all major living areas and every level of a house, including the basement. In addition, space heaters are not recommended but, if used, there should be at least three feet of space between the space heater and any other object.

For more information on the project or to request service, contact Beechwood at 471-5712.

DON UVANITTE, president of the Beechwood Center Board of Directors, and Jamie Mullen, a Rotary Club Interact volunteer from North Quincy High School did their part.

Quincy Firefighters Raise $13,730 For MDA

Quincy Firefighters Local 792 raised $13,730 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) through its annual "Fill-the-Boot" drive and Shamrock mobile program.

Led by MDA Chair Firefighter Lt. Steven Infascelli of the QFD, Quincy firefighters volunteered their time to collect donations for MDA at various places around the Quincy community.

MDA thanked Lt. Infascelli for his efforts and the city of Quincy for its generosity, including such businesses as: Quincy Municipal Credit Union, Waterworks, Wal-Mart, Home Depot, Stop & Shop (Southern Artery and North Quincy locations), Victory Supermarkets, and Roche Bros.

MDA continues its work with extensive research and patient service programs covering 40 neuromuscular diseases, including Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy and Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS or Lou Gehrig's Disease). MDA serves 2300 families statewide and more than 600 families in the Greater Boston area.

The Quincy Fire Department will host their first annual golf tournament to benefit MDA Tuesday, Oct. 10. For more information on the tournament or to sponsor a hole, contact Charlie Bahenna or Steve Infascelli at (617) 376-1045/1046.

Depression: When It's Not Just The Blues Causes, Getting Help

When It's Not Just The Blues

Everyone feels blue from time to time. A failed romance, the loss of a job, or even divorce or the death of a loved one can cause feelings of sadness in most people. These feelings are a natural reaction to stressful life events and usually go away after a short time. But when the blues don't go away, when they become overwhelming and last for weeks, months, or even years, it could be the sign of a mood disorder called depression.

What Causes Depression?

Many people mistakenly believe that depression is a character flaw that happens to people who are weak. But it is important to understand that a person who is depressed is not to blame for their condition and they cannot just "get over it" or "snap out of it." Depression can be caused by a number of factors, and it is often triggered by stressful life events. It can also happen for no apparent reason as we respond to a variety of emotions.

Could I Be Depressed?

How can you tell if you are depressed and not just blue? If feelings of sadness do not pass after a few weeks, it may mean that you are experiencing depression. Below are some symptoms of depression.

- Feeling sad or anxious most of the day, every day
- Loss of interest in activities you once enjoyed
- Unexplained weight loss or gain
- Sleeping too much or too little or waking early
- Trouble concentrating and making decisions
- Feeling hopeless, worthless, or guilty
- Feeling drained, tired or weak most of the time

How To Get Help

If you or someone you know has symptoms of depression, it is important to have this evaluated by a licensed professional. Today, depression can be successfully treated with psychotherapy or a combination of psychotherapy and medication. Bayview Associates, a program of South Shore Mental Health, has licensed psychologists, social workers and psychiatrists that can help you overcome depression. Please call (617) 847-1950 for more information.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

When do I need a hearing aid?

This question is debatable, but there are several things to ask yourself. Are you turning up the TV louder than others can tolerate? Do you avoid social situations that often prove embarrassing? How often do you ask people to repeat themselves? All these symptoms point to a hearing loss that is affecting your lifestyle. A hearing loss is a frustrating experience. You should always have a loss examined in case of underlying medical conditions. If you choose to try a hearing aid, it is because you want to live life to its fullest. It's a mentally tough person that says "I want to hear better; I don't care what it takes." Years ago vanity was an issue; now with completely in-the-canal models it isn't. Background noise also has been greatly reduced with the advent of digital and programmable products. The human brain wants to hear; it is more difficult to recover from a hearing loss when you wait too long. Hearing is a learned process and the brain needs continuous practice processing information sent from the inner ear. We offer a sixty day trial, so "what are you waiting for?" Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE RAKING LEAVES

Once again the change of season is upon us; the summer vacation to New Hampshire or the Cape is just a memory, and we realize that soon enough we will be dealing with snow and ice. Autumn is, for many folks, the prettiest season of the year, but it is not without potential health risks to the back and spine. In my opinion, the two main culprits of the Fall season are the fallen leaves and the changing weather conditions.

It has been my experience that fall's colder and occasionally damper weather can contribute to the aggravation of many back or neck problems, such as chronic sprains, strains or arthritic conditions. Secondly, the repetitive twisting and bending actions done by a person while raking leaves is a very common cause of lower back, mid back and/or shoulder problems.

If you are planning to clean up your yard and will be raking leaves, the following guidelines may be helpful:

- 1) Warm up prior to raking as you would do before exercising.
- 2) Switch sides when raking so that you are not always raking the leaves in the same direction.
- 3) Try to keep your back straight and whenever possible, get down on your knees to rake under bushes or hedges, or when lifting leaves into a trash barrel.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Red Raiders At Taunton Friday, 7PM North Quincy Battles But Bows To Barnstable

By CHRIS POISSON

In recent years, when the New England foliage arrives the North Quincy High School football team soon falls out of contention in the ever-powerful Old Colony League.

Friday night, the Red Raiders had an opportunity to change the scenery atop the OCL in what was a "big" game only four games into the season. A win against league foe Barnstable would've put them in a first-place tie with Taunton and kept the Red Raiders of the Cape winless in 2000.

Although it didn't cash in on this golden chance, North Quincy played the defending Division 1A Super Bowl champs tough before dropping a 34-22 decision at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Despite the loss, it sent an instant message to the rest of the league.

Tomorrow (Friday) night at 7 p.m., North Quincy (1-1, 1-3) will have another shot to move into the upper echelon when it travels to Taunton (2-0, 2-2) for a season-making or season-breaking game.

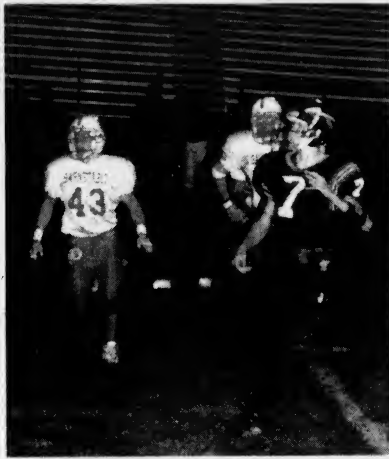

The game didn't start out smoothly for North Quincy as it fumbled at its 45-yard line on the second play of the game. Eight plays later, junior tailback Clinton Brown scored from two yards out to give Barnstable an early 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, North Quincy's passing game caught fire as senior quarterback Max Repoff and his receivers began to click. Repoff completed 5-of-8 passes for 152 yards and one touchdown in the first half.

On third-and-4 at the Barnstable 40, Repoff heaved a 39-yard pass to senior wideout Greg McGinness (6 catches, 81 yards), who made an outstanding catch as he went up high to take the ball away from a defender. Senior fullback Dean Zoia plunged in from one yard out to knot the score at 7.

On the ensuing kickoff, Barnstable got great field position when John Rizzo returned the ball to the North Quincy 37. But the offense couldn't capitalize as North Quincy senior defensive end Matt Delorey sacked senior quarterback Greg Hill on fourth down.

Two plays later, Repoff hit senior quad-captain Joe Holleran (2 catches, 82 yards) on a 15-yard slant over the middle and he did the rest as he broke a couple tackles in the secondary and jetted 70 yards into the end zone for a 14-7 advantage with 2:33 left in the half.

"Greg McGinness, Joe Holleran and Max Repoff all did a great job," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "The offensive line came up big when they had to. They took the run away from us a little bit, but we were able to throw the ball all over the yard."

North Quincy, though, couldn't hold the lead as Barnstable evened the score with a back-breaker before the half. On third-and-5, Brown bounced off several defenders for a 48-yard touchdown, his seventh of the season.

In the second half, Barnstable grabbed control of the game, scoring on the third play of the opening possession when Hill connected with senior Travis Glatki on a 12-yard fade to the right corner for a 20-14 lead (extra point failed).

On North Quincy's next drive, one play knocked them out of the game. On third-and-10 from its 48, Repoff fired a perfect pass over a defender to McGinness all the way down inside the 10-yard line. But the play was called back on offensive interference and the Red Raiders eventually punted, and never recovered.

"That's part of the game, but you just can't let that take you out of a game," Chrisom said. "You have to come right back at it again."

North Quincy felt the interference call even more when Barnstable scored on its next possession. On the first play from scrimmage, senior tailback Eljay Blount and his fresh legs flew past the defense for a 57-yard touchdown. It was Blount's second carry of the game. He later added a 38-yard TD run in the fourth for a 34-14 lead.

"We put ourselves in a hole and it's tough to get out of," Chrisom said. "We have to minimize our mistakes."

North Quincy's offense struggled for much of the second half. It turned to its passing game (20 pass attempts, 4 rushing attempts) and it didn't produce. Repoff completed just six passes on 21 attempts for only 48 yards.

"We had people in the places they were supposed to be, but [Barnstable] was getting a little more pressure up front on [Repoff]," Chrisom said. "Considering what he was up against I thought he did a real good job."

Repoff did lead his team on another scoring drive. He hit senior tight end Sean Cote (2 catches, 34 yards) for 16 yards, McGinness for nine yards and capped off the drive with a 3-yard TD pass to junior tailback Pat Bregoli. Zoia added the two-point conversion to close out the scoring.

"I thought our kids played a great game," Chrisom said. "There's no quit in them. They went down to the very end. These kids aren't going to give up. They're going to play their hearts out and give everything they have."

Council Honors All-Stars

THE QUINCY TRAVEL 10-year-old All-Star baseball team recently received citations from the City Council in recognition of its perfect 29-0 season in which it was crowned Suburban League champs. Front row, from the left, Chris Boyd, Dan Meyers, Glen Misho, Joe Lousarian, Kyle Tobin and Chris Maguire. Second row, Doug Meyers, Steve Connolly, Andrew Restrepo, Pat Totten, Brian Mahoney, Tom Conley and John Alexander. Middle Schools Open Cross-Country Season

Quincy middle schools opened up the cross country season with a flourish as over 100 harriers participated in the 1.3-mile course around Merrymount Woods and Pageant Field.

Central girls bested Atlantic, 19-44, with Central sixth grader Jessica Johnson hooking up in a real battle with Atlantic seventh grader Kayla Martin. Johnson held off the long-striding Martin for a five-second victory, leading teammates Caitlin Dow, Hallie Acton and Julia Berberan to top 5 finishes.

Broad Meadows defeated Sterling, 22-35, behind the 1-2 finish of Mary and Laura Bloomer. Katie Connolly placed third overall for Sterling.

In boys action, Central knocked off Atlantic, 23-38, as Ryan Murray edged Atlantic's Robbie Gardner, with Points' Chris Ryan-McDonald placing third after leading most of the way. Point did not have five finishers to score a team.

Sterling's superior depth propelled Mike Draicchio's Eagles to a 25-33 win over Broad Meadows. Broad Meadows' Frankie McKenna earned a 20-second win over Sterling's Eric Wilson. John Orlando and Nick Hillner grabbed top five positions for Sterling. Erick Donoghue placed fourth for Broad Meadows.

Middle school action is Fridays, Oct. 13 and 20 at Pageant Field at 3:30 p.m. The City Championship is Saturday, Oct. 28 at 10 a.m.

Quincy Hosts Stoughton Friday, 7 PM Presidents' Offense Looks To Get On Track

The Quincy High School football team must think the end zone is in another universe because it hasn't found it in nine quarters.

For the second straight week, Quincy failed to get on the scoreboard as Falmouth shut them out, 41-0, Friday night on the Cape. In four games this season, the Presidents have mustered only three touchdowns for a paltry 5.3 points per game.

Quincy (0-2, 0-4) will try to find its scoring touch tomorrow (Friday) night when it hosts non-league foe Stoughton (1-1, 2-2) at 7 p.m.

Falmouth (1-1, 1-3) scored all six of its touchdowns on the ground as it torched the Quincy defense for 317 rushing yards. With Stoughton sensation Ryan LaCasse here tomorrow, the defense will be in for another long night.

The Clippers scored a touchdown in each of the first three quarters, before pouring it on in the fourth with 20 points. Juniors Jason Williams and Jason Cleary each scored a pair of touchdowns.

Williams, a fullback, scored the first two on runs of 31 and 14 yards. Cleary, a tailback, had an 11-yard TD run in the third quarter and added his second touchdown at the start of the fourth. Seniors Adam Raymer (24 yards) and Pat Bossi (51 yards) tacked on two more TD's to close out the scoring. Senior Daragh McCann kicked five of the six extra points.

Panthers Varsity Rebound Past Storm; JV-Frosh Tie

The Squantum Storm used a high-powered offense to jump out to a 16-0 lead, only to see the resilient Quincy Point Panthers rebound for three touchdowns for an exciting 20-16 comeback win in recent Quincy Youth Football action.

Storm quarterback David Jaehng threw a beautiful 55-yard bomb on the first play of the game, which receiver Tim Kennedy ran to the Panther's 10-yard line. Two plays later, Kennedy ran around the right side for the touchdown behind the blocks of Paul Graham and Ryan Barter. Jaehng scored the two-point conversion on a keeper.

Early in the second quarter, the Storm defense forced a punt and Jaehng shocked the Panthers as he rolled out and scored a 60-yard touchdown. Kennedy added the conversion for a 16-0 lead.

The Panthers made some adjustments and scored a touchdown late in the first half as Joe Ferrara rumbled 20 yards on a sweep to cut the deficit to 16-6.

In the second half, momentum changed as the Panthers took advantage of two poor punts and a blocked punt. Quarterback Steve Priscella ran in a short touchdown and Ferrara scored the game-winner as he powered up the middle.

The Panther offensive line, led by Tim Randall, Alex Scott and Jackie Dunlea, controlled the second half. Safety John Falino sealed the win when he picked off a late Storm pass.

The Squantum JV team tied the Panthers, 24-24, as it scored three late touchdowns. Mike Garland caught a 20-yard pass from quarterback Anthony Black to tie the game. Garland also scored a 35-yard TD on a beautiful cut back run behind the blocks of Steve Yovino, Nick Brown and Roger Cufauda.

Chris Rooney had the most exciting run of the season as he broke several tackles before bouncing outside for a 40-yard TD scamper. Rooney also scored an early TD from 10 yards out as fullback Steve Spring cleared the way with a devastating block on the linebacker.

Keith Banco scored for the Panthers and was a force on defense as well. Mike Mora, Jim Aikens and Jason Thomas also played well.

In the freshman game, the Storm and Panthers battled to a 6-6 stalemate. Quarterback Doug Scott was the MVP for the Panthers as he scored on a keeper. Brian McQuinn also had a strong game.

Dominic McDougal used a great block from rookie Andrew Jaehng to score on a 15-yard run around left end for the Storm.

Squantum's Bill Kiley shined at defensive end and receiver, where he made an outstanding diving catch off a pass from Storm quarterback Zack Deegan. James Sullivan stopped a potential score with an interception.

Matt Sheridan, Kyle Tobin, R.J. Barden, Joe Theodore, Brian McLean, Bobby Yovino and Matt Jaehng sparked a tough Storm defense. J.J. Downs, Adam Blaton, Tim Nogiera and Andrew Black also played well.

North Quincy Unbeaten Streak Reaches 6 Games

The North Quincy girls' soccer team stretched its current unbeaten streak to six games, going 2-0-1 last week to raise its record to 5-1-4 this season.

Two victories this week will qualify the Red Raiders for their fourth straight state tournament appearance.

North Quincy hosted Randolph Tuesday and traveled to Taunton yesterday (Wednesday). Tomorrow (Friday) it returns home to battle Falmouth at 4 p.m.

"This week we could qualify by getting four points," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "On Friday Falmouth visits us. They are the only team to beat us and our kids have some payback on their minds. It will be an exciting week."

Last Tuesday, North Quincy defeated cross-town rival Quincy, 4-0, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Sophomore forward Christina Conley notched her fifth goal of the year, taking a Kellee Conley pass 10 yards out. Junior Allie Lacey placed a shot into the top right corner just before the half ended with Conley again assisting.

North Quincy continued to control the game as midfielders Julia Matos and Casey Ridge won nearly every ball. Seniors Colleen Lahar and Jen Conley combined for a pretty give-and-go with Conley beating Quincy keeper Kerry Eaton for a 3-0 lead.

Sophomore forward Lauren Kalil, seeing her first action of the season, scored from the left side as Kellee Conley picked up her third assist of the game.

Red Raider goalie Kathryn MacRitchie recorded her third shutout of the season. North Quincy's defense was tough, limiting the Presidents to three shots on goal. Stacy Szesuil, Diana Berberan and Laura Matos all played well.

Girls' Soccer

Playing only its second game at Teal Field, North Quincy battled Silver Lake to a 1-1 tie last Thursday. The Red Raiders, who earlier in the season defeated the Lakers for the first time ever, scored first, five minutes into the game.

Kellee Conley continued her hot streak, blasting a shot to the near post that eluded the Laker keeper. Lacey registered the assist. Conley nearly made it 2-0 when her hard shot hit the cross bar. Silver Lake evened the score 10 minutes before intermission as Lindsey Fairweather rocketed a shot by a screened MacRitchie.

Both teams had excellent scoring chances in the second half. The Laker keeper mishandled several Red Raider scoring bids, but the forwards were unable to capitalize on the rebounds. Freshman Jenn Ryan, in her first varsity action, nearly gave North Quincy the lead midway through the second half as her shot was snared at the left corner by Silver Lake's keeper.

Ridge, Erin McFarland and Lauren Sleeth all had exceptional games at midfield against Silver Lake's two best players, Fairweather and Jana Whiting. Szesuil also had a strong game as did sweeper Kelly Rice.

North Quincy earned its second win of the week Friday when it tamed the Taunton Tigers, 6-0. Playing a light rain, North Quincy's offense took 30 minutes to get untracked before sophomore forward Katy Mercurio scored a beautiful goal, volleying a shot past the Taunton goalie with Kellee Conley picking up her fifth assist of the season.

Two minutes later, Conley netted her fifth goal of the year with Kelly Coleman assisting.

The Red Raiders turned up the pressure in the second half. Sleeth blasted a low shot from 20 yards out for her second goal of the season with Lacey assisting. Lahar then took a pass from Sleeth several minutes later to make it 4-0.

Sophomore midfielder Katie Timmins notched her first varsity goal, ripping a shot from 18 yards out with senior Jen Djerf assisting. North Quincy closed out the scoring as Kalil fed Rice at the top of the area, who scorched a shot into the back of the net for her first varsity goal as well.

North Quincy received solid performances from Berberan, Julia Matos, Kate Markhard and Rachel Enos. MacRitchie made eight saves, including a spectacular diving save on a breakthrough for her fourth shutout.

"This was a big week for us," Bregoli said. "Our offense came alive, getting contributions from a lot of different people. Getting Kalil back will help us down the stretch. Kellee Conley had a huge week for us offensively, scoring two goals and collecting four assists. But it's been a team effort as we've had 12 different players score goals for us this season."

"Defensively, we are really playing well," he added. "In the past five games we've given up only two goals and getting three shutouts. Our goals-against for the year is 0.90."

Youth Football League Celebration Oct. 29

The Quincy Youth Football league will celebrate its 50th anniversary Sunday, Oct. 29 at Veterans Memorial Stadium with the time to ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An unexpected chance to travel opens up. Accept it, even if it upsets your strictly structured schedule. The change will be good for you, and you'll also make some new friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Start to act on the newly received information for which you've been waiting. Be careful to ignore irrelevant distractions. You need to stay focused as you move ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A recent career disappointment can turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Put your time to good use by looking for the job you really want and not one for which you would merely settle.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might find your co-workers tuning you out. Instead of boasting about your accomplishments, let your work speak for you, and you'll soon earn their respect.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A valuable relationship could be at risk because of a misunderstanding that you might have already set in motion. Watch for it, and take immediate action to correct it.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your friends worry that you might not be recovering from a recent disappointment as quickly as they'd hoped. Reassure them that you're OK and that you're on the right track.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Personal relationships move into a more positive aspect after a few short-run setbacks. A family member has some surprising information. Pay attention.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Those unresolved problems drain you of your energy. Clear them up or clear them out. Start with a fresh approach to personal and professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Some recently revealed information might be unsettling, but you need to deal with it. If necessary, ask someone you trust for emotional support.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Expect to be confronted with a situation that you might perceive either as a dilemma or as a delight. The choice is yours. Best advice: Keep an open mind.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You emerge from a difficult as well as delicate situation stronger for the experience. But there are still loose ends to be tied up before the problem is resolved.

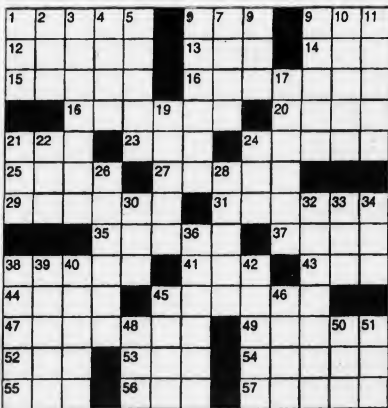

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Yours is the sign of the chemist, so start creating a chemical reaction between you and that love-ready Leo who has been waiting for a chance to roar.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have an adventurous spirit and love to explore new places. You also have a delightful sense of style as befits an intrepid trendsetter.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

To escape danger, babblers—a group of about 250 small to medium-sized birds—use their strong legs to run and hide rather than fly away.

RELIGION

Thank You Luncheon At Union Congregational

The entire congregation of Christ Church in Middleboro, led by the Rev. Martha Swanson, its pastor, will come to worship Sunday at 10 a.m. at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston.

The purpose of the special visit, which includes a Thank You Luncheon of ham and beans following the service, is to thank Union Congregational Church for their generous support of Christ Church's Building Fund.

Christ Church is preparing to build a new building in Middleboro which will include a sanctuary, a fellowship area, and several classrooms.

Following the meal, a brief presentation on the building project will be made. The public is cordially invited to attend the special service and luncheon.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

There is an old Arab proverb which states, "A secret is your slave if you keep it; your master if you lose it."

Benjamin Franklin once quipped about the art of keeping a secret: "Three may keep a secret, if two of them are dead!" This apt piece of wisdom reflects a simple, logical truism. When you discreetly whisper a

'tidbit' into another one's ear, you violate your own injunction. The discreet individual may do many things, but, above all, he keeps a secret well, because he knows that a trust once violated is never again regained. Such discretion means many things . . . prudence, tact, restraint and moderation. Certainly it is an art - one of the most important arts we can possess - of knowing how to retain a confidence and how to handle privileged information. Many friendships have been ruined by a loose tongue.

All of us are privy to secrets - about ourselves, about others and about special situations. Sometimes they can be a heavy burden. Sometimes they can force an agonizing choice" to speak out or remain silent. It's simply a matter of thinking about and caring for the needs and trusts of someone else . . .

North Quincy Boys, Girls Sweep Tri-Meet

The North Quincy boys and girls cross country teams recently picked up doubles wins at Taunton in a tri-meet against the Tigers and the New Bedford Whalers.

The girls (3-2) took a 19-38 decision over Taunton and a 21-38 win over New Bedford. Linda Nguyen and Natalie Caron led the way with a 1-2 finish. Freshman Brenna O'Brien finished fifth overall. Beth Goodrich, Lisa Rubino, Sarah Wilson and Lauren Ready also ran well.

The boys (3-2) edged New Bedford, 27-29, and easily outdistanced Taunton, 18-39. Brian Breslin and Jeff Bartolini finished 1-2, respectively. John Fidalgo took fifth, while Steve Barkowski, Will Gardner and Paul Griffith all made the top 10.

Cross - Country

At the recent Baystate Invitational, Bartolini was feeling sub-par but still placed fifth in 16:23. Breslin (18th) also cracked the top 25. Fidalgo, Barkowski and Griffith ran all-time bests on the 3.1-mile Franklin Park course. Old Colony League rivals Barnstable and Silver Lake edged North Quincy.

In girls action, Caron won the girls JV race and Nguyen placed 11th in McIntyre Championship action. Other JV runners were Rubino (PR 24:05), Ready (PR 26:30) and Meghan Haines.

Freshmen standouts O'Brien and Goodrich ran the 5k race rather than the 3k, clocking 23:07 and 25:01, respectively. Meghan Sidorowicz, Danielle LaRose, Lily Luo and Madeline Tarabelli also competed.

Mite A's Win Opener

The Quincy Mite A travel hockey team recently won its season opener against a strong skating Wellesley team, 4-2.

Wellesley jumped on the scoreboard quickly, scoring the game's first goal. Quincy's defense, along with new goalie Matthew Brundige, held Wellesley to only two goals.

Quincy's Seamus McKenna potted two goals, and Kevin Keith and Matthew Rodriguez each netted one. Quincy's strong forechecking carried the team in the second and third periods to give Quincy the win.

Here are the members of the team coached by Kevin Mock and assistant coach Christopher McCarthy:

Matthew Brundige, Brian Bowe, Matthew Bridgeman, Shawn Dowling, Zachary Helfrich, Kevin Keith, Kevin Magoon, Andrew McCarthy, Seamus McKenna, Jeremy Mock, Derek Murphy, Trevor Richardson, Matthew Rodriguez, Victoria Virtue and Patrick White.

8 Stories, 111-Unit Luxury Apartments Planned the offices and retail businesses of the Munroe Building.

Wolfe added that rent will include all utilities except electricity.

Architect for the project is John Sheskey and Associates, Inc., which is located at 14 Franklin St. and has done business in the city since 1975. Some of their projects, Fleming said, include the re-design of the Quincy Mutual Building and the design of The River Bay Club and buildings at Crown Colony and State Street South. The company also designed the proposed third office tower for Presidents' Place and the High-Point development in West Quincy.

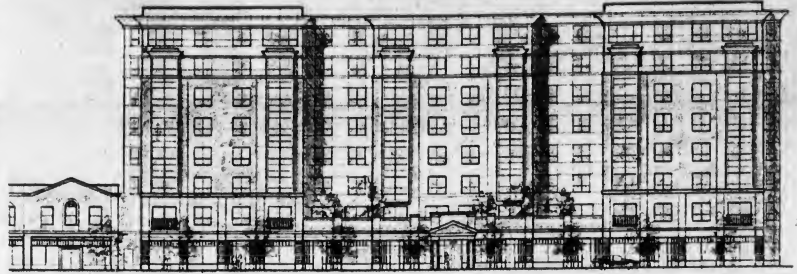

"John Sheskey is one of the best architects I've seen in Quincy or in Boston," Fleming said. "He has had possibly the most single dramatic effect on the architecture of this city."

Sheskey, the company's president, said the new building will reflect a "contextual design" seeking to blend the new structure with the existing Munroe Building and the area in general. "That's been the idea from the very beginning," Sheskey said.

The apartments above the first-floor retail space, Sheskey said, will have full bay windows; state of the art conveniences, and have access to a full range of services in keeping with the expectations of a luxury apartment.

The new building will directly abut, but not connect to, the Munroe Building, although Wolfe said that exterior improvements such as awnings will be designed to make both buildings appear as a single entity.

AN ARCHITECT'S RENDERING of the 8-story, 111-unit luxury apartment building proposed for Hancock St. adjacent to the Munroe Building in Quincy Center. The Grossman Companies, Inc., wants to combine seven floors of one and two-bedroom apartments with first floor retail space at an estimated cost of nearly $20 million. Architect for the project is John Sheskey and Associates, Inc., of Quincy.

done in terms of traffic and parking issues and that any permits approved would address those issues. "More people will walk down Hancock St. to businesses like Abigail's Crossing or the X+O Restaurant. Right now all we have there is a parking lot."

Sheets' opinion that the 8-story mix of retail and residential would add to activity in Quincy Center and enhance the quality of life in the area was echoed by Fleming. "This project will really wake up the downtown," Fleming said. "For the Grossman family to show this sense of confidence in Quincy Center is wonderful."

that he was "leaning" toward the 175 percent classification. Speaking of skyrocketing property values in his predominantly residential ward, Hanley said he needed to "hear from my constituents" on the issue but that he was happy to be discussing the issue openly.

"There's always room for compromise," Hanley said. Hanley's support for the maximum percentage was met not with criticism but with comment from QBC's Agnitti. "A rising tide lifts all boats," Agnitti told the councillor. "Your ward is part of a whole: the city."

The mayor said he expects to submit a classification to the council by late November or early December supported with data on city revenue sources, expenditures, and property values.

Regarding property values, Sheets said the city is in the process of making interim property value adjustments to comply with state-mandated certification. The adjustments will reflect increased property values and bring city assessments closer to 96 percent of market value. According to a recent state review of the city's property values, current assessment is only 91 percent of market value.

Since property values have increased, Sheets said, the actual tax rate will go down.

Classification, whereby the CIPP (Commercial, Industrial, and Personal Property) is multiplied by a percentage, is a means of shifting the tax burden from residential to commercial property.

At 175 percent classification, the current tax rates per $1,000 of assessed value are $15.71 residential and $35.25 commercial.

Stop And Shop Ends Bid For Newport Ave. Gas Pumps

The dispute as to whether or not to install gas pumps at the Newport Ave. Super Stop and Shop has been resolved.

At a recent meeting of the Montclair/Wollaston

Neighborhood Association, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott told residents of Super Stop and Shop's intent to withdraw its application at Tuesday night's meeting of the Quincy City Council acting as the Special Permit Granting Authority for three gas pumps in the northeast quadrant of the existing parking lot.

Stop & Shop had filed an application last spring to amend their 1994 special permit to allow the gas pumps. The proposal was met with an intense lobbying effort by the Montclair community against it.

While the Planning Board recommended by a vote of three to one to approve the amended permit, the final decision rested with the council. McDermott explained to residents that a final meeting was held with Stop and Shop representatives Sept. 29 at which McDermott painted "a very bleak picture for the future of the proposal."

McDermott commended the neighborhood for "sticking to the issues" as the debate unfolded and highlighted the outstanding concern of traffic congestion in the community as a key factor in the overall debate. "Currently, Newport Avenue is a sea of traffic throughout the day," McDermott said. "The intersection at Holbrook Road and Newport Avenue continues to pose a danger to pedestrians and vehicular traffic. If a gas station were to be installed, traffic patterns would be shifted within the parking lot and the neighborhood substantially and I have not been convinced that those shifting patterns could be mitigated."

Stop and Shop's decision to withdraw its application came as welcome news to Gregory Newton, president of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association and a leading opponent of the gas pump plan. "From the beginning this has been a quality of life issue for residents and a survival issue for small gas station owners," Newton said. "We're grateful that Stop and Shop has withdrawn its application."

McDermott also applauded Stop and Shop's reconsideration of the matter. "I believe that this is in the best interest of the community and of Stop and Shop," McDermott said. "We currently enjoy a wonderful partnership between Stop and Shop and the City of Quincy. They have demonstrated their commitment to the community by listening to its concerns and making the bold step to abandon this idea."

Quincy, Wollaston Associations Meet Tonight At Atlantic Center

The Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations will hold a meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hayward

St. The three issues on the agenda are: a presentation on the building of a new, multi-million dollar high school in South Quincy by William G. Aylward, publisher of the Black's Creek Newsletter; downstream seepage issues related to development of Quarry Hills; and the proposed gas station permit for Stop & Shop on Newport Ave.

All QCA members are urged to attend and residents are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Negotiations Continue As Hospital Workers Picket

Negotiations continue between members of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) Local 285 and Quincy Medical Center as both sides work to avoid a possible strike by hospital workers.

Meanwhile, SEIU members held informational pickets Tuesday morning and afternoon outside the hospital to protest what they see as a lack of progress in contract negotiations.

The union — which includes technicians, therapists, pharmacy workers, and clerical, service, and maintenance workers — voted recently to authorize a strike but no strike date has been announced and there has been no labor action taken.

The union seeks to restore a retirement plan and bring health care workers' wages "up to area standards." It also opposes the rotation of work shifts and any reduction in time off due to personal or family illness or injury.

"Last year union members lobbied hard to win a state bailout and to save our hospital and health care in Quincy," said Gale Martell, an employee in the laboratory. "For years we've sacrificed by giving up wage increases and even reducing our wage package by 10 percent last year, including relinquishing our retirement plan. I'm really shocked that management would treat us this way."

Karen Schwartzman, a spokeswoman for Quincy Medical Center, confirmed that hospital workers had been working with an "extended contract" since the original contract expired Sept. 30, but she emphasized that no actual work stoppage had taken place and that negotiations continue in earnest. "We are intent on resolving our differences and will work very hard to reach an agreement," Schwartzman said. "Negotiating honestly and directly is a very high priority for us."

Schwartzman would not comment on the issues raised by the union, reiterating QMC's policy of direct negotiation only. "We prefer to handle our negotiations directly across the table and not through the media," Schwartzman said.

Quincy Medical Center, formerly Quincy City Hospital and Quincy Hospital, is now a privately-run hospital affiliated with Boston Medical Center.

New QHS, Central, Sterling Issues Public Hearing On Oct. 30 For School Plans

By CRAIG SALTERS

The Oversight Committee of the City Council will hold a public hearing Monday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. to discuss the city's multi-million dollar plan to construct a new Quincy High School and renovate facilities for Central and Sterling Middle Schools.

The School Committee and several department heads will be invited to the public hearing in an attempt to have a comprehensive public review of the project, which has caused concerns with respect to location of the new QHS off Quincy Avenue, adequate space for parking and athletics, cleanup of hazardous materials on the site, and possible land takings.

"There's a lot of confusion by the public," said Councillor Patrick

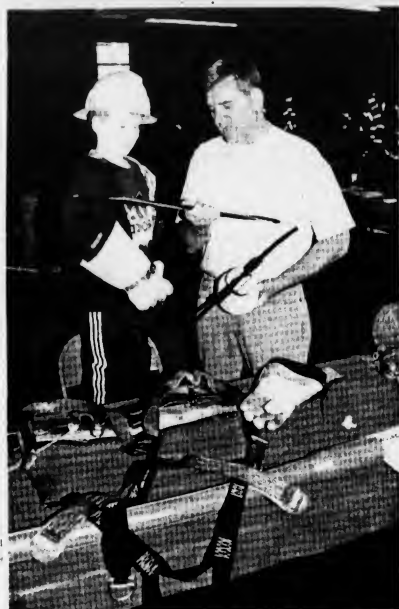

McDermott, a proponent of the move to the Oversight Committee. "The public deserves to have a final presentation before we proceed."

Speaking to The Sun Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets agreed that it was good to have a hearing on the issue given the enormity of the project, but he added that the debate should help separate rumor from fact.

Millennium Celebration For Children Oct. 28, 29

The City of Quincy's Millennium Committee will sponsor a weekend of activities for children Saturday, Oct. 28 and Sunday, Oct. 29.

The activities will include ceramic tile decorating, planting of a "Millennium Tree", a pie-eating contest and a groundbreaking for a time capsule.

On Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the lawn at the Thomas Crane Public Library, children will be encouraged to decorate ceramic tiles, some of which will be chosen for permanent display in the Thomas Crane Public Library children's section.

Tiles will also be displayed at local community centers and other public events. The 4-inch square tiles, paints and instructions will be provided. Children must be residents of Quincy to participate.

"By incorporating these tiles into the new library, the Millennium Tile program will allow children to become a part of the history of our city. This fun, creative activity will be one that children, years from now, will look back on with pride because their tile was chosen to be shown in the new library," said Rhonda Merrill, chairwoman of the Quincy Millennium Committee.

On Sunday, Oct. 29 from 1 to 4 p.m., the Millennium Committee will display all of the tiles that were created on Saturday. The display will occur on Constitution Common (next to City Hall). In addition, the Millennium Committee will conduct a ceremonial planting of the Quincy Millennium Tree.

There will also be a pie-eating contest with prizes for the winners and a groundbreaking for a millennium time capsule.

The committee is comprised of Rhonda Merrill, Linda Colon, Gloria Noble, Owen Eaton, Brad Howard, Leone Howard, Suzanne Webber, Jane D'Amico, Nancy MacDonald, Michael Berry and Henry Bosworth.

For more information, call Merrill at the Office of Special Events and Tourism at (617) 376-1296.

Bellotti Names Youth Development Director

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti has named Dr. William Knight, an education professional for more than two decades, to be director of Youth Development to oversee a new expanded approach to juvenile interventions at his office.

The new approach is expected to include the development of a summer leadership camp for the county's youth, an intervention and mentoring program for at-risk juveniles and a public safety after-school activity agenda.

Dr. Knight currently serves as director of Educational Programs at the Norfolk County House of Correction. His extensive experience in the area of educational program building includes a stint as project director for the Rhode Island Training School.

He holds a doctorate in education from Nova Southeastern University in Florida, a masters degree in Industrial Technology from Pittsburgh State University in Kansas and a bachelor's degree in Industrial Technology from Roger Williams University in Rhode Island.

He served as dean of Professional Development at Roger Williams, from 1995 to 1998.

"I am confident that the appointment of Dr. Knight will enable us to marshal all of the resources of our agency in an effective, efficient and cutting edge manner for the purpose of diverting more Norfolk County juveniles from the delinquency which more often than not leads to adult criminal behavior," said Bellotti.

White House Wreath To Honor John Adams

A wreath from The White House will be placed on the tomb of President John Adams in a ceremony Monday, Oct. 30 at noon at United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist), also known as "Church of the Presidents," 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Lt. Cmdr. Douglas A. McDonald of the Naval Reserve Center Quincy will present the wreath on behalf of President Clinton. Members of the U.S. Navy Color Guard will lay the wreath on the tomb of President Adams, which rests in the crypt beneath the church.

Cmdr. William Foster, Jr., Commanding Officer of the USS Constitution, will also participate in the ceremony.

The wreath-laying ceremony marks the 265th birth date anniversary of the second President of the United States who was born on October 30, 1735.

A tour of the church and crypt will be offered following the ceremony. The public is invited. For more information, call (617) 773-0062.

McCauley Lone Dissenter City Council Votes 'No' On Questions 4, 6

The City Council passed a resolve Monday night recording its opposition to ballot Questions 4 and 6 and urging Quincy residents to do likewise.

Calling both questions "a little too vague and a little too aggressive, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott co-sponsored the resolve with Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley.

"It's an irresponsible tax cut," McDermott told his fellow councillors, arguing that the measures would jeopardize local aid and make it difficult to fund vital city programs.

If passed, Question 4 "would reduce the state personal income tax rate in steps over three years to 5 percent" from its current 5.75 percent.

Question 6, if passed, "would allow a state personal income tax or corporate excise tax credit for Massachusetts tolls and motor vehicle excise taxes."

By a voice vote, councillors unanimously approved the resolve save for Councillor Frank McCauley, who said he didn't want to tell Quincy residents how to vote but that, on principle, he favored lower taxes.

"Who wrote this, Al Gore?" McCauley rhetorically asked his colleagues.

In response to other councillors, McCauley pointed out that the state doesn't have a graduated tax rate. Therefore, he said, an across-the-board cut is fair even though, obviously, larger incomes will see more savings from the percentage decrease.

Council President Paul Harold commended McDermott and Hanley for bringing the issue to the council's attention, noting that the questions directly impacted local government and were worthy of "guidance" from the councillors.

Harold added that organizations such as the Massachusetts Municipal Association (MMA) were opposed to the ballot questions because of their potential to "rob cities of local aid."

Election day is Tuesday, Nov. 7

Meeting Addresses 'Body Art' Concerns

By CRAIG SALTERS

Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines confirmed that a preliminary meeting was held Friday to consider amending city ordinances to encompass the many and varied forms of "Body Art."

The regulations, Hines said, would be strictly based on health issues and would be "along the lines" of current regulations concerning body piercing.

"This is not necessarily to prohibit but to regulate," Hines said, adding that relevant health issues include proper training, adequate sterilization procedures, and consistent inspection.

The pro-active move, Hines said, is the result of activity in the State Legislature which may soon remove the stipulation that only doctors are allowed to perform tattooing in Massachusetts.

According to Hines, Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets, served as chairwoman for the meeting which was attended by Hines as well as: Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue; Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton; and Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Assistant Solicitor Hines emphasized that any possible ordinances regarding such "Body Art" as tattooing, branding, skin braiding, scarification, implantation, and amputation were "strictly at the beginning stages."

Stronger Ordinance For Oversized Vehicles

A new city ordinance makes it harder for oversized vehicles to park on residential streets.

Under the old law, said Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, police officers had to deal with "gray areas" that made enforcement difficult and led to problems in some areas of the city.

The new law targets "certain vehicles above the size of a pick-up truck being parked on a residential street in a fashion that prohibits the normal flow of traffic or disturbs the quality of life in a neighborhood." Officers will be able to ticket and/or tow any vehicle that violates the ordinance.

Newton, who sponsored the original resolve on the issue, emphasized that the ordinance, which was unanimously passed at a Sept. 25 meeting of the City Council, deals with truly oversized vehicles such as winnebagos or trailer trucks.

BATTERY MAINTENANCE

It is periodically necessary to add distilled water to lead-acid batteries because they consume some of the water in their dilute sulfuric acid electrolyte during normal charge/discharge cycles. More accurately, the water electrolyzes into hydrogen and oxygen and escapes as gas. Thus, periodic additions of water are necessary to keep the plates flooded. Maintenance free batteries, on the other hand, use a calcium alloy of lead (instead of an antimony alloy) to reduce the amount of electrolysis. Furthermore, maintenance-free batteries are designed with higher electrolyte levels to ensure prolonged coverage of the plates. Because an abnormal electrical system condition or high ambient temperatures may boil off more water than expected, adding water may extend the life of a maintenance free battery.

He announced that he was ordering a naval blockade of Cuba, and explained that the U.S. would not tolerate the existence of the missile sites currently in place. ... On Oct. 21, 1967, a protest march on Washington, D.C., against the Vietnam War draws over 50,000 participants. U.S. Marshals and troops guarding the Pentagon attempt to disperse the demonstrators. Several U.S. Marshals use their wooden batons against the crowd. No one is seriously injured, but over 500 people are arrested. ... On Oct. 20, 1968, Jacqueline Lee Bouvier Kennedy, widow of the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy, marries Aristotle Onassis, the Greek shipping magnate, in a ceremony held on his private island of Skorpios in Greece. ... On Oct. 16, 1984, at Loma Linda University Medical Center in California, Dr. Leonard L. Bailey performs the first baboon heart transplant, an operation in which a diseased human heart is replaced by a healthy baboon heart.

Next: A Sheets' Book?

We may have another mayor-author in the wings. When former Mayor Frank McCauley autographed and presented the first two copies of his book Quincy, Massachusetts: A Political History 1889-2000 to Mayor James Sheets, the latter hinted he might write one himself.

If so, he would be the fourth of Quincy's mayors to turn author.

The first was Joseph LaRaia who caused quite a stir in 1979 with his book, A Political Autobiography: A City Under The Influence.

It was LaRaia's version of his turbulent two years as mayor in 1976-77, blasting away at his political enemies and critics he blamed for hindering and obstructing his short-lived administration.

LaRaia upset incumbent Walter Hannon in the famous re-election of 1975 -- winning the mayor's office by 483 votes.

After two controversial years LaRaia in turn was ousted from the mayor's office by Arthur Tobin by more than 5,000 votes.

The 185-page book was written in somewhat of a strange style. LaRaia identified himself as the mayor in the book but the setting was a fictitious city called Quarry. And he used thinly disguised characters instead of real names throughout the book. Maybe as insurance against possible lawsuits.

But anyone who knew where City Hall was had no trouble sorting out what fictitious name was tagged on who.

Some thought the choice of names ridiculing. Others found them amusing.

Don't know how many copies were printed or how many were purchased. But it was read by many as copies got quickly passed around.

There were hard feelings back then between people in the LaRaia camp and those in the Jim McIntyre, Hannon, Tobin camp.

So hard, they would pass one another on the sidewalk and ignore one another. Or cross the street to avoid one another.

But time does heal wounds and hatchets have been buried in the years since. The once bitter political enemies have patched things up for the most part.

And can be seen at mayoral inaugurations and other political events sitting together and chatting amicably. It's now: let bygones be bygones.

'Prep For Success' Returns To Quincy Public Schools

The Quincy Public Schools announce the return of the after-school program, "Prep for Success," which is designed to provide academic and enrichment programs at both high schools as well as all middle schools at no cost to parents or students.

The program provides an after school opportunity for students, especially those in middle schools, who are generally too old for the traditional after-school programs and too young to be alone every afternoon.

Students can choose from a wide variety of programs such as Homework and Tutorial Centers, academic, athletics and programs in the arts like theater and music School principals have the freedom to design a program best suited for their students.

One of the highlights of "Prep for Success" is recognition of MCAS tests as an increasingly important part of children's educational future and the offer of remedial help and test preparation MCAS courses to students.

"We recognize the importance of preparing our students for success but we also recognize the need to provide a safe alternative to leaving middle-schoolers home alone," said School Superintendent Eugene W. Creedon.

Registration for "Prep for Success" is going on right now. It will run for six weeks during the fall and six weeks in the spring. Days, times and courses vary by school. Contact the schools and ask for the Site Coordinators of the program.

And, that's good.

The second mayor-turn-author was Thomas Burgin in 1982. His Remembering Quincy At 80 was pretty tame compared to the LaRaia book: nostalgic memoirs of his political career and the changes in Quincy he had witnessed down through the years. Copies were of limited number and the book was written mainly for his family and friends.

Sheets says he might write a book after he leaves office. (Which could be a while yet.)

He says his would be more in the style of a textbook on municipal government. Now in his sixth term as mayor--and maybe with at least a couple more to come -- and 16 years as Ward 4 councillor he should be pretty well qualified on the subject.

But it might not be just a textbook.

He says he wants to write the histories of special projects during his administration "because certain things need to be said."

That might touch off a little speculation and whet the appetite of potential readers.

Another of Quincy's political figures, City Councilor Tim Cahill, joined the ranks of authors in 1994. But his book was non-political.

Entitled Profiles In The American Dream is spotlighted the business success stories of Louis Grossman, Howard Johnson, William Rosenberg (founder of Dunkin Donuts) and developer Peter O'Connell.

As a political history of Quincy as a city, McCauley's book was well researched and documented, and pretty well written.

McCauley spent two years on it as a labor of love. No fee. He wrote it at Sheets's request as part of the city's millennium observance.

The city plans to place copies in outlets such as the Quincy Historical Society where a booksigning was recently held and in gift and book shops.

The book sells for $21, tax included. Would make a nice Christmas gift for anyone interested in Quincy's political history.

There were will be another booksigning Saturday, Oct. 28 from 2 to 4 p.m., this one at the Adams Mansion, Adams St.

Meanwhile, McCauley is plunging into his second book, this one an autobiography which he says "will reveal the real me."

Frank, we can hardly wait.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1904 postcard view of the old wooden commercial building on the corner of Franklin and Water Streets in Quincy Adams. The Quincy Variety Co. was owned and operated by Walter Pinel and his son Arthur for over forty years. Unlike today's variety stores, this was a home furnishings store selling mostly furniture. A few hundred yards to the left was the Quincy Adams depot and the Water Street grade crossing of the Old Colony railroad. This was the last grade crossing to be bridged in Quincy. It was terribly dangerous with over 100 trains a day passing over the road and trolley tracks. The new approach ramps to the bridge over the railroad raised the grade of Water Street on the right side of this building. A few years ago the Hibernia Bank tore down the building and a couple of houses next to it and the site is now home to an Eastern Bank branch office.

Supports Question 3 Ban On Greyhound Racing

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The Quincy Animal League would like to express its support for Ballot Question #3, an initiative to ban greyhound racing in Massachusetts.

The greyhound industry will try to whitewash its activities, but the truth is that when a dog is not a winner, he is either killed or given up for experimentation. An estimated 20,000 such dogs are killed every year. Their only crime is not running fast enough to make money for their greedy owners. These dogs are caged at the track for up to 20 hours a day, then forced to race at high speed in the worst weather conditions.

The few who are fortunate enough to be saved by rescue groups are often malnourished, dehydrated, and full of parasites, many with untreated injuries and broken bones. Lots of us have dogs in our homes and love them as part of the family. Think of your own dog being subjected to this living hell when you vote on Nov. 7 and your choice will be a clear: A YES vote on Question #3.

A Crush On Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
A recent feature in one of Boston's daily newspapers entitled "A Crush On Quincy" described why many young families and single people have been and continue to be drawn to settling in Quincy.

The primary reason given by those converts to Quincyism: affordability, accessibility and a level of comfort. Although these logical conclusions sum up some of Quincy's attributes, they fail to highlight a most important value indigenous to life in Quincy. It is a trait regularly witnessed in action and that is a commitment by Quincy's citizens, institutions and businesses to becoming involved in issues and problems that affect quality of life.

Examples of this abound whether it be the Family Commission's Transitional Housing Program, Newborn Home Visiting Program, or a group of volunteers pitching in to build a children's playground, a road race to benefit eye research, or one to find a cure for breast cancer, or a group of neighbors, concerned about their neighborhood, banding together to oppose overdevelopment and "urban sprawl."

To quote the German theologian Deitrich Bonhoeffer, we citizens of Quincy are not afraid to "step out beyond anxious waiting and into the storm of events." More often than not our efforts and resolve meet with a measure of success or contribute positively to the process. The events surrounding the recent withdrawal of Stop & Shop's proposal to construct a gas station at their Newport Avenue property is a good example of this community activism.

The Montclair Wollaston Neighborhood Association made a concerted effort in bringing the community's concerns about this proposal to the attention of Stop & Shop and the City Council in its capacity as the PUD special permit granting authority. And although Councillor

Pat McDermott was required to remain impartial in the process leading up to the council hearing to decide upon this proposal, he was fully cognizant of and communicated the neighborhood's concerns to Stop & Shop while conveying the unlikelyhood they would receive required council approval. His role in mitigating this issue cannot be overlooked.

For now, reason has prevailed and Stop & Shop should be applauded for the bold step they have taken to withdraw a proposal that was clearly contraindicated for the Montclair area. Stop & Shop has been a good neighbor to the city, generous in its support of many causes and a beneficent business partner to the Montclair School. The willingness of businesses like Stop & Shop to give back also helps make Quincy a great place to live.

I believe that people will continue to be attracted to Quincy, not only for its accessibility and affordability but because Quincy is populated by those who continue to give of themselves. They will also continue to have "a crush on Quincy" as long as the weight of overdevelopment and urban sprawl does not crush the neighborhoods we cherish and continually seek to nurture.

UAW President Marches With Shipyard Pickets

By PAUL HAROLD

Walter Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers (UAW) and vice president of the CIO, marched with pickets who were striking at the Fore River shipyard.

At an early morning meeting at the union headquarters, Reuther told 700 strikers that the Steel Workers and the UAW had pledged $50,000 to the general strike fund to help their Quincy brothers.

He said that the shipyard workers were carrying the torch for all organized labor. He said that if the Bethlehem and U.S. Steel broke the shipyard workers, it could happen to all workers in America. He told the striking workers to "Keep your chin up and keep marching... you have the moral and financial support of six million members of the CIO."

792 VETERANS ON HOUSING LIST

City Councillor Frank Orcutt testified before a legislative committee, calling on the state to provide housing subsidies to provide subsidized rents for returned veterans. He said that while Quincy had 144 temporary veteran housing units, there was a waiting list of 792.

Mayor Charles Ross joined with Orcutt in seeking state aid, noting that a subsidy was needed to provide housing at rents of $35-40 a month.

MULHALL TO HEAD FOOD COMMITTEE

Mayor Ross named Judge James Mulhall to head the city's Food Committee to work in co-operation with President Truman's national Food Committee. The purpose of the national and state effort was to provide aid for starving Europeans and to draw people's attention to the emergency situation.

The committee proposed the following schedule to save food:

- Use no meat on Tuesday.
- Use no poultry or eggs on Thursday
- Save a slice of bread every day
- Restaurants were to serve bread and butter only on request.

QUINCY-ISMS

Quincy's second oldest resident died this week at age 101. She was Mary (Taylor) Sands Lyte, mother of former Fire Chief Sands. Flight Around Boston Light To Honor Air Pioneer Quimby

Lady pilots and their passengers will fly around Boston Light wearing purple shirts Sunday, Oct. 22, in honor of Harriet Quimby, the nation's first female pilot.

Quimby and her passenger, William Willard, were killed July 1, 1912, when their Blériot monoplane crashed into Boston Harbor while circumnavigating the lighthouse during an exhibition.

Purple was the favored color in her flying costume.

The rounding of Boston Light will be a highlight of the three-day, sixth annual Harriet Quimby Research Conference, an organization based in Woodland Hills, Calif.

The reenactment of the historic flight will take place between 8 a.m. and 12 noon Sunday from Norwood Airport, which is co-hosting the event. It is coordinated with the International Organization of Women Pilots.

Preceding the flight on Friday, Oct. 20, "Harriet's Ragtime Costume Ball" will be held at United First Parish Church from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Formal evening attire or military uniforms of the time (1890 to 1920) are encouraged.

Admission is free but donations will be accepted at the door to defray the cost of refreshments. Donations of $3 per person or $5 per couple are recommended.

The Commonwealth Vintage Dancers will demonstrate the One Step, the Tango and other dances of the ragtime period.

On Saturday, Oct. 21, there will be a Pioneer Aviation History Program with slide presentations, lectures and exhibits from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society Museum, 8 Adams St.

Carroll F. Gray, aviation

HARRIET QUIMBY

GIACINTA KOONTZ

historian and author, will recount the pioneer spirit of the first air show fliers in, "The Aviation Exhibition Era (1909-1915)," including glimpses of Wilbur and Orville Wright, Harriet Quimby and Hap Arnold, later the U. S. Air Force chief.

Giacinta Bradley Koontz, director of the Harriet Quimby Research Conference, will speak on the similarities between the flying careers of Harriet Quimby and Amelia Earhart, both of whom flew out of the airfield at Squantum.

The multimedia presentation, "Harriet and Amelia --- the American Aviators," will be given by Koontz in 1912 vintage costume. There will be door prizes and souvenir handouts. Admission is free and open to the public.

Mayor James Sheets has proclaimed Oct. 20 to 22 "Harriet Quimby Days in Quincy" and Rep. William Delahunt with a "Certificate of Special Congressional Recognition."

"Through the many men and women involved in aviation her memory lives on," said Sen. Edward Kennedy in a message to the conference. "Her courage and grace remain an inspiration to pilots everywhere."

Prior to her death, Quimby had already made a reputation as the first woman to fly her own plane across the English Channel.

John Black's Tall Ships Photos At Milton Camera Club

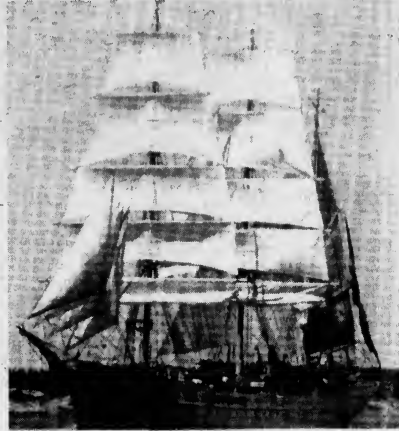

Quincy photographer John Black will show his photos of the recent visit of the Tall Ships at a meeting of the Milton Camera Club Wednesday, Oct. 25.

The meeting will be at First Congregational Church, 495 Canton Ave., Milton.

Black, owner of Presidential Camera shop in Quincy, will show views of the Tall Ships he took from the deck of the U.S. Coast Guard's training vessel, The Eagle.

The public is invited to attend and bring their own photos of the Tall Ships if they have any.

Refreshments will be served.

Spooky Halloween Tales At Adams Shore Library

Storyteller Jennifer Smith will present a program of Halloween tales on Wednesday, Oct. 25, at 3:30 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St.

The witch's brew of spooky songs and stories answers the questions: "How do you keep ghosts and goblins away on Halloween?" and "What do pumpkins and shiny pennies have in common?"

This family program, sponsored by the Quincy Arts Lottery, is for children

6 and older and their parents. Younger children may be frightened by some of the tales.

Earlier in the day, the City Stage Company will present "The Tale of the Three Little Pigs" at 10:30 a.m. at the library.

The program, sponsored by a grant from the Mabel Louise Riley Foundation, is designed for children as young as 2 years. Members of the audience are invited on stage to play various parts in the production.

'Streetpeople' Performances At QHS Auditorium

The Wazalendo Players will present "Streetpeople," a British Broadcasting Corporation award-winning play by playwright Ben Ateku, in the Quincy High School auditorium.

The performances will be Friday and Saturday, Oct. 20 and 21 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 22 at 5 p.m.

Tickets are $10 per person.

Quincy Medical Center CEO Named '2000 Up And Comer'

Modern Healthcare magazine has named Quincy Medical Center President and CEO Christine Schuster to its group of "Up & Comers" for the year 2000.

Modern Healthcare is a weekly publication based in Chicago, IL. Each year, the magazine partners with national executive search firm Witt/Kieffer to identify one dozen remarkable young leaders who are considered confident and courageous and whose accomplishments will have a far-reaching effect on the healthcare delivery system and the people who constitute it. The national search, fueled by peer nominations, identifies young executives who demonstrate in significant, tangible ways the impact an individual can have on the vision, mission, and quality of healthcare services.

"Being named to this

high caliber group of people is an honor," said Schuster. "I am proud to represent Quincy Medical Center and attract national attention to the incredible accomplishments we are making with our new Boston Medical Center affiliation."

The cover story highlights Schuster's journey from bedside nurse to CEO and her ability to turn things around at institutions such as Tenet/Saint Vincent

Healthcare System (Worcester, MA) and Athol Memorial Hospital. "In today's volatile healthcare environment, Christine's steady, strong leadership is the key to the success of this institution," said Quincy Medical Center Chairman of the Board, Robert Curry. "With her leadership and direction, we are confident our patients will always come first."

Quincy Medical Center is a private, non-profit, 282-bed acute care hospital affiliated with Boston Medical Center and the Boston University School of Medicine. Founded in 1890, the hospital offers state-of-the-art medical technology and a highly skilled staff providing medical/surgical, pediatric, psychiatric, sub-acute, and critical care services. More than 120,000 patients visit Quincy Medical Center each year.

Houghs Neck Council To Honor Good Neighbors

The Houghs Neck Community Council will hold their annual Good Neighbor Honor Awards Banquet Sunday at the Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St. with a social hour at 5 p.m. and dinner at 6 p.m.

The honorees for this year include Eileen and Thomas Timcoe "Good Neighbors", Kathy and David Shaw for their Civic Contributions to the community, Betty Molloy for her assistance to the Senior Community and "Special Recognition" to Doty Greene, principal of the Atherton Hough School for her years of dedicated service to the children of the community.

Eileen and Tom Timcoe were selected for their many years of "unending devotion to the Houghs Neck Community Council." Tom has past president and Eileen has served as treasurer for the past 10 years. Together they assist in publishing, collating, and mailing the Bulletin every month. One of them is usually helping to organize the many activities the council runs, like the Good Neighbor Banquet, Flower Sale, Tree Lighting.

Eileen is the organist and Choir Director at Most Blessed Sacrament Church. Tom is a Life Member of Quincy Yacht Club and a past Commander of the Houghs Neck Squadron 380 Sons of The American Legion. They have owned E & T Ceramics and Printing for 22 years.

Tom also works at Quincy Medical Center. In their spare time they enjoy working around their Rock Island Road home. Eileen is the daughter of Bill and Veva Darrow. Eileen has a sister Veva Johnson and Tom is the son of the late Will and Mary Timcoe also honorees of the Civic Good Neighbor award. Tom has four brothers Bill, Joe, Charlie (Beau) and Michael. They are also four sisters, Marianne McCormack, Thelma Powers, Debby Favorito, and Judith Morris.

Kathy and David Shaw are both life long residents of Houghs Neck. Their activities include assisting the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the Most Blessed Sacrament Parish and serve as CCD teachers. In addition, they volunteer with Serve New England, and the Atherton Hough PTO. They are the parents of two children, Sam and Matt, both students at Broad Meadows School. Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bythrow and works at the Caritas Good Samaritan Medical Center. Dave is the son of Patricia Shaw and is employed by the MWRA. In their spare time the Shaw's enjoy sports and quality time with the kids.

Betty Molloy is an Outstanding Senior and has lived all but two years in Houghs Neck. The only girl in the family of six, she married the late Francis Molloy 59 years ago this past June. Betty worked at Salingers as a bookkeeper prior to retiring. She is still very active in the Catholic Daughters of America (CDA) and has served as Sentinel. She is a member of the Sodality, at the Most Blessed Sacrament Church. A former long time Treasurer of the Senior Citizens Groups that meets at the Community Center. In her spare time, she enjoys crafts, crossword puzzles, reading a good book and shopping for clothes. Betty has many times opened her home to meetings and enjoys doing it. If you see "Call Betty" in the Bulletin she's the one. Betty has three children, Francis, Judith and Philip, and also has 8 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

The Special Recognition will be awarded to Dorothy Greene who has been principal of the Atherton Hough School for 11 years and has been an educator and administrator within the Quincy Public School system for 30 years. Her mother Frances Greene is a resident of Cape Cod. Brother, Gene Greene and wife Diane (also a teacher), have two children Alicia and Michaela. Dottie's interests include traveling with family and friends to warm, sunny climates like Florida and the Caribbean. She believes "that any honor that is bestowed upon her, in essence, also bestowed upon each and every staff member, student and parent of the Atherton Hough School community." "I share this honor with each and every one of them." Spoken by a true Good Neighbor.

3 Grants To Quincy Groups For Legal Services To Poor

The Massachusetts Bar Foundation has announced three Interest On Lawyer Trust Accounts grants to two non-profit organizations in Quincy that provide legal services to the poor.

The Bar Association of Norfolk County will receive $20,000 to conduct monthly legal clinics offering services directly to low income persons in Norfolk County courthouses.

The Bar Association of Norfolk County will receive $12,000 to support a pro bono program at the Probate and Family Court in Dedham that will represent inigent litigants with issues for divorce, custody, modification, visitation rights and contempt of court.

DOVE, Inc., of Quincy will get $12,000 to provide 209A information and education, lawyer referrals, court accompaniment and legal support and advocacy to battered women in shelters or transitional housing. A 24-hour on-call legal advocacy hotline will be maintained.

PRIME TRAVELER by George P. Murphy

As heard on WJDA Radio, 1300 AM every Thursday at 11:00am!

CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA

Cape Town delights visitors with hospitality, natural beauty, culture and history. A trek to Table Mountain, overlooking in its size and magnificence, is a crucial part of the Cape Town experience. Another integral aspect of any trip to Cape Town is a guided tour of nearby Robben Island, site of the infamous prison where Nelson Mandela was held. At the Victoria & Alfred Waterfront, visitors enjoy wonderful views and great shopping, including a South African craft market and a wine emporium specializing in local vintages. Groot Constantia, one of the city's many wineries, is a magnificent estate known for its red wines. The South African National Gallery highlights South African contemporary art, which often reflects the country's troubled past. Looking for something different, something a bit out of the ordinary for your next vacation? Somewhere like South Africa? An experienced travel agent can greatly enhance the success of your trip. Status Of Auxiliary Police Topic For Public Safety Committee Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico wants the Public Safety Committee to look into the status of the Quincy Auxiliary Police.

D'Amico sponsored a successful resolve at Monday night's City Council meeting requesting that the committee examine the auxiliary's role in the city, specifically recent events where auxiliary police officers were dismissed after a controversy with Police Chief Thomas Frane regarding the auxiliary's use of firearms.

Frane, who says that weapons are not necessary for the specific duties of auxiliary police officers, discovered that said officers were not properly certified and ordered them not to carry weapons on duty. When they refused, Frane considered it a disobeyed order and dismissed them.

The auxiliary, led by Auxiliary Police Chief Anthony Siciliano, contends that firearms and other forms of protection are necessary for officers' safety and the proper performance of their duties.

City Democrats Forum Oct. 24 On Questions 4, 6

The Quincy Democratic City Committee will hold a forum on ballot questions four and six Tuesday, Oct. 24 at 7 p.m. at the Quincy High School Auditorium.

The forum, said Democratic City Chairman Michael Cheney, will provide Quincy voters the opportunity to discuss the questions and how, if passed, those questions would impact Quincy.

Question four concerns income tax rate reduction and Question six deals with a tax credit for tolls and motor vehicle excise taxes.

For more information, contact Cheney at (617) 471-1493.

Walking Tour Saturday Of Mount Wollaston Cemetery

The Park Department's "Environmental Treasures of Quincy" program will sponsor a walking tour of the Mount Wollaston Cemetery Saturday, Oct. 21, beginning at 10 a.m. at the Greenleaf Street entrance to the cemetery.

The tour, "Seasons Change: A Foliage and Historical Tour of Mount Wollaston Cemetery," will feature Ed Fitzgerald, director of the Quincy Historical Society, joined by members of the Park, Forestry & Cemetery Department staff.

The tour will highlight the history of the city as found in the cemetery, including stories of famous people interred there, examples of the finest "rounded" granite in the world, the history of the cemetery and information on the eclectic varieties of trees in the cemetery.

"I encourage people to enjoy a weekend stroll through one of Quincy's most pictorial areas, the Mount Wollaston Cemetery," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department.

For further information, call the Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Quincy Biodiversity Days Identify 166 Species

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures of Quincy Program recently hosted Quincy's first Biodiversity Days.

The state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs challenged every city and town in the state to identify as many native plant and animal species as possible. Approximately 80 cities and towns participated.

In Quincy, residents scoured the Blue Hills from the granite quarries to St. Moritz Pond and the coast from Black's Creek to Squaw Rock. Technical assistance was provided by: Thomas Palmer of the Neponset River Watershed Association; Robert Dano, biology instructor at Quincy College; MDC Rangers Margaret Brown and Gail Janacek; and David Hodgdon of the Friends of the Blue Hills. Participants identified 166 species in total, from 140 plants, shrubs, and trees to 26 animals.

"We barely scratched the surface of all the diversity we have in Quincy," said Sally Owen, chairwoman of the Advisory Committee to the Environmental Treasures Program. "I was especially amazed by the variety and quantity of life in Black's Creek. We saw numerous shrimp, crabs, a sponge, and an exotic-looking black fish with a long, pointed nose and a yellow-striped stomach."

This is the first year of the statewide Biodiversity Days program created by Robert Durand, secretary of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs. "Biodiversity is the key to a healthy ecosystem. Each species, from the largest to the smallest, has its place in the web," said Durand. "The first step to ensure biodiversity is to find out just how many species we have in our community."

Quincy data has been submitted to the state to add to the statewide inventory.

"Next year, we hope to have even more people participate in our Biodiversity Days," said David Murphy, program manager for the Park Department. "That will enable us to identify even more species."

Individuals with expertise identifying birds or other species willing to volunteer for next year's Biodiversity Days can contact Sally Owen at (617) 472-0799.

The next Environmental Treasure Tour will take place Saturday, Sept. 30, at 2 p.m. at Black's Creek. Those interested should meet in the Caddy Park parking lot. For more information, contact the Park Department at 376-1254.

ROBERT DANO, a biology instructor at Quincy College, shows Meg Doherty how to collect marine life in Black's Creek while Janet Eaton prepares to record the species identified. Dano will lead the nature tour of Black's Creek Sept. 30.

can you pass this good health quiz?

- 1 Do you have a primary care doctor?
- 2 Do you have access to Boston's best hospitals—Brigham & Women's and Children's?
- 3 Does your doctor's practice offer a 24/7 nurse advice line or urgent care?

There are immediate steps you can take toward living a healthier life. Start by choosing a doctor you're comfortable with. One who has access to world-class hospitals like Brigham & Women's and Children's Hospital Boston. A doctor whose practice offers both urgent care and a 24/7 nurse advice line.

You can have all of this at Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. It's not an HMO — it's a group of doctors and other caregivers focused on your good health. And Harvard Vanguard accepts many types of insurance. To find a doctor that's right for you, visit www.harvardvanguard.org or call 1-888-876-HVMA today.

FALL CAR CARE

Luxury For Less: Getting More Car For Your Money

For many people, the thought of owning their "dream car" remains exactly that -- an elusive dream.

These days, however, dreamers and value-conscious car shoppers are discovering that they can get more car for their money through certified, pre-owned vehicle programs.

These programs -- offered by several mid-size and luxury car manufacturers -- give consumers the opportunity to drive low-mileage, late-model, higher-end vehicles with the latest safety and technology features at affordable prices. Plus, some programs offer protection plans with limited warranty coverage, as well as roadside assistance.

What's fueling the new trend in used-car buying? One reason is the growth in leasing. According to Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine, nearly 33 percent of the vehicles to roll out of showrooms in 1999 were leased, not purchased. When the leases end -- usually after a two- or three-year contract -- many relatively new, well-cared-for models come back into the market, often with their prices showing more wear and tear than their tires.

So how can you get behind the wheel of the certified pre-owned car of your dreams?

1. Turn on your computer. Some manufacturers make online shopping for certified pre-owned automobiles easy with an inventory data-base. For example, BMW's enhanced "Virtual Center" website (www.bmwusa.com) lets consumers find the most accurate information about Certified Pre-Owned BMWs, and search for cars simply by entering their zip codes and basic information about the car they want (body style, price range, etc).

2. Compare programs. Find out about the certification and inspection process, the buyer protection plan, and finance and lease options. Asking questions is the best way to protect your investment and make sure you're getting the car you want.

3. Visit dealerships and compare certified pre-owned vehicles:

• Interior--Check the condition of the seats, upholstery, brake and accelerator pedals, carpeting, odometer and instrument panel, dashboard, glove compartment, trunk, sunroof, windows, lights, stereo and alarm.

• Exterior -- Check under the car for oil or fluid leaks. Examine the body and bumpers for rust, scratches or dents, as well as irregularities in the paint color, sheen or texture.

• Ask to see maintenance records.

• Take a test drive -- Are the seats comfortable? Do the seats work? During the test drive, evaluate visibility, braking, cornering, handling, shifting and accelerating, unusual noises, directional brake lights, windshield wipers, heating and air conditioning.

Roadworthy Tips For Parents Of Novice Drivers

Learning to safely operate a car is a very complex task and may require years of practice. Fortunately, there are many ways parents can help their teens master this skill.

Many states have enacted a Graduated Driver Licensing System (GDL) to slowly introduce teens to driving. Here are some ways parents can help:

• First, get a copy of the state driver manual, which details requirements for obtaining a learner permit. Both parent and teen should review the manual.

• When planning practice sessions, leave plenty of time for each session and anticipate that new drivers make mistakes. No yelling! Young drivers learn best in a positive atmosphere.

• Remember the adult supervisor is a role model for the novice driver. As a passenger or driver, the adult needs to be on his or her best driving behavior at all times.

• New drivers need to practice under many types of conditions. Traffic safety experts recommend at least 50 hours of practice, with 10 hours at night.

• Start with the basics. Find a parking lot or low traffic area, where the new driver can practice starting or stopping, turning left and right, looking in the mirrors, looking down the road and to the sides.

Young drivers learn best in a positive atmosphere. Be patient. It takes a lot of practice to become a good driver.

While the vehicle is stopped in a safe place, walk around the vehicle while the novice follows you in the mirrors. Stand in the blind spot to show where the driver cannot see pedestrians or another vehicle.

• Practice driving in light traffic areas and on streets with low speed limits. Teach the four-second following rule. Parents can help by initially doing the counting.

• Once the novice feels comfortable driving at slow speeds, move to areas with more traffic and higher speed limits. Remember to practice driving under poor weather conditions such as rain, fog, or snow, during both daylight and at night.

Also, remember to:

- Always buckle up and never drink and drive.

- Be patient. It takes a great deal of practice to become a good driver.

- Never attempt driving in any situation until the novice is ready.

- Drive at a comfortable safe speed, but maintain traffic flow.

- If needed, have the novice take formal driving instruction from a reputable source.

Foster Grandparent Program A Boon To Local Senior

By CRAIG SALTERS

If the best teacher is one who never stops learning, then Yasha Khibkin is one pretty good teacher.

Born in Uzbekistan in the former Soviet Union, Khibkin and his wife Raisa emigrated to the United States in early 1997 to be with their two children and what is now their five grandchildren. The former high school teacher came to America with over two decades teaching experience, impressive computer skills, and degrees in astronomy and physics.

And not a scrap of English.

"I went to (job) interviews and everyone said 'Your English is not good enough,'" the 61-year old Khibkin recalled, in excellent English, from his home at O'Brien Towers in Germantown, where he and his wife have lived for almost three years.

Undeterred, Khibkin enrolled in his first English course and, with the help of a JVS social worker, kept writing cover letters and resumes to try to find new work in his new country.

Over 100 cover letters. Over a dozen interviews. No job.

But, as fate would have it, the Chauncy St. location for Jewish Vocational Services also housed Action for Boston Community Development, Inc., (ABCD), which runs the area's Foster Grandparent Program.

Khibkin's social worker put him in touch with Ruth Blackman, director of the Foster Grandparent Program, and Khibkin has been working, and helping youngsters, ever since.

In 1998 Khibkin began his part-time job as a Foster

Grandparent working for the Quincy After School Program, organizing chess clubs and "logical games" clubs for students at the Squantum, Parker, and Beechwood Knoll Schools. In September of 1999 Khibkin switched Foster Grandparent duties and now works at the Germantown branch of the Quincy Community Action Program's (QCAP) Head Start program at 9 Bicknell St.

"These are very little children," Khibkin said of the Head Start students, who refer to him as "Mister Jacob." "I've never worked with kids this age before."

Does that bother him? "Oh no, the children are very friendly," responded Khibkin. "And, anyway, work is work. When I work at Quincy After School, I found one way. Here, I find another. You can always find reasons for working or not working, if you want to."

That work ethic has driven Khibkin to constantly improve his English skills while in Quincy, first at an ESL course run by QCAP and more recently with ESL courses at Quincy College.

Khibkin's role as a Foster Grandparent is not one of teacher but of "nurturer," helping the children to draw circles, squares, and lines, helping them to paint and decorate windows, and just being a positive influence in the classroom and an aide to the teacher.

The job description for a Foster Grandparent, said Robyn Geranis, site coordinator for the program, is a person who: works directly with one child or a group of children in a small setting to encourage literacy skills; acts as a positive role model offering acceptance and support to the child with special needs; builds self-esteem with fun, creative activities, games, and stories; assists the teacher in preparing daily routines; offers feedback to teachers about issues the children may have; and is patient and accepting of all children.

"The Foster Grandparent Program brings two generations together to educate and nurture each other," said Geranis, adding that the program is "wonderfully diverse" and that multilingual staff members have enrolled many culturally diverse older adults into the program, including those of Asian, Russian, African-American, Somali, Native American, Cape Verdean, and Portuguese descent.

Foster Grandparents are adults over 60 years of age who mentor children, working up to 20 hours a week in various places including day care centers, Head Start, hospitals, and schools. Each Foster Grandparent receives ongoing support and training and orientation is followed by monthly training sessions.

Income-eligible seniors receive a non-taxable stipend of roughly $100 every two weeks which does not affect rent or benefits such as SSI, SSD, or Medicaid. In addition, said Geranis, Foster Grandparents receive transportation reimbursement, paid national holidays, 20 days sick time, 20 days vacation time, and paid "weather days" when inclement weather makes it difficult, especially for seniors, to commute.

The ABCD Foster Grandparent program, now in its 35th year, is part of a national program and is YASHA Khibkin, or 'Mister Jacob' to the children in the Germantown Head Start Program, helps students with their drawing, painting, and general development as a "nurturer" and member of the Foster Grandparent Program. "It is important to learn English," the recent immigrant advises young and old alike. Khibkin, who was a teacher in the former Soviet Union, is busy adding English to his list of languages, which already includes Russian, German, and Uzbek.

funded through the Corporation for National and Community Service and the state's Executive Office of Elder Affairs, as well as private donations. At present, over 130 Foster Grandparents work with children in over 60 sites in the Greater Boston area.

As for Khibkin, he's just glad to be adjusting to his new country and happy to be giving something back. "I like this country very much," Khibkin said. "America is very kind. I came here as a refugee and they help me. It is all very exciting."

For more information on the Foster Grandparent program in Quincy, contact Robyn Geranis at (617) 357-6000, ext. 339.

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer's Workshop Saturday

Neighborhood Housing Services of Quincy, an MHFA and HUD approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First Time Homebuyer's Workshop in collaboration with the Dedham Savings Bank.

The all-day workshop will be Saturday, Oct. 21 at the Dedham Savings Bank, 55 Elm. St., Dedham, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Lunch will be provided.

The agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer, and how to determine the best mortgage program for your needs. Each participant will have an opportunity to meet individually with mortgage professionals, realtors, and an attorney.

Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

Contact Debbie Kidd at Neighborhood Housing Services at (617) 770-2387 for more information or to register for the workshop.

Make A List And Check It Twice

The home-buying process is an exhilarating experience, but it can be frustrating if you're not really sure what you're looking for.

First of all, consider the basics.

What size lot are you looking for? How many square feet should the house be? Do you want an older home? A certain style? How many floors?

Write down the number of bedrooms and bathrooms you're looking for. And, of course, be sure to list the price range you're willing to pay.

Now list your desired features in a home. Perhaps you want an eat-in kitchen, a fireplace in the living room and a master bedroom with a separate outdoor entrance.

Or perhaps a dining room apart from the kitchen may suit your tastes better, as well as room for a home office so you can move the computer out of the den.

In addition to the "wants," don't forget the "don't wants."

Under your list of desired features, make a list of the features your home shouldn't have. For instance, if you don't have the time or money to care for a pool and don't want to pay to have one removed, this would go on your list.

If you expect to have frequent out-of-town guests who have difficulty climbing stairs, you may not want a home with a lot of trees or landscaping that you have to mow around and keep up.

Once you've completed your wish list, give me a call or stop by my office. Together, we'll locate your dream home.

Fall

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Autumn Tips For Taking Care Of Tools, Machinery

With winter right around the corner, fall is a time to pack up warm-weather equipment and get ready for the colder months ahead. Taking care of tools and machinery now will save time when taking them out in the spring.

Boats and fishing gear benefit from a little added attention in the fall. WD-40 can be used to safely remove debris and algae build-up from a boat's surface. It also protects fishing poles and gear from rust during cold weather.

How to get those outdoor tools ready for storage? Gardening equipment such as shovels, pruning shears, hedgeclippers, hoes and lawn mowers should be liberally sprayed with WD-40. Smaller items should be put in large airtight bags to keep them protected throughout the winter.

WD-40 is also helpful in removing stubborn leftovers from your barbecue grill and keeping hinges and the other parts in working order. Use WD-40 only when the grill is off or coals are extinguished. After cleaning, rinse the grill with soap and water before igniting. Patio furniture gleams after being cleaned with WD-40 and a damp cloth, which will also help keep it rust-free through the winter.

Additionally, WD-40 sprayed in locks can help keep them from freezing up in the cold months ahead.

Quench Your Thirst For Water Quality Information

There can be more to household water safety than meets the eye.

Many things you can't see can contaminate a water supply including: lead, volatile organic compounds and other potential contaminants like MTBE, a gasoline additive blamed for water contamination in 49 states.

According to a recent survey by the Water Quality Association, over 75 percent of Americans have concerns about their household water.

Many are looking for information and products to "filter" the water so it tastes, looks and smells better and is void of many potential contaminants.

Consumers can learn about issues relating to water quality by going on-line.

One such site, www.kinetico.com, allows consumers to look at different water filtering systems, some of which can be ordered on-line. A free water analysis may be ordered on line as well.

Kinetico Incorporated, a leading manufacturer of water treatment systems, is known as a one-stop source for issues or questions relating to water quality.

For information on water issues or products log on to www.kinetico.com, or call the hot line: 1-800-944-WATER.

Project Bread Awards $53,350 In Hunger Relief Grants To Local Agencies

Six Quincy emergency food programs will share more than $53,000 in hunger relief grants distributed by Project Bread, Massachusetts' leading anti-hunger organization.

Local agencies receiving the grants are:

Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion, which runs the Quincy Crisis Center, $16,000; Interfaith Social Services, Inc. (Pantry Shelf), $3,300; Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. $18,150; Quincy

Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (Father Bill's Place), $12,100; Salvation Army/Quincy Temple Corps, $1,100; and the Seaside Advocacy Group, Inc., $2,700.

In all, Project Bread distributed more than $2 million to nearly 400 emergency food programs across the state.

"The funds will make an enormous difference in the lives of hungry people in Massachusetts," said Ellen Parker, executive director of Project Bread. "While we are thrilled to have so much to contribute, we are also saddened that there is still so much need. Although jobs are plentiful right now, many pay such low wages that even a small family with both parents working is unable to make ends meet."

Project Bread is a non-profit community organization devoted to alleviating, preventing and ending hunger in Massachusetts.

CHILDREN'S CORNER, a dance, drama and voice studio, has opened at 7 Foster St., Quincy Center. Participating in the official ribbon-cutting opening were City Council President Paul Harold, Richard Gormley, president Quincy Center Business and Professional Association; Dance Director Laurie O'Connell Graff, with daughter, Alexandra; John McDonald, Director of Children's Corner; Mayor James Sheets and City Councillor Patrick McDermott.

Dr. Peter Dewire Joins Surgical Associates At Quincy Medical Center

Peter Dewire, MD, an orthopedic surgeon with Boston Medical Center, is seeing patients at Boston Medical Center Surgical Associates located at Quincy Medical Center.

Boston Medical Center and Quincy Medical Center established a clinical affiliation last October. Dr. Dewire will be joining other Boston University School of Medicine specialists who are seeing patients at Quincy Medical Center, and expanding the services offered at the hospital.

Dr. Dewire specializes in adult orthopedic reconstructive surgery. He has a particular interest in complex foot and ankle disorders, and is responsible for the Complex Foot and Ankle Clinic at Boston Medical Center.

Dr. Dewire received his BS degree from Boston College and is a 1986 graduate of the Boston University School of Medicine. He completed the orthopedic residency program at the State University of New York in Buffalo. In addition, he completed a National Institute of Health Fellowship in Rheumatology at the University of Washington Medical Center in Seattle.

Also Board-certified in medicine and rheumatology, Dr. Dewire was chief resident in medicine at St. Vincent's Medical Center in New York. In addition to being on the staff at Boston Medical Center, Dr. Dewire is an assistant professor of Orthopedic Surgery at Boston University School of Medicine.

Appointments with Dr. Dewire can be made by calling BMC Surgical Associates at (617) 328-4030.

Harold Campaign Fundraiser

A fundraiser for City Council President Paul Harold, candidate for Norfolk County Register of Deeds, will be held Wednesday, Oct. 18 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Neigh-

Donation is $100 per person. Tickets may be obtained by calling Mike Linnane at 770-0166 or Anne Corcoran at 471-9404.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

Diabetes Cost Reduction Law Passed By State Legislature

A Diabetes Cost Reduction Law, co-sponsored by State Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy, has been enacted into law.

The law requires all health insurers, including the Group Insurance Commission and Medicaid, to provide coverage for equipment and supplies for individuals with various forms of diabetes.

The supplies include blood glucose monitors, monitoring strips and insulin pumps and also requires health insurers to cover outpatient self-management training and education services.

"The legislation should keep the cost of medicine and supplies affordable for a great many individuals," said Morrissey, noting that diabetes affects nearly 400,000 people in Massachusetts.

The Congressional Diabetes Research Working Group has reported that more than one out of every 10 health care dollars is spent on people with diabetes, which costs the nation more than $100 billion annually in health related expenditures.

South Shore YMCA Receives $650,000 Grant

The South Shore YMCA has been awarded its largest foundation grant ever, $650,000 from The Kresge Foundation of Troy, Mich.

The challenge grant was made toward facility renovation and expansion, which will help the Y's ability to serve more than 10,000 South Shore residents through a family-centered community facility.

The grant funds will be released in December, 2001, when the YMCA successfully concludes its ongoing $6 million campaign. So far, a committee of 18 South Shore residents, headed by Brian and Kathy Tedeschi of Norwell, has raised over $4.2 million from 97 individuals, businesses and foundations, since the enlarged Y opened in November, 1998.

"This prestigious grant is a great honor for the South Shore YMCA, and the residents of the South Shore," said Brian Tedeschi, co-chairperson of the Mill Pond Capital Campaign. "Because the project will mostly be funded through the generosity of individuals, this grant is an immense boost to the campaign. Even more important, this grant will leverage additional funds by challenging the community to support new, important programs for children, teens, families, seniors and residents with disabilities."

Since the opening of the new Mill Pond facility, participation in Y programs and activities continues to grow. The Mill Pond Y now offers indoor tennis, indoor basketball, volleyball, youth gymnastics, adult/youth strength training, karate and more. When complete, the new addition will include an indoor aquatic center (two pools), a teen center, a senior center, art center, new locker rooms and additional space for community programs.

"A YMCA in the community says a lot about the people who live there," says committee member, Herb Emilson. "It demonstrates wholesomeness, concern and caring for families and children. Every community deserves a YMCA."

The Kresge Foundation is an independent, private foundation created by the personal gifts of Sebastian S. Kresge. It is not affiliated with any corporation or organization.

The South Shore YMCA's goal is to improve the quality of life for all, through its programs, and seeks to serve all people, regardless of age, gender, race, religion or economic circumstances.

Last year, the South Shore YMCA provided over $323,000 in direct financial assistance to people requesting service. The South Shore YMCA, based in Quincy, has a branch in Hanover, and resident summer camps in Sandwich. It serves the communities of Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Milton, Norwell, Scituate and Weymouth.

MANET COMMUNITY Health Center recently received a $2,570 check from Boston University School of Medicine for its participation in the Reach Out and Read Program. From left are: Louise Quinlan, program facilitator for Manet CHC; Bunni Fatoye-Matry, program coordinator, Reach Out and Read Center at BU School of Medicine; Lynne Sandel-Somes, family physician assistant, Manet CHC; and Fred Dolgin, M.D., medical director, Manet CHC.

Manet CHC Receives Funds For Reach Out And Read Program

The Department of Pediatrics at Boston University School of Medicine recently presented a $2,570 check to Manet Community Health Center for its continued participation in the Reach Out and Read Program, which is run in conjunction with the department.

Bunni Fatoye-Matry, program coordinator for the BU program, made the presentation to the clinical leadership at Manet CHC. The funds will be used to purchase books to meet the age ranges of children who visit the center.

Manet CHC has been involved with the Reach Out and Read Program for three years. Under the program, Manet medical providers give books to children receiving medical services and also talk to the parents and children about the value of reading.

Under the leadership of Family Physician Assistant Lynne Sandel-Somes and Program Facilitator Louise Quinlan, Manet raised the necessary matching funds to earn an increased donation this year from the BU School of Medicine. Staff have offered programs and raised matching funds through volunteer activities. "This program is a real team effort of all our staff and helps the medical care experience to be positive," said Fred Dolgin, M.D., Medical Director for Manet CHC.

The Reach Out and Read Program is offered through Manet's sites in Quincy and Hull.

Boston University School of Medicine facilitates group purchasing of books to maximize the number of books available. It also provides training to medical providers to improve their skills in supporting parents and children to do more reading together. On awarding the funds, Fatoye-Matry spoke of the "important role medical providers play in advising patients because they are looked up to and their advice is respected. This is a critical service for low income children to improve their interest in and access to books."

There is increasing evidence that problems in language development and readiness for school start well before children attend school. The Reach Out and Read Program was developed nationally because medical providers have early contact with children and are trusted by families.

Fatoye-Matry indicated that the program had over 50 sites in Massachusetts and 744 nationwide.

The Massachusetts program, which receives state funding, was founded ten years ago by Dr. Barry Zuckerman, Chief of Pediatrics at Boston University. The current Medical Director is Perry Klaus, M.D.

Colonial Federal Elects Paul Baharian To Board

Edward J. Keohane, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Colonial Federal Savings Bank, announces that Paul N. Baharian has been elected to the board of the local, mutual community bank.

"Paul Baharian was a banker for 16 years, and then he switched careers and for the past 17 years has been the executive director of one of the largest senior communities in Massachusetts," Colonial Federal President Robert Guarnieri said. "He understands banking, he understands business, and he is 100 percent committed to the South Shore. All of which make Paul Baharian a perfect addition to this bank's board. We're pleased to have him with us."

"Colonial Federal is a friendly, responsive, and professional local bank -- just what people I know tell me they're looking for right now," Baharian said. "I am looking forward to working together with the other members of this board to continue to enhance Colonial Federal's well-deserved reputation for excellence."

"I know I speak for Paul Baharian and the other members of the board when I say we all just like being part of the best little bank around," Keohane said. "There's a true home-town feeling at Colonial Federal Savings Bank that comes from really knowing your customers, really caring about them."

A Quincy native and a graduate of Ohio's Heidelberg College, Baharian was second vice-president of the South Shore Bank. He is currently the executive director of 1000 Southern Artery. He also serves as the treasurer for the Quincy Rotary Club. Baharian and his wife live in Weymouth.

With full-service offices in Quincy, East Weymouth, and Holbrook, Colonial Federal has been the South Shore's "neighborhood bank" since 1889. All deposits are insured by the FDIC. The phone number connecting all offices is (617) 471-0750.

Bank of Canton Opens Randolph Branch

Bank of Canton has opened its third branch office at 67 North Main St., Randolph, the former site of Curran's Hardware.

The bank will provide the Randolph community with a full line of deposit, loan and mortgage products for both personal and commercial customers, including Free Personal Checking and Savings Accounts with competitive rates of interest. The new branch office has a 24-hour ATM, a night depository, a drive-up window, extended banking hours and plenty of parking behind the building.

The bank staff is familiar with the Randolph community. Assistant Vice President/Branch Manager Jeanne M. Roche has worked in community banking for over 30 years, most recently at US Trust in North Randolph. Assistant Branch Manager Kathie Ludecker has 15 years of banking experience in Randolph, most recently at US Trust in Randolph. In addition, Business Development Officer Paula Burke has over 16 years of banking experience, most recently with Fleet Bank in Randolph.

"I am happy to be back in community banking with

The Bank of Canton, bringing the spirit of home-town banking back to Randolph," said Branch Manager Jeanne M. Roche.

"With all the consolidations occurring in banking today, there is a tremendous opportunity for community banks to provide customers options in banking," said James Egan, President and CEO of The Bank of Canton.

The Bank of Canton is a community bank that has been in operation since 1835. In addition to the new Randolph office, the bank has offices in Quincy and Canton.

South Shore YMCA Unveils New Fitness Center

The South Shore YMCA recently "cut the ribbon" cer-emoniously opening a new fitness center at the Y's facility on Coddinton St. in Quincy.

The newly renovated fitness center project has allowed the Quincy branch of the South Shore YMCA to expand and redesign the Nautilus, free weight room, youth strength training, and cardiovascular areas. Also, included is an enlarged exercise area for individuals with physical disabilities, as well as a stairwell that will provide members easier access to the track from the Nautilus area.

"The Board of Directors and staff are very excited to unveil this new renovation," said South Shore YMCA President Ralph Yohe. "It will help us reach out and serve more diverse groups of our community, including: all age groups, people with physical disabilities, and all financial backgrounds."

The new fitness center is phase one of the Y's renovation project. The Board of Directors voted last winter to allocate funds to build one new racquetball court in a different part of the facility.

"Listening to the concerns of our long-time racquetball/handball players, the Board of Directors is excited to be able to come up with a solution which is amenable to all," Yohe said.

The Quincy branch is the largest of the branches housed in 82,000 square-foot building. The recreation facilities include two indoor pools, newly renovated Nautilus/cardiovascular area, free weight room, two gymnasiums, a running track, aerobics studio and six locker rooms. The Quincy branch also has a large child care center, youth recreation room, multi-purpose room and a large auditorium.

The South Shore YMCA is an association of individuals dedicated to improving the quality of life for all, through programs that promote healthy spirit, mind and body. The YMCA seeks to serve all people, regardless of age, gender, race, religion or economic circumstances.

Last year, the South Shore YMCA provided $323,000 in direct financial assistance to people requesting services.

The YMCA programs and services strive to strengthen the family, guide the youth today, and meet the ever-changing needs of our community.

The South Shore YMCA has branches in Quincy, Hanover, and resident summer camps in Sandwich. The South Shore YMCA serves the communities of Braintree, Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

Is there help for background noise?

The greatest hurdle for the hearing impaired, is understanding speech in the presence of noise. In a normal working ear, the brain can process complex sounds easier than in a hearing impaired ear. Traditional hearing aids (analog) amplify all sounds equally, even the ones that you don't want, making it difficult to carry on a conversation in the presence of noise.

Today's state-of-the-art in hearing aids is digital. A digital hearing aid can make 40 million calculations in one second! These are programmed for your hearing loss and designed to work more like normal hearing in the presence of noise. The volume adjusts automatically to adapt to noisy as well as quiet situations. Annoying feedback or "whistling" is also controlled by the digital circuitry. As impressive as these products have shown to be in the past 2-3 years, there is nothing better than normal natural hearing. Take care of what you have and protect your hearing from loud noises. Call or write for brochures on digital products. Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

Presidents Eye Tigers For First Win

At Taunton Friday -- 7PM

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School football team will be watching a horror flick when it looks at the film of its Friday the 13th game against Stoughton.

If Stoughton's Ryan LaCasse had worn a hockey mask instead of a football helmet, the evening, lit up by a full moon, would've been complete.

The 6-foot-3, 235-pound senior back sliced his way through the Presidents' defense, racking up 150 yards and three touchdowns on just 12 carries to pace the Black Knights (3-2) to a 28-8 win over Quincy in non-league action at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy (0-5, 0-2) will travel to Taunton tomorrow (Friday) night to take on the first-place Tigers (3-3, 3-0) in Old Colony League play.

"They're the class of the league at this point," said head coach Bob Noble. "We're going to go down there to try to beat Taunton, not just to compete."

Quincy will have to slow down Taunton's offense, which has scored 111 points this season, if it has any shot at winning. The Tigers have a potent running game powered by senior Derek Sanchez and their quarterback, senior Chris Ciesluk, is also capable of making plays.

"Their quarterback is very effective," Noble said. "He's a lot faster than he looks. Sanchez is a heck of a player. They have a couple of running backs that are fast and strong. We have to eliminate the big play against us that allows them to score quickly. We have to make them drive down the field."

"We have a game plan in place to put us in a position to win," he added. "I think we can do some things offensively."

For the past few weeks, the story has been Quincy's offense and the Stoughton game was no different. Quincy gained 50 yards in the first half and would've been held to under 100 in the game if it weren't for a late 88-yard scoring drive that snapped a 12-quarter scoreless streak.

Once again, the Presidents couldn't run the ball and they were reduced to a short passing game as five of quarterback Mike Lorenzano's nine completed passes were for five yards or less.

"The last two games, in particular, we've had trouble getting the ball in the end zone," Noble said. "We're not executing properly. We don't make big plays. Every once in a while you have to break a play."

After Stoughton went three-and-out on its first possession, Quincy's defense looked like it was going to hold Stoughton on its next series when junior linebacker Kris Kamborian sacked quarterback Jim Pascarelli. But Quincy was called for a face mask penalty that gave Stoughton a first down, and on the next play LaCasse bounced outside for a 54-yard touchdown run.

In the second quarter, Stoughton broke open the game with two scores in a short span. Junior back Kevin McCarthy scored from 11 yards out and LaCasse rumbled 30 yards into the end zone, breaking three tackles along the way, to put Stoughton ahead 21-0 with 2:04 left in the half.

"[LaCasse] is capable of breaking a big play on every down," Noble said. "He can make a difference in a game.

It's a nice luxury. There are not a whole lot of teams that are going to catch him. He's a physical anomaly."

Despite its offensive woes, Quincy had a chance to get on the board before the break but it couldn't make the big play when it needed it most. It had the ball on Stoughton's 11-yard line with six seconds left, but Lorenzano couldn't find anyone open and his scramble came up five yards short.

"We were in a position to get back into the game and we didn't do it," Noble said. "That would've changed the complexion of the game."

In the second half, Stoughton's Mark Bacon returned the opening kickoff 55 yards to the Quincy 30 and five plays later LaCasse scored his third touchdown on a 2-yard plunge to seal the game with 8:18 left in the quarter.

Late in the fourth quarter, Quincy's defense stopped

Stoughton on fourth-and-goal from the 12 to give the offense one more chance to put a drive together. Backup quarterback Kevin O'Connell came into the game and connected with sophomore Matt Ramponi, a JV player, for 10 yards on third-and-13 and then picked up the first down at its own 24 with a 5-yard run.

After two incomplete passes, Lorenzano came back into the game on third down and hit Ramponi for 32 yards on a screen to set up a 44-yard TD pass to senior wideout Gregg Walsh with 53 seconds left in the game. Ramponi, who had 51 yards on the drive, caught the two-point conversion and Noble said he'll get more looks at the varsity level this season.

"We're working hard to be the best we can be," Noble said. "With exception of the Falmouth game, we're not going to quit."

Elks Down Panthers To Stay Undefeated

The West Quincy Elks freshman and JV teams both remained undefeated with wins over the Quincy Point Panthers in recent Quincy Youth Football league action.

The JV team (6-0) earned a 24-18 victory as Nick Malamas scored two touchdowns. Ryan Donovan and Tim Brown also found the end zone. Eric Stills (fumble recovery, sack), Malamas (2 sacks), Matt Boyle (fumble recovery, sack), Kevon Mason (sack), Adam Tragellis, Brown and Donovan powered the defense.

The freshman squad (6-0) pulled out a hard-nosed 12-6 triumph. The Elks were again led by the offensive line. Jessie Skomial, Shayne LaCorte, Devon Jones and Steve Mulligan opened huge holes for halfback Tim Kerrins and fullback Billy Connors.

The passing game proved just as effective as quarterback Dennis Martin completed passes to wide receivers Mike Mattola and Alex Tragellis as well as tight end Julian Calaruso.

LaCorte (5 tackles), Jones (5 tackles) and Skomial (4 tackles) led the defense, which has given up 9 points per game this season. Kerrins, Calaruso, Mattola and Martin also played a role in shutting down the Panther's offense.

The Elks will look to remain undefeated when they take on the Houghs Neck Manets this weekend.

FOUR OF A KIND — The North Quincy girls' soccer captains have enjoyed tremendous success in their varsity careers. Last week they clinched their fourth straight tournament appearance and picked up their 41st win. From the left, Jen Conley, Kellee Conley, coach Paul Bregoli, Casey Ridge and Stacy Szcsuil.

North Quincy Notches Fourth Tourney Berth Girls' Soccer

The North Quincy girls' soccer team won two of three games last week to clinch its fourth straight appearance in the Division I state tournament.

It knocked off Randolph and Taunton before falling to Falmouth for the second time this year. The Red Raiders (7-2-4) played first-place Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) they travel to Barnstable. Next Tuesday they take on Plymouth South.

"We reached our first goal of qualifying for the tournament," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "Our second goal of winning the OCL suffered a setback with the loss to Falmouth. It's not impossible to do that, but it is a bit more difficult."

Last Tuesday, senior tri-captain Kellee Conley tallied her first career hat trick in a 4-0 non-league win over Randolph. She leads the Red Raiders in scoring with 8 goals and six assists.

In the first half, North Quincy could not find the back of the net despite carrying the majority of play. However, junior midfielder Lauren Sleeth took control early in the second half and capitalized on a deflected shot that came to her 15 yards out. She blasted the ball past the Randolph keeper to give her team the only goal in need.

Conley got the first of her three goals five minutes later, ripping a rebound into the net from close range. She scored her second on a cross from sophomore midfielder Lauren Kalil and then sophomore forward Rachel Enos netted her first varsity goal, taking a pass from McFarland and lofting a shot into the top corner. Ryan closed out the scoring as she deposited a Kalil pass into the net.

Playing well for North Quincy were defenders Jessica Jacques, Diana Berberan and Laura Matos, and midfielders Lisa Schifone, Casey Ridge and Kelly Coleman.

Last Friday, Falmouth blanked North Quincy, 4-0, for the second time this season. Falmouth won 2-0 in the first meeting. The Clippers scored early, deflecting a corner kick off a Red Raider defender into the goal at the 3:00 mark. Falmouth then scored three more goals in the first half, all on corner kicks as North Quincy was unable to contend with the Clipper forwards in the area.

North Quincy played better in the second half with senior forward Jen Djerf getting off two good scoring bids.

"We've had trouble scoring lately, getting started early, and against Falmouth it hurt us," Bregoli said. "Overall, however, I am pleased with the team and their hustle. They play hard."

Sleeth scored her fourth goal of the year and third in three games as she headed a Herlihy corner kick into the net just before the half.

In the second half, sophomore forward Rachel Enos netted her first varsity goal, taking a pass from McFarland and lofting a shot into the top corner. Ryan closed out the scoring as she deposited a Kalil pass into the net.

The North Quincy High school football showed it wasn't ready to move up in the Old Colony League last Friday night.

The Red Raiders had a chance to move into a tie with Taunton, but they flopped as the host Tigers devoured them, 52-30. North Quincy will try to regroup when it takes on Plymouth South (1-3-1, 0-2) tomorrow (Friday) night at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 7 p.m.

"It's going to be a tough game," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "It could be a turning point for us. It would be a big win. It would put us back in the hunt."

Although North Quincy (1-4, 1-2) has given up the most points in Division I this season with 180, it is going up against a team that has trouble finding the end zone. Plymouth South has scored 39 points in five games. But the Panthers do have a talented back in senior Eric Shanley (6-0, 190) that North Quincy will have to be aware of.

"He's a very good back and they do some nice things with him," Chrisom said.

Against Taunton, North Quincy fell behind 31-0 in the first half before it broke into the scoring column. Senior quarterback Max Repoff tossed an 11-yard touchdown pass to junior Dennis Thomson to make it 31-6.

But the worst wasn't over. The final 1:28 of the half was a nightmare as Taunton scored 21 points, highlighted by two interceptions returned for touchdowns, to extend its lead to 52-6 at the half.

"We fell behind early and that prevented us from doing some other things would've like to have done," Chrisom said. "I told the kids we have to put this game behind us, but to remember how they felt after the game."

In the second half, with mostly JV players, North Quincy scored 24 points to make the score respectable. Sophomore Ryan Farnham had a 30-yard touchdown run and Repoff hit junior tailback Pat Bregoli for the two-point conversion to make it 52-14.

Sophomore tailback James Coughlin scored from 31 yards out and Farnham added the two-point conversion. Farnham then scored his second touchdown of the game with a 4-yard run. Thomson hit sophomore wideout Tim Coughlin for the two-point conversion to close out the scoring.

Middle School Cross-Country City Meet Oct. 28

The second week of the middle school cross country season continued recently at Pageant Field.

Tomorrow (Friday) will be the last dual meet on the schedule. The city meet will be held Saturday, Oct. 28 at 10 a.m. All meets directed by Quincy High School coach Scott King and North Quincy High School coach Geoff Hennessy.

In girls' action, Broad Meadows pulled out a close win over Atlantic, 28-29. Atlantic's Kayla Martin turned in a day's fastest time (8:15), but Broad Meadows locked up places 5-10 to clinch the victory.

Laura Bloomer (2nd place) and Cate Keith (5th place) were the top scorers for Broad Meadows. Jacquie Mullen and Cayla Newman placed in the top five for Atlantic.

Central continued its dominance with a 15-50 win over Sterling. Ricardo Cordiero's team grabbed the top nine spots. Jessica Johnson led teammates Caitlin Dow, Nicole Cahill, Brianna Hannon and Hallie Acton to top five finishes.

Andrea Pettinelli paced the Sterling attack. Other scorers were Sarah Stewart, Katie Connolly, Maria DellaCroce and Emma Curley.

In boys' action, Broad Meadows' Frank McKenna (7:14) took a 38-second victory over Atlantic's Robbie Gardiner, but it wasn't enough as the Clippers won, 21-38.

Chris Mercurio, Byron Donelin and Reid Larson took the top five spots for Atlantic. Scorers for Broad Meadows were Erik Donaghue, Jon Conso, Gary Morin and Camden Milby.

Central knocked off Sterling, 18-45. John Murray and Robbie Dolbec finished 1-2 for Central, edging Sterling's Eric Wilson. Peter Dolbec and Steve Connolly completed the top five for Central.

For Sterling, John Orlando, Matt Boyce, Dan McCarthy and Jon Pelletier also scored.

Point didn't have enough for scoring teams in the meet, but several individuals ran well. Brad Louw and James Lieu paced the boys' effort, while Lisa Tran, Sarah Troy and Asimina Vardakostas ran well for the girls.

Veterans, Newcomers Net City Tennis Tourney Titles

The 30th annual Tennis Tournament conducted by the Quincy Recreation Department came to a close recently at Russell park Voc/ Tech Tennis Courts.

The week brought a return of some veteran players becoming city champs and also a new wave of upcoming stars making their way to the championship podium.

Champions were crowned in nine categories.

In the men's singles, veteran Dave Hamburger and rookie Phan "Frank" Nguyen battled each other in the event's oldest category. Nguyen displayed awesome ground strokes and a consistent first serve to defeat Hamburger, 6-2, 6-1, to capture the Lionel "Shine" Buckley Bowl.

In the men's doubles, Hamburger teamed up with Mike Kenney to knock off defending champs Joe Ryan and Jason Andrews, 6-4, 6-4, to take the Henry "Master" McAuliffe Bowl. Highlighted by long rallies, the match took over two hours to play.

In the men's B singles, Sam Tran's serves proved to be the difference as he beat Geoffrey Meade, 6-4, 6-2.

In the men's 35 and over singles, longtime player John Zarnoch took three tough sets against another rising star, Chi Man Wong, 1-6, 6-3, 6-4. After a slow start, Zarnoch picked up his play and took advantage of Wong's unforced errors.

In the men's 50 and over singles, two veterans went head-to-head in what would be the 100th time in their careers. Ryan topped Lenny Ciavarrro, 6-3, 7-5. Not only are the two great players, they're also role models to future players for their sportsmanship and dedication.

On the women's side, Janet Diesel beat Phoebe Chan, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, in the singles division. The match was one of momentum swings as both players possessed excellent ground strokes and the ability to chase down balls.

In the mixed doubles, Diesel and Tom Savoie bested defending champs Aileen Eley and Peter Eley, 6-3, 6-4, to capture the William F. Ryan Bowl.

In women's doubles, Aileen Eley, who has never gone without winning a championship in the tournament, teamed up with Punya Wijesundera to oust Cindy Riddick and Janet Colocough, 6-2, 6-2, in the finals.

In the boys 16 and under singles, two of the finest young players in Eastern Massachusetts squared off with Paul Vu grabbing the win over Billy Harding, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

The tournament is believed to be the largest and longest running municipal tournament in New England. Recreation Director Barry Welch praised the success of this year's event and singled out tournament director John Franceschini for his outstanding administration of the 17 days of play. Franceschini shared duties with assistant director Michelle Hanly.

Welch also thanked the Quincy Municipal Credit Union for its sponsorship during the past three years.

"This a great community tradition that involves Quincy residents of all ages and we are fortunate to have the solid backing of the Credit Union to insure our program continues to serve all our participants who enjoy the sport of tennis," Welch said.

Franceschini thanked the 100 players that are "truly the reason that the Quincy Tennis Tournament has been and will always be one of the finest tennis events on the South Shore."

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Through the years we have been asked by many people what are the advantages of pre-arranging and/or pre-financing a funeral.

There are many reasons... But the foremost reason is that it gives one peace of mind. One knows that his family will be relieved of many of the burdens which face a family in their time of sorrow.

When death strikes unexpectedly or even when it is expected, many people are not emotionally ready to make the many decisions that have to be made in a relatively short time. By making pre-arrangements ahead of time, one can relieve the family of some of the grief at a very emotional time; it can relieve many 'traumatic' decisions; it can relieve confusion; it can eliminate differences of opinion concerning cost and ritual.

Please feel free to stop by or call us at any time for full details concerning pre-arrangement. We will answer all your questions frankly and honestly. We do not charge a fee for any consultation and, of course, you are not under any obligation...

Memorial Service Oct. 29 For Rev. Bedros Baharian, Pastor

A memorial service for Rev. Bedros Baharian, formerly of Quincy, former pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church, will be held Sunday, Oct. 29 at 2 p.m. at the church, 444 Washington St.

He died this past summer in Florida where he and his wife lived for the past 17 years.

Born in Worcester, Rev. Baharian received his bachelor's degree and master's degree from Clark University and his bachelor of divinity degree from Andover-Newton Theological School.

He came to Quincy in 1943 as pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church. During his three decades of pastoral leadership the church became active in the field of interfaith and race relations. For two summers an exchange of young people took place with the Grace Congregational Church of Harlem.

He received the Thomas Jefferson Award in 1948 for the Advancement of Democracy against Intolerance in America.

The Quincy Chapter of Hadassah planted a grove of trees in his honor by the Quincy Council of Churches at the Quincy Armory in 1954 recognizing his outstanding service to the community.

He gave time and personal support to the Quincy Hospital Nursing School Advisory Committee, the Board of Directors of Woodward School for Girls and the Quincy Junior College Board of Directors.

He was an incorporator of the Quincy Savings Bank and an original member of the Protestant Social Service Bureau, now Interfaith Social Services.

Well known in the city of Quincy as the Chair of the Planning Board, Rev. Baharian planned and helped in the building of 1000 Southern Artery, what was then the largest non-profit housing complex for elderly in the nation.

He is survived by his wife, Jane (Norton) Baharian; two sons, Paul Norton Baharian of Weymouth and David Howard Baharian of Quincy; a daughter, Carol Jane Bolton of Clairmont, Ga.; a sister, Vera Brown of Glendale, Calif.; and five grandchildren.

Pre-arranging: peace of mind for every family

ONE GUARANTEE TWO OPTIONS

As early as 1940, we began helping families pre-arrange their funeral expenses. So, the concept is not new to us. But today, there are payment options that some funeral homes don't offer.

Irrevocable Trusts—Many financially secure persons appreciate making one payment or several payments over a short time period. For these persons, we can offer an interest-free plan and payments spread over twelve months. (Endorsed by Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a way to reduce assets and meet state and federal requirements for Medicaid or nursing home care.)

Flexible, Tax-Free Insurance Plans—Budgeting your payments over additional time offers an affordable way for other families to pre-arrange. We can help structure an individualized plan with reasonable premiums, payable within three, five or ten years.

With either pre-arrangement option, protection begins immediately. Since 1917, we've provided the highest degree of understanding and personal assistance to South Shore families. Call us at 617-773-2728 for a free pre-arrangement consultation. We'll help find a plan that suits your family's individual needs.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your bold approach to a difficult situation turns a doubter into a supporter. Be aware, though, that you still need to dig for facts to build an even stronger case.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Distractions continue to nibble at your available time. Turn them off and concentrate on setting your sights on your goal. Progress might be slow, but it is steady.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An opportunity opens in a new field. You might not feel that it's for you, but check it out anyway. You could be surprised — you might be able to adjust to its requirements.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A new work environment presents some difficult choices. Best advice: Be ready to defend your decisions while still keeping your mind open to suggested alternatives.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Don't let your Leonine pride continue to jeopardize a cherished relationship. You've already taken too long to make that apology. Do it now, before it's too late.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A friend needs assistance but fears that you might want to know more than he or she is prepared to reveal. Provide help without probing into the situation.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You face an important personal decision that could affect a family member. Have a full, frank, no-holds-barred discussion with him or her before you act.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Take some time out to think over the choices that have suddenly emerged in your life. Don't be rushed into making a decision until all the facts are known.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Someone might be trying to gain your trust for his or her own advantage. Be wary: That seemingly friendly smile might be an exercise in teeth-baring.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A situation that emerged earlier can no longer be ignored. You need to deal with it now, so that it won't interfere with more important considerations.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A job situation presents some problems. Deal with them one by one, and they'll soon vanish. In your personal life, a Libra would like to know your intentions.

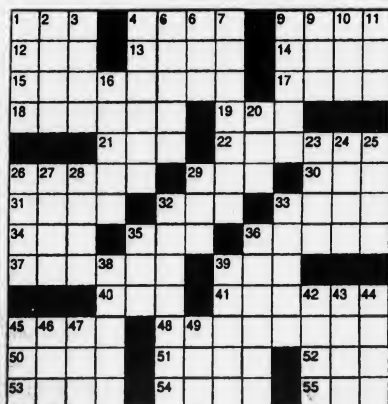

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Let your partner know how you feel about your stalled relationship. A delay will result in your swimming around in circles and going nowhere fast.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: Your high energy level allows you to take on and complete more projects than most. You are also an inspired and inspiring teacher.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Public Hearing On School Plans Oct. 30

For one thing, Sheets said, the city's 90 percent reimbursement on the projects was a non-issue since the state has already made its commitment.

As for the hazardous materials currently on the proposed QHS site from previous use by Bethlehem Steel, the mayor emphasized that that issue was well-known over three years ago when the state Department of Education approved the site and plans for its cleanup. Said Sheets:

"The Department of Education has come out, looked at the site, and said it's a good site if we follow the cleanup procedures. The Department of Education would never allow a school to be built on a site if there was even the most remote possibility of impact to students."

Meanwhile, three separate appropriations totaling nearly $65 million for the three schools were routinely moved to the Finance Committee as the project itself moves forward.

Councillor Frank McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee, has scheduled a Finance Committee meeting immediately following the adjournment of the Oversight Committee meeting.

McCauley, who opposed a public hearing in the Finance Committee on the grounds that the project has been fully discussed over the past four years, yielded to the majority will of the council and agreed that "nitty-gritty" issues could be resolved in the Oversight Committee, of which Councillor Joseph Newton is chairman.

"This is a clear-cut order to borrow the money," McCauley said of the $65 million in appropriations, which include: $58,800,000 for constructing, equipping, and furnishing a new Quincy High School; $3,000,000 to purchase land adjacent to the new Quincy High School; and $3,020,000 for the design and renovations of new Central Middle School (the current QHS) and Sterling Middle School.

The call to hold a public hearing in the Oversight Committee came from Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, who argued that the future of Quincy schoolchildren, including his own, demanded that any questions be addressed. "I'm neither in favor nor against this site," Hanley told fellow councillors. "But I don't have enough information to make the decision."

Council President Paul Harold voiced his approval for the hearing and disputed a claim by Councillor Daniel Raymond that the council had already voted to approve the site when it approved the funds to purchase the site. "I never voted on that site that night," Harold said, "I voted to make monies available."

Harold said he clearly remembers the meeting and being told that the vote was similar to one for the Marshall School, which was originally designed for Cleverly Ct. but was eventually built on Moody St.

Raymond accused Harold of "strong misrepresentation" on the subject and charged that Harold was trying to protect himself. Raymond told Harold he would have to have been "from another planet" to have believed a vote for purchase funds was not a vote for the site. "President Clinton would be very proud of you," Raymond told Harold.

Raymond then urged colleagues not to make the same mistakes he said were made decades ago with the addition to North Quincy High School, adding that the city must act to take advantage of the 90 percent reimbursement "windfall" granted by the state.

Harold remained steadfast, saying that he voted for the appropriation only to read in the newspaper that the mayor had purchased the site, calling the matter "a sore point in the process."

McCauley confirmed that the matter left some councillors unsettled. "It was our understanding that, before he made the final decision, that the mayor would sit down with the School Committee and City Council and talk about it. But he didn't."

The new Quincy High School, the plan for which was re-visited this summer, is scheduled to open in September of 2004. The new Central Middle School is slated to open in September of 2006.

Excluding the $3 million used for purchase of land, which is not reimbursable, the city will receive 90 percent reimbursement on the appropriations and will end up paying roughly $9 million total from its own resources.

Dyslexia Is Subject Of Oct. 25 Lecture

The Quincy Parent Advisory Council will present a panel on the topic "What Is Dyslexia?" Wednesday, Oct. 25, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

The speakers will be

Pamela Hook, professor at the Reading Disabilities Unit of Massachusetts General Hospital, and Ann Ryan of the Eastern Region of the International Dyslexia Association.

The one hour presentation will be followed by a question and answer period.

Admission is free but those interested in attending should pre-register by calling Joy at 617-479-7839 to ensure enough materials for everyone.

Following Court's Ruling Legalizing Tattooing In State

City Moves To Regulate 'Body Art'

Funniest Category for six year olds and under. Stephanie's "Cat In A Hat" took top honors as Most Artistic in the over six years of age competition. (Maralin Manning Photos)

By CRAIG SALTERS

The city's committee currently examining the issue of "Body Art" is stepping up its efforts in the wake of last week's decision by the State Superior Court to legalize tattooing in Massachusetts.

The committee, said Chairman and Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, will hold a meeting this week to review the court ruling and determine the impact it will have on Quincy.

The goal of the committee, say both its members and the mayor's office, is regulation based on legitimate health concerns and not prohibition, given Superior Court Judge Barbara Rouse's ruling that tattooing is an expression of free speech guaranteed by the First Amendment.

The ruling, delivered Friday by Rouse in Stephan Lanphear vs. the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, struck down Massachusetts General Law 265, section 43, which for decades mandated that only physicians could perform tattoos in the state.

"We are looking at the situation very seriously," Mayor James Sheets said during a phone interview Tuesday, adding that the committee had its eye toward regulation given the public health issues involved.

"There are many fine people out there who have tattoos, so that's not the issue," the mayor said. "The issue is that people are having a medical procedure done on their bodies which is invasive, so we need to look at it."

Along with Newton, Public Health Commissioner Jane Galloway is a member of the committee as is Ward 3 Councillor (Cont'd On Page 10)

Hospital Union Plans One-Day Strike

By CRAIG SALTERS

Quincy Medical Center professional and technical employees represented by Locals 285 and 925 of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) gave notice that they will hold a one-day strike Tuesday, Oct. 31 if no contract agreements are reached with the hospital by then.

"We're pretty far apart right now," said Hal Ruddick, staff director for the union, commenting on negotiations which are ongoing, with two sessions scheduled this week. "We don't want a strike but we're preparing and we'll strike if we have to."

Each local, Ruddick said, is conducting separate negotiations with the hospital because there are different contracts and some of the issues are different, but he said members of both locals are working closely together and both are preparing for the 24-hour strike.

Members of both local unions conducted an informational picket of the hospital Oct. 17 to draw attention to union concerns on the following issues: the restoration of a retirement plan, an increase in wages "up to area standards," and opposition to reductions in time off due to illness or personal injury. The union also opposes forced changes in shifts which it claims will "worsen working conditions."

"We are going to try very hard

Seaside Gardeners And Friends Spruce Up Causeway

MAKING SQUANTUM even more welcoming were Ruth Graceffa, Laurie Kelliher, and Sally Erickson, president of the Seaside Gardeners.

SALLY ERICKSON, president of the Seaside Gardeners, and Arthur Casey did a little weeding recently as the Seaside Gardeners and Friends of the Squantum Causeway joined forces to clean up along the causeway. In April of 1998 200 volunteers assisted in planting 5,000 daylilies along the causeway and became The Friends of the Squantum Causeway, meeting several times since for planting and cleanup projects.

Freak Accident Gives 94-Year-Old Fame And Pain

By TOM HENSHAW

Willis Smith had his 15 minutes of fame at Quincy Medical Center last week — but he'd rather it not happen again, thank you.

Smith, 94, a retired deputy sheriff and court officer who lives at the William Rice Eventide Home, was taking the sun outside the home Thursday when he fell off his tricycle-type walker and touched off a 7 1/2 hour ordeal.

One brake handle of the walker went completely through his right hand from front to back, the walker collapsed on top of him and he couldn't get up from the ground.

It was 11:30 in the morning.

It took the timely arrival of the Fire Department to cut him loose from the walker, lift him from the floor and send him by ambulance, the brake handle still sticking through his hand, to the Medical Center.

It was now 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

"The surgeons said they had never seen such a thing before," said Smith. "All the hospital came to see it."

For a while surgeons thought they may have to amputate the hand but no bones were broken.

They finally got him on the operating table, removed the brake handle from his hand, leaving a hole the size of a dime to be stitched up on both sides of his hand, and sent him home.

It was now 7 o'clock at night.

Smith served as a deputy under Sheriff Charles Hedges 30 years ago. His wife, Jane, lives in the South Shore Nursing Facility in Rockland. He has a son, Charles, who also lives in Rockland.

WILLIS SMITH, 94, points to a brake handle of a tricycle-type walker, the type that speared through his right hand in a freak accident touching off a painful ordeal.

Board Places Restrictions On New Gas Station

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The new owner of a gas station on 664 Washington St. was given restrictions and asked to present plans for the interior and exterior of the building to the building department before the License Board will issue a license.

Owner Rabih Moujahed, doing business as US Gas Pplans to open the station at the former Spark's Tune Up. He told the board he will be passing papers at the end of this month.

Board members promised Moujahed that if the plans meet the requirements of Walter White, director of building services, the license will be issued at the board's Nov. 14 meeting.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond said the building is in need of improvement and urged the board to make sure that all requirements are met.

He said although he has received calls from constituents regarding the type of business being "not an attractive use" he nonetheless said the "owner has rights" and that restrictions should be attached to the license.

Restrictions include no sale of used cars, no signage or banners or flags, and no exterior parking.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who chaired Tuesday's meeting in the absence of Joseph Shea told the owner that it may be March before he will be able to install new tanks and hard top the driveway because of winter weather conditions

Moujahed said he thought it would be two to three months before work is completed. He told the board he hoped to be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. for repairs, and from 6 to 11 p.m. for the sale of gasoline.

White scheduled a meeting with Moujahed Wednesday to discuss renovation plans.

Squirrel Causes Power Outage Affecting 7,800 Customers

A squirrel sneaked into a substation in Houghts Neck Monday causing a near one-hour long power outage affecting an estimated 7,800 Massachusetts Electric customers in several areas of the city.

The intruder also caused damaged to equipment.

Areas affected included Quincy Center, Hospital Hill, Quincy Point, Houghs

Neck and Germantown.

The outage occurred at 11:08 a.m. and service was restored by 12:05 p.m., a Massachusetts Electric spokesperson said.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a one-day license to the Montclair Elementary School, 8 Belmont St., for their annual Sock Hop tomorrow (Friday) from 7 to 9 p.m. There will be a Disk Jockey with dancing and refreshments.

•Granted a one-day license to the Christ Church, Quincy Ave., to hold their annual Strawberry Festival and Flea Market Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

•Postponed a hearing regarding the status of he 11th Chapter saloon, 536 Washington St. until Nov. 14.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

On Oct. 23, 42 B.C., Marcus Junius Brutus, a leading conspirator in the assassination of Julius Caesar, commits suicide after his defeat at the Battle of Philippi. ... On Oct. 27, 1878, $3 million is stolen from the Manhattan Savings Bank in New York City in a celebrated robbery accredited to the gang leader George "Western" Leslie. In the subsequent investigation, two of Leslie's associates are brought to trial and convicted, but insufficient evidence prevents the prosecution of their boss. ... On Oct. 24, 1901, Daredevil Annie Edson Taylor initiates a famous stunt tradition when she goes over Niagara Falls in a wooden barrel. A leather harness and cushions line the barrel and protect Taylor during her fall, and she emerges shaken but unhurt in the river below. ... On Oct. 27, 1904, the first rapid-transit subway system in America is opened in New York City by Mayor George B. McClellan. The subway officially opens and more than 100,000 people pay a nickel each to take a ride underneath Manhattan. ... On Oct. 29, 1929, an unstable world economy reaches its breaking point, and investors on Wall Street lose $74 billion dollars. The crash marks the beginning of the Great Depression. ... On Oct. 26, 1944, during World War II, the Battle of Leyte Gulf, the largest air-naval battle in history, concludes after four days of furious fighting with a decisive U.S. victory over the Japanese. ... On Oct. 28, 1962, the Cuban Missile Crisis effectively ends as Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev announces his government's intent to dismantle and remove all offensive Soviet weapons from Cuba. ... On Oct. 25, 1983, two days after a suicide bomber killed 241 U.S. Marines at their barracks in Beirut, Lebanon, U.S. Marines, backed by a token military force from English-speaking Caribbean nations, lead an assault on the tiny island republic of Grenada.

Good Turnout Forecast

There are still people out there saying they might not even vote Nov. 7 but City Clerk Joseph Shea sees a good turnout in the making here.

"It should be somewhere around 75 percent," he says. "Give or take a point or two."

Some people, despite the three debates, seem to still be having trouble getting excited over the Gore-Lieberman and Bush-Cheney tickets.

But if Shea's forecast is correct they will match or top the voter interest in the Clinton-Gore and Dole-Kemp matchups in 1996.

That year, Quincy's turnout was nearly 73 percent with Clinton-Gore winning easily, 23,172 to 9,819.

Voter registration for that election four years ago was 51,000.

Shea thinks it could reach 52,000 for the coming election.

The figures are not official yet but he estimates the city picked up "probably 600" new voters since the primary election Sept. 19. Registration then was 51,552.

That was the ho-hum election with only one contest on the ballot: the race between City Council President Paul Harold, County Commissioner Peter Collins and Mary Ellen Cronin for the Democratic nomination Norfolk County Register of Deeds won by Harold.

That election produced a puny 14.8 percent turnout. It may take voters a little longer than usual to mark their ballots this year.

The ballot is two-sided and in addition to the candidates has eight referendum questions.

To squeeze the eight questions on the ballot Secretary of State William Galvin had to resort to smaller type.

Which will take voters extra time to read the questions in the voting booth unless they get a chance to look them over ahead of time.

IT WAS A day of fond memories for former teachers and students of the old Nathaniel Hunting School in Adams Shore.

A time capsule from the Hunting School was opened at a recent ceremony at the Merrymount School.

The capsule was actually a small footlocker, filled with notebooks, pictures and memorabilia from the Hunting School on the day it closed in 1980.

Presiding at the ceremony were Dennis Carini,

McCauley Book Signing At Adams Mansion Saturday

A book signing ceremony for former mayor and present City Councillor Frank McCauley's book "Quincy, Massachusetts, A Political History 1889-2000", will be held at the Adams Mansion, Adams St. Saturday at 2 p.m.

Mayor James A. Sheets, who asked McCauley to write the history, will preside and Councillor McCauley will be on hand to autograph copies of the book. Light refreshments will be served.

The price of the book is $21 which includes the sales tax. Checks may be made out to the City of Quincy-special history account.

The first eyeglass bifocals were created by Benjamin Franklin former principal at the Hunting School and Ann Pegg, a former teacher there and now assistant principal at the Merrymount School.

Among the many former Hunting School students, teachers and staff attending were City Council President Paul Harold and his fifth grade teacher, Jean Fossati-Wood who was visiting from California.

Harold noted that when the school was originally built it was called the Adams Shore School but was renamed for Nathaniel Stevens Hunting, a beloved medical doctor who served 36 years on the School Committee.

He was also known, Harold said, for his dedication to the treatment of silicosis, a lung disease prevalent among granite quarry workers and which was a major factor in the founding of Quincy City Hospital.

A wing at the hospital was named for him but like the school bearing his name, was torn down years ago. However, his name is still memorialized by the Hunting Hall of Founders at the now Quincy Medical Center.

LOOKS LIKE John Cain will make another bid for the Ward 3 City Council seat next year.

"I will probably definitely give it another shot," he says. "Absolutely."

That sounds a lot more definite than probably.

Cain, making his political debut in 1999, challenged incumbent Patrick McDermott for the seat. McDermott won it, 1955 to 1155.

There's speculation McDermott may make a run for an at-large seat next year. Or, might be in line for an appointment.

MILESTONE: City Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley and his wife, Sandra, welcomed their 13th grandchild, eighth grandson.

Zachary John Tympanick, son of daughter, Julie, and John

SANDRA

Tympanick of Plymouth was born Oct. 20 at Jordan Hospital. Zachary weighed in at 10 lbs., 7 1/2 oz.

Zachary is the couple's third son. His brothers are Matthew and Andrew.

Paternal grandparents are Stanley and Margaret Tympanick of Concord.

Proud Frank has already volunteered babysitting duties.

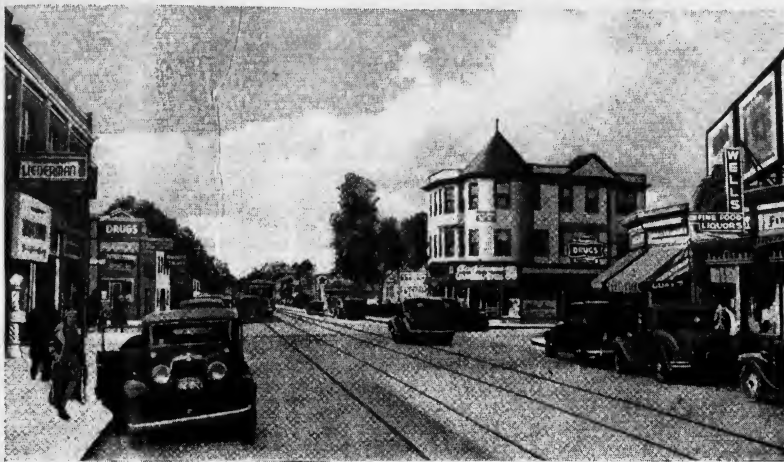

FOR THOSE OF you who get your copy of The Sun on Wednesdays, there's still time to make the Autumn Reception for Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico.

The reception is at 7 p.m. at the Common Market, West Quincy. Donation, $25.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A late 1930s postcard view of Wollaston Center looking north on Hancock Street at the intersection of Beach and Beale. On the left were W.W. Wilson real estate, The House of Liederman cleansers and several doctors and beauty shops in the Klein Building. Alouwil Pharmacy was in the store now the Blackwood Pharmacy. On the next corner was the Beale Street Pharmacy and then W.W. Woolworth's. On the right were Wells Cafe's still in business, Guay's Bakery, Fowler's Market and the Old Corner Drug Store. The Gardner Building on the next corner had rooms to let upstairs and the California Cleaners at street level. Further down were The Russell Funeral Home and Balcom's Texaco. An artist at the postcard publisher removed the overhead wires and utility poles.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Wigglesworth 'Indicts' Truman On Five Counts

By PAUL HAROLD

Cong. Richard Wigglesworth addressed the Quincy Republican City Committee at the Masonic Temple, with a five-point "indictment" against President Truman.

Wigglesworth charged Truman with:

- The Korean War
- Directly aiding Russian expansion of territory
- Red infiltration in high government offices
- A lack of military preparedness
- The danger of high inflation

Among the candidates for state legislative offices was Rep. Charles Hedges, running for the state senate who took the opportunity to knock the Democratic president. He said, "The Japs claim they won the war. Maybe they're right, they got MacArthur and we got Truman."

Paul Coletti was president of the city committee.

COUNCIL APPROVES PARKING EXPANSION

The City Council's Ordinance Committee voted 5-2 to expand downtown parking to the east of Hancock St. area. Voting no were Mayor Thomas Burgin and David Crowley.

Burgin argued that the city couldn't afford it, with other projects more of a priority, such as the reconstruction of Newport Ave. and Adams St. and the installation of sewerage at Rock Island.

City Manager William Deegan said, however, that under his plan there would be no cost to the city. He proposed that retail space be constructed along the edge of the parking area with those rents to amortize the parking area costs.

QUOTA FOR NON-VET TENANTS

The City Council pressed the Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) to make 50 units available to non-veterans to ease the city's housing crisis.

Councillor Amelio Della Chiesa offered a resolution for a compromise, following a confrontation between Mayor Thomas Burgin and the QHA on the issue.

Judge James Mulhall, legal counsel for the QHA, said he would write to Washington concerning a waiver, but he viewed the opening up of units to non-veterans as immoral and illegal.

The QHA operated temporary housing at Cleverly Court and Pond St. that was restricted to veterans and their families.

QUINCY-ISMS

The state ABC suspended until the end of the year the licenses of the North Quincy Drug Company on Hancock St. and Coolidge Pharmacy on Beale St. for the Sunday sale of liquor without a doctor's prescription. . . The City Council appropriated $2,046 for an aerial map of the city to be used for defense purposes. Arthur Gillis was installed as president of the Lions Club, succeeding Dr. Joseph McDermott. . . Photos of the 20 past commanders of the Morrisette Legion Post were unveiled as part of the annual installation program. The unveiling was done by the post's first commander, Henry Monahan. . . Rev. Joseph Parkman, head of the Quincy Council of Churches, urged a yes vote on the question of allowing package stores in the city. But he urged a no vote for the service of alcohol in bars, taverns, cafes and restaurants. Such a ban would "eliminate offensive public demonstrations such as baby carriages in front of bathrooms," the reverend said. . . Governor Paul Dever headed up the Democratic rally at the Masonic Temple for legislative candidates, including Thomas Burke, Daniel Mullane and Joseph McDonough, running in the First Norfolk District. . . Mrs. Robert Fenby was elected chairman of the Evening Group at Bethany Church. . . William Doble, founder of Pneumatic Scale, died at age 88. He started his career running a grocery store in South Quincy and developed packing in an era when most food was sold unpackaged. . . An estimated 1,000 Protestant Men attended the fourth annual communion breakfast at the armory. The breakfast was preceded by a communion service at the First Parish Church where Rev. George Gilchrist of Bethany Church presided. . . Whole fried lobsters at Morey Pearl's on the South-ern Artery cost $1.35.

Flushing The Cooling System Of Your Car

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing you regarding your article of this date, Oct. 5, in a column entitled "You Auto Know" concerning flushing the cooling system of your car. It is a well written article and quite correct, and although it is intended as an advertisement for Leo and Walt I feel there should also be a statement concerning the danger of doing this in your back yard or in front of your house.

The main ingredient of antifreeze/coolant is Ethylene Glycol, a highly toxic chemical which is very sweet smelling and tasty to children, pets and wildlife. It is fatal if ingested, causing the kidneys to shut down. It is a hazardous material and should be disposed of in accordance with the regulations concerning hazardous waste.

I think it would be in the best interest of the general public, not to mention avoiding a legal problem, if you were to publish a statement concerning the danger of performing this operation yourself in the next issue of the Sun.

These remarks are meant to be informative, not critical of the article or the Quincy Sun.

How Many Is Enough?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I'm very concerned about the chain stores/mega stores moving into Quincy.

For example, how many grocery stores does Quincy need? Roche Bros., Stop & Shop, Star Market, Victory Market...how many is enough?

And now Home Depot has Blacktopping Lawns

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Quincy City Council has a lot of nerve taking issue with home owners blacktopping their front lawns.

If the City Council feels entitled to set certain baseline standards, they should start a purchase and sales agreement for another piece of property. Come on, two Home Depots in Quincy? Are we changing from the "City of Presidents" to "City of Chain Stores"? And let's not forget Wal-Mart.

Thank You, Quincy Teachers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A new year has begun but the good teachers of Quincy Public School system have not been forgotten.

I want to sincerely thank each and every teacher, guidance person, and athletic coach who contributed to my children's education starting at Bernazzani School, Central Middle School, and ending at North Quincy High School.

You all did a great job and I know you'll continue this fine tradition of excellence and honor in education.

George Patton Knew How To Win

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I recently discovered that General George Patton, with whom I served, never received a Medal of Honor.

Here we have a soldier who liberated Europe with his 14 Armored Divisions and Infantry Divisions and, despite his frequent outbursts with his superiors, he knew how to win.

His motto was "never dig in." His superiors often disagreed with him and, although the General had a bad temper, he proved he was right. We will never see the likes of him again.

As heard on WJDA Radio, 1300 AM every Thursday at 11:00am!

TAXI TIPS

A little research on local taxi services is likely to save you time, money and aggravation when traveling. Ask some basic questions at the airport information desk or your hotel before choosing a taxi. Learn the names of established companies; get help with the language if necessary; and find out how you will be charged, including any extra or unusual surcharges. Scan some different cabs to compare posted per-mile rates. Carry small bills or choose a cab that accepts traveler's checks or credit cards. Once in the cab, record its registration number and make sure the meter has no time left. Ask for a receipt specifying pick-up and drop off sites to ensure you get the most direct route.

At PRIME TRAVEL, we always go one step further for our clients, whether it involves taxi tips or destination decisions. We'll tell you about the unusual, off-the-beaten path, out-of-the-way places and how to best enjoy visiting them. For vacation memories you'll treasure forever, start with a trip to 500 Victory Road, Marina Bay. We believe that choosing your travel consultant carefully does make a difference in your overall travel enjoyment and we hope you'll call us at 617-472-3697 the next time you're going away.

P.S. To save on cab fare, share the ride with someone going in the same direction.

Service Academies Application Deadline Nov. 1

Congressman William Delahunt reminds interested local families that the application deadline for nominations to US Service Academies for the year 2001-2002 is Wednesday, Nov. 1. At an informational forum sponsored by Delahunt at Marshfield High School recently, over 150 local residents consulted personally with a variety of Academy officials.

The session featured first hand presentations of Academy life by a US Merchant Marine midshipman from Hingham and an Air Force cadet from Orleans.

Judging from the volume and pace of applications since, Delahunt said, the personal testimonials from the two students made a strong and positive impression on many of the prospective nominees.

Stressing the superb and tuition-free education offered by each of the Service Academies, Rep. Delahunt urged South Shore or Cape & Islands high school students who wish to apply to submit a completed applications by the upcoming deadline.

After Nov. 1, a panel of eight distinguished local residents will get to work immediately to evaluate and interview nomination candidates. As a result, no applications can be accepted late.

Until Nov. 1, nomination applications are available by calling Delahunt's Quincy office toll-free at 800-794-9911. The nominations apply to students interested in the US Military Academy (West Point), Naval Academy (Annapolis), Air Force Academy (Colorado Springs) and Merchant Marine Academy (Kings Point).

To be eligible, a candidate must be a resident of the 10th Congressional District and a high school graduate by June, 2001 can you pass this good health quiz?

- 1 Do you have a primary care doctor?
- 2 Do you have access to Boston's best hospitals—Brigham & Women's and Children's?
- 3 Does your doctor's practice offer a 24/7 nurse advice line or urgent care?

There are immediate steps you can take toward living a healthier life. Start by choosing a doctor you're comfortable with. One who has access to world-class hospitals like Brigham & Women's and Children's Hospital Boston. A doctor whose practice offers both urgent care and a 24/7 nurse advice line.

You can have all of this at Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. It's not an HMO — it's a group of doctors and other caregivers focused on your good health. And Harvard Vanguard accepts many types of insurance. To find a doctor that's right for you, visit www.harvardvanguard.org or call 1-888-876-HVMA today.

FUNGAL NAILS

Toenails that appear to be infected with fungal organisms are a nuisance for several reasons. The most obvious reason is their appearance. The nails appear thick, brittle and discolored (a combination of white, brown and yellow), causing embarrassment to some.

Other reasons include pain created under the nail by the pressure of the thickness of the nail against the shoe, the potential for spread of the infection to other parts of the body, and the fact that the condition could be contagious to others. In many cases, these reasons seem to be sufficient to consider a treatment plan.

There are treatment options available with variable success rates. If you think you have nails infected with the fungus organism and would like more information, contact a qualified Podiatrist. If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 617-773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.

City Steps Up Move To Regulate 'Body Art'

(Cont'd From Page 1)

Patrick McDermott, the mayor's Administrative Assistant Bernice Mader, Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines, and Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Professional and Business Association.

The mayor said that the committee, formed as a result of a City Council resolution sponsored earlier in the year by Newton, has been meeting for the past two months to discuss all forms of "Body Art" including tattooing and body piercing.

"As of the issuing of that decision by Judge Rouse, there is absolutely no regulation of tattooing in Massachusetts," said Assistant Solicitor Hines of the 20-page court decision. "This is not what the City or the Department of Health wanted. It means we have to work a little harder."

Hines reiterated the mayor's position that the purpose of the committee was to regulate, not prohibit, explaining that Judge Rouse, while defining tattoos and the art of tattooing as free speech, said that regulating the procedure based on public health concerns — such as training, sterilization procedures, and inspection — was permissible.

But Mader was not as convinced that a decision by a superior court judge could hold such blanket implications for the state, saying that the committee wanted to get more information, particularly from the Attorney General's Office, as to whether the decision held as much weight as a ruling from the state's Appellate or Supreme Judicial Courts.

Newton said that the impetus behind the resolve to form the committee was word from Quincy's Legislative Delegation that a decision on tattooing would be made at the state level shortly. "We formed the committee in the event tattooing was legalized," Newton said. "We knew there was a possibility and, if it was, we wanted to be one step ahead."

In allowing the motion of Stephan Lanphear, a New York tattoo artist who wished to work in Massachusetts, Judge Rouse wrote that "the umbrella of First Amendment protection" extended to tattooing because "the medium on which the drawn image appears should not be relevant when determining whether something is 'speech'; the tattoo itself is symbolic speech deserving of First Amendment protection."

Before the ruling Massachusetts, which relegated tattooing solely to physicians after a 1960's Hepatitis scare, was one of only five states which prohibited tattooing "except by a health care professional."

The punishment for tattooing in the state was "a fine of not more than $300 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both."

Frances Meletiou Wins Poetry Award

Quincy resident Frances Theresa Meletiou was recently awarded the bronze medal for her poem "Road To Success" by the International Society of Poetry.

The poem encourages young people to "stay on track, better themselves, and be a credit to the community" and was once included as an insert in the yearbooks of Quincy High School.

Meletiou has previously written "City of Presidents" in honor of the nation's bicentennial and her poem "The Guiding Light," written in tribute to astronaut John Glenn, was sent with the city seal by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to President John F. Kennedy in 1962.

FRANCES MELETIOU

Meletiou has been involved with the Quincy Medical Center Women's Auxiliary and was a recreation leader at the Wollaston and Atherton Hough Schools.

Chamber Part Of ChamberBiz.com Resource

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has joined ChamberBiz.com, a national Internet resource that serves small businesses.

The Website connects more than 300 local and state chambers across the country providing their members access to a variety of services to advance their businesses.

ChamberBiz also provides state and local chambers of commerce an avenue from which to draw new users to their Websites. ChamberBiz provides small-business owners with the networking opportunities, practical solutions and technological resources to expand their businesses and save time and money. ChamberBiz can be accessed on the South Shore Chamber's Website: www.southshorechamber.org

"This user-friendly Internet resource will provide a competitive advantage to our members and enable them to attain information and tools essential to improving their businesses," said Ronald Zooleck, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

According to International Data Corporation, more than three-quarters of all U.S. small businesses are connected to the Internet. With the rest exploring this avenue, the Web has fast become the most dominant, defining force in business today. By partnering with ChamberBiz, the South Shore Chamber is able to quickly harness that momentum to reinforce its mission.

"With the explosion on information on the Internet, and the rapid growth of small businesses engaged in e-commerce, ChamberBiz provides a means for our area's business owners to use the Internet more effectively," Zooleck said.

Facing Sobering Statistics Keating Convenes Juvenile Justice Summit

Professionals representing communities across Norfolk County met recently to focus on school safety and domestic violence at a county-wide Juvenile Justice Summit hosted by Dist. Atty. William Keating.

WILLIAM KEATING

The conference, an annual event, was designed to promote innovation and strengthen collaboration among schools, communities, court and probation officials, local law enforcement authorities and social service providers.

Eighteen presenters participated in the program, including Commissioner Robert P. Gittens of the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services, and Robert A. Fein, Ph.D., of the U.S. Secret Service's National Threat Assessment Center, who shared new findings from extensive research analysis of school shootings and related violence from around the country.

"It is estimated that 3.3 million children witness violence in their homes each year," Keating told the audience assembled at the Lake Pearl Luciano's conference facility in Wrentham.

"It is fitting that we gather now, during Domestic Violence Awareness month, to face these sobering statistics together and to reassess the connections between home and school safety," said Keating, who emphasized early intervention and accountability as important priorities for juvenile justice.

Inter-agency collaboration was a major theme of the conference. The day-long Summit featured a panel discussion about the connection between domestic violence and the classroom, led by the Director of the Child Witness to Domestic Violence Project at the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office; a review of abuse and neglect reporting guidelines conducted by the Deputy General Counsel of the Massachusetts Department of Social Services. And special clinical workshops on juvenile firesetting and self-multitudinal behavior.

The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration conducted a seminar on the symptoms and health hazards of ecstasy and other "designer drugs," and the Massachusetts Department of Education offered a training program for reducing adolescent relationship violence.

An off-site session arranged by Keating at the nearby King Philip Regional High School allowed conference attendees to join with area students for a special theatrical performance of "Remote Control," the Deana's Fund play about teen dating violence and informed decision-making.

The keynote speaker was national prevention expert Bradley J. Russ, a senior instructor for the U.S. Department of Justice's Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, and Chief of Police for the Portsmouth, N.H., Police Dept. Drawing on his 26 years of law enforcement experience, Russ discussed effective child protection through collaborative information sharing.

New Presiding Justice

Judge Mark Coven Sworn In At Quincy Court

JUDGE MARK S. COVEN (left) of Brookline is sworn in as presiding justice of Quincy District Court by District Courts Chief Justice Samuel E. Zoll in a ceremony last Thursday at the Quincy Court. He succeeds Judge Charles E. Black who retired in April.

(Presidential Camera Photos/John Black)

QUINCY DISTRICT COURT's new presiding justice, Judge Mark S. Coven, thanks those who attended his swearing in ceremony. The portrait on the wall is that of retired Judge Robert Prince, former presiding justice of the Quincy court and superior court.

ARTHUR TOBIN (right), clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court, and Robert Bloom, first assistant clerk magistrate, listen intently during the swearing in of Judge Mark S. Coven as presiding justice.

ALICE PACCIORETTI, secretary to Judge Mark S. Coven, presents a bouquet of roses to the judge's daughter, Rebecca, 9.

PROUD FAMILY MEMBERS, friends and associates attended the swearing in ceremony of Judge Mark S. Coven as presiding justice of Quincy District Court. In the front row, from left, are Bridget Herlihy, family baby sitter; son, Seth, 4; Judge Coven's wife, Judy Levenson; daughters Rebecca, 9, and Alexandra, 20; Monica Coven, his sister-in-law and his brother, Michael Coven. Directly behind them are Mrs. Shirley Tobin, Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Councilor Daniel Raymondi and Dist. Atty. William Keating.

IT WAS A proud and happy day for Judge Coven's wife, Judy Levenson (right) with son, Seth, 4, and (at left), Bridget Herlihy, family friend and baby sitter.

SETH COVEN, 4, was as proud as could be as his father, Judge Mark S. Coven, became presiding justice of Quincy District Court.

Daniel Dewey Candidate For Norfolk County Clerk Of Courts

Daniel M. Dewey of Quincy announced his candidacy for the Norfolk County Clerk of Courts.

Dewey is currently a member of the Parole Board of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and on the Advisory Board of Pardons. He was appointed by Gov. William Weld in 1993 and re-appointed by Gov. Paul Cellucci in 1998. He is also on the Norfolk County Anti-Crime Council of the Office of the District Attorney.

"Most of the employees of the Trial Court have lifetime jobs. The Superior Court Clerk is one of the few Court officials who must face the electorate. This an institution that have been serving itself—not the public. The Clerk's Office is in need of reform; cleaning up the back-log of cases must be a top priority," said Dewey, a Republican.

"Due to weak leadership

and disregard for the public, the Norfolk County Court-house in Dedham is inaccessible to wheelchair users ten years after the passage of the Americans With Disabilities Act. The Norfolk County Courts should obey the law and not discriminate against individuals and address the needs of our senior citizens who must use the Courts. If elected, I will fight for reform, restore energy and vitality to office of the Clerk of Courts," Dewey said.

Prior to becoming a Parole Board Member, Dewey worked as a Probation Officer at Quincy Court. He worked at the Middlesex Juvenile Probation District in Framingham where he was also a Union Steward for SEIU 254. Dewey was sergeant in the United States Marine Corps and a disabled Vietnam veteran.

He has Masters Degrees in criminal justice and business administration from Anna Maria College in Paxton, and a graduate of Texas A & M University, Kingsville.

He and his wife, Kathleen Kelly Dewey, live on Sonoma Rd. in Quincy and have two children.

Millennium Celebration For Children Saturday, Sunday

The City of Quincy's Millennium Committee will sponsor a weekend of activities for children Saturday and Sunday including ceramic tile decorating, planting and dedication of a "Millennium Tree", and a pie-eating contest.

On Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the lawn at the Thomas Crane Public Library, children will be encouraged to decorate ceramic tiles, some of which will be selected for permanent display in the library's Children's Section. Tiles will also be displayed at local community centers and other public events. The 4-inch-by-4-inch tiles, paints and instructions will be provided. Children must be Quincy residents to participate.

"By incorporating these tiles into the new library, the Millennium Tile program will allow children to become a part of the history of our city," said Rhonda Merrill, chairwoman of the Quincy Millennium Committee.

Applications Available For Emergency Response Team Course

The City of Quincy, Emergency Management Agency will hold its third annual Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) Training Course in January.

Quincy Emergency Management is presently accepting new applications for the upcoming course. The course is open to anyone from middle high school students to senior citizens who wish to know more about public safety within their community.

The program will include Disaster Response, Community Relations and Disaster Psychology. Those completing the program will receive a certification from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) that they have completed the necessary requirements for the CERT training course.

They will be trained to deal with emergency and disaster incidents within the community.

If interested in the course, contact Brian Wilkosky or Christopher George at the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, 55 Sea St., Lower Level, or call at (617) 376-1205 or leave a voice mail at (617) 376-1210.

Have a mammogram today.

Having a regular mammogram is one of the most important things a woman can do to take care of herself. So it's important that the process put you at ease rather than on edge.

That's our goal at Milton Hospital's Breast Care Program. Our mammography suites are designed to make your experience personal, and convenient while offering state-of-the-art services with dignity, privacy and warmth. More comfortable than clinical, our top tier technology and one-on-one attention will make you glad you came to Milton Hospital for your mammogram.

Most importantly, you will have your exam results before you leave the hospital and you are welcome to discuss your results directly with our radiologists.

We offer early morning, evening and Saturday appointments. No referral is necessary for a mammogram, and most insurance including Medicare and Mass Health cover the cost of the exam.

REAL ESTATE

CAROLYN FLAHERTY was honored recently at a Jack Conway and Company breakfast for being the top lister for January through June in the Quincy office. Margaret Duffy received similar honors for being the top seller. Presenting the award to Flaherty is Vice President of Sales Denis Lilla.

Quincy Agents Honored At Conway Breakfasts

Jack Conway and Company recently honored its top-producing sales agents for the first six months of 2000 at the real estate company's annual mid-year awards breakfasts.

In the Quincy office, Margaret Duffy was the top seller while Carolyn Flaherty was the top lister for January.

More than 60 agents were recognized at the ceremonies, which were conducted by Conway President Richard F. Cahill and Vice President of Sales Denis Lilla.

Financial planner Noreen Carey-Neville was the featured speaker at the July 12 breakfast at Lombardo's in Randolph.

At the Plymouth Sheraton breakfast, WATD-FM owner Edward Perry was presented with a plaque in honor of the radio station's receipt of the Edward R. Murrow Award for Excellence. The Radio and Television News Directors Association, a national trade group, administers this award program named for Murrow, the legendary radio and television journalist.

QCAP Homebuyer Workshop Oct. 28

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) will sponsor a First Time Homebuyer Workshop Saturday, Oct. 28 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at QCAP's main office, 1509 Hancock St.

Speakers at the workshop will discuss different stages of the homebuying process including: mortgage qualification, working with real estate agents, home inspections, and the role of closing attorneys.

Completion of the workshop is a requirement for different below market rate mortgage programs through Mass Housing Finance Agency and Soft Second Programs.

QCAP is a certified US Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) Housing Counseling agency. Aside from providing first time homebuyer counseling, QCAP also offers a variety of housing services for both homeowners and renters.

Advance registration for the workshop is required. For more information about the workshop and to register, call Nelson Wong at (617) 479-8181, ext. 115.

HAPPY HALLOWEEN!

Tips For A Safe Halloween

By ROBERT HANNA
Quincy Crime
Prevention Officer

Halloween may be a fun holiday for kids, but for parents, trick-or-treat time can be a little tricky. Concerns about children's safety — whether they are out in the neighborhood or back home with bags of booty — can darken the day more quickly than a black cat. But not to worry. To make Halloween a treat for all, follow these safety tips:

Make sure your kids dress up safely

- Check that the costumes are flame retardant so that little ones aren't in danger near burning jack-o-lanterns and other fire hazards.
- Keep costumes short to prevent trips, falls and other bumps in the night.
- Try make-up instead of a mask. Masks can be hot and uncomfortable and, more importantly, they can obstruct a child's vision — a dangerous thing when kids are crossing streets and going up and down stairs.

ROBERT HANNA

- Make sure kids wear light colors or put reflective tape on their costumes.
 - Trick-or-treaters always should be in groups so they aren't tempting targets for real life goblins. Parents should accompany young children.
 - Make trick-or-treating trouble free
 - Make sure older kids trick-or-treat with friends.
- Together, map out a safe route so parents know where they'll be. Tell them to stop only at familiar homes where the outside lights are on.

- Try to get your kids to trick-or-treat while it's still light out. If it's dark, make sure someone has a flashlight and pick well-lighted streets.

- Make sure kids know not to enter strange houses or stranger's cars.

Treats

- Kids need to know not to eat their treats until they get home. One way to keep trick-or-treaters from digging in while they're still out is to feed them a meal or snack beforehand.
 - Check out all treats at home in a well-lighted place.
 - What to eat? Only unopened candies and other treats that are in original wrappers. Don't forget to inspect fruit and homemade goodies for anything suspicious. By all means, remind kids not to eat everything at once or they'll be feeling pretty ghoulish for awhile.
- Halloween can be a lot of fun for parents and kids alike — if everybody remembers the tricks and treats of playing it safe.

AAA Issues Motorist, Pedestrian Advisory For A Safe Halloween

Citing the fact there is a fourfold increase nationwide in young pedestrian injuries on Halloween, AAA issues a motorist and pedestrian advisory approaching the first Halloween of the new millennium.

"Every year, thousands of pedestrians across the United States and Canada are injured as a result of motor-vehicle crashes," said Robert P. Murray, AAA Southern New England Senior Vice President of Corporate Affairs. "While this reality is reason enough for concern and action, government data shows a fourfold increase in injuries among young pedestrians on the evening of Halloween alone."

An analysis of data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration indicates that among pedestrians age 5-14, an estimated four thousand injuries occur on Halloween between the hours of 4 to 10 p.m. This compares with an estimated one thousand injuries during these hours on every other day of the year.

"On Halloween evening, we're placing our children in probably some of the most dangerous traffic situations you could imagine," Murray said. "Our children are outside after dark, they walk on and cross unfamiliar streets and they often wear dark colors difficult for motorists to see."

Because of these safety concerns, many parents are finding alternative methods to celebrate such as local mall events and Halloween parties. For those parents and children who continue with a traditional Halloween, AAA recommends a few simple tips for a safe Halloween.

Motorists:

- Slow down: try driving 5 mph slower than the posted speed limit to give you extra time to react to children who dart out in front of you.

- Be extra alert to children crossing the street between parked cars or in the middle of the block.

- Broaden your scan -- look left and right into yards and front porches.

- Turn your headlights on even in daylight -- lights make you more visible.

- Arrive home a little earlier on Halloween if you can. Make sure you have all your treats ready, so you can avoid that last-minute rush to the store.

"Keeping kids safe is a huge safety children on Halloween," Murray said. "Keep in mind that trick-or-treaters are focused on candy and fun, rather than traffic safety. Remember that you're going to see pedestrians where you usually don't, and if you don't put safety first, you have thousands of accidents just waiting to happen."

Mass. Electric Offering Energy Efficient Light Bulbs

Bulbs.com, a privately held e-commerce light bulb supplier, and Massachusetts Electric Company announce the companies have partnered to offer Massachusetts Electric Company customers Energy Star® light bulbs at a significant discount.

The offer, available to all residential Massachusetts Electric Company customers in Massachusetts, is for the purchase of six Energy Star®, long life energy saving light bulbs from Philips for $9.95, reflecting an instant rebate of $30. The retail value of these light bulbs is $39.95. By using the six energy efficient bulbs, customers could save an additional $160 in electricity costs over the expected four-year life of bulbs.

"This is a great deal for customers," said Lawrence J. Reilly, president and chief executive officer of Massachusetts Electric Company.

"They can save $30 on the spot, plus enjoy monthly savings on their electric bill once the bulbs are installed, replacing traditional incandescent lighting. Additionally, our partnership with bulbs.com allows our customers to participate in this rebate program using the convenience of the Internet."

"We are very pleased that a leading company like Massachusetts Electric Company has selected bulbs.com as its e-commerce partner," said Steven Rothschild, chief executive officer of bulbs.com. "By offering this rebate offer online, Massachusetts Electric Company customers won't have to drive to a store, saving even more energy."

Massachusetts Electric Company will alert its customers of the special offer in their monthly electric bills throughout autumn. The rebate offer is open to customers served by National Grid USA's distribution companies: Massachusetts Electric, Narragansett Electric and Nantucket Electric.

Interested customers can take advantage of the offer by visiting www.bulbs.com/ngusa or by calling toll-free, 1-866-642-8527.

Customers are asked to have their account numbers ready.

Birds May Rely On You For Food This Winter

(NAPS) -- Savvy gardeners and birdwatchers have discovered they can attract beautiful birds to their yard by selecting plants that provide food and shelter. All spring and summer, when gardens are in full bloom, birds typically have an ample supply of food. But as plans complete their flowering and fruiting cycles, it gets more difficult for birds to find food.

So, this fall, the National Audubon Society reminds gardeners to think about our winged friends by planting varieties that produce fruits, berries, nectar, seeds and nuts during the fall and winter seasons.

Here are some fall planting tips for a winter bird garden:

- Fall is a great time to add bird-friendly plants. The heat of the summer is past, and plants have time to root before frost comes.

- Select plants that provide nuts, seeds or berries in the coldest winter months, such as holly, junipers, oaks and other nut trees.

- Other plants that provide late fall and winter food include: crowberry, staghorn sumac, pitch pine, inkberry, smooth winterberry, Toringo crabapple, saw palmetto, Virginia creeper, Walter's viburnum and myrtle dahoon.

- Water is essential for birds, so provide a birdbath or dripping water source. If freezing is a problem, don't put additives in the water to lower the freezing point. Instead, consider a water heater designed for outdoor birdbaths.

Coalition To Hold Breakfast To Save Bird Sanctuary

The Coalition To Save The Bird Sanctuary (Lot 23) will hold "The Great Open Spaces Breakfast Buffet II" Saturday, Nov. 4 from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at Marina Place, 4 Seaport Drive, Marina Bay (next to the rotary and the Bird Sanctuary).

Breakfast donation is $15 per person and reservations must be made by Oct. 31. To make a reservation or for more information, call Ian Cooke at (781) 575-0354.

The breakfast is part of the coalition's ongoing effort to preserve open space and keep Lot 23 free from commercial development.

On Sept. 13 an Appeals Court judge issued an injunction halting construction on the Meadows at Marina Bay, a six-story, 136-unit apartment building proposed for the Marina Bay Bird Sanctuary, the five-acre wetland thicket beside the Marina Bay rotary.

A three-judge panel from Appeals will hear the case later this month. The coalition hopes that the court will agree with their claim that the Sanctuary is shielded by the Massachusetts Wetlands Protection Act and that the permit allowing its destruction is unlawful.

Since 1996 the coalition has sought to preserve the Sanctuary as parkland and public open space. The group believes that "the furious pace of construction in North Quincy should be matched by an equally vigorous effort to safeguard the natural features of the water's edge."

The coalition has received support from residents of Quincy and surrounding communities which has made it possible to hire legal and technical help, produce mailings, and keep the effort moving forward.

In a statement issued this week, the coalition said it was gratified by the judge's recent decision but anticipated "at least another year's worth of work," estimating costs at between $15,000 and $20,000.

FALL CAR CARE

How To Avoid Buying A Problem Car

(NAPS) -- Nearly 2.5 million cars are salvaged each year. Millions more are involved in less serious accidents. When shopping for a pre-owned car, be careful. If you purchase a car on which repairs were not performed correctly, the vehicle may not protect the people in the car.

You also need to know whether the car you're considering has had its air bag system deployed. Once deployed, it cannot be re-used and the entire mechanism must be replaced.

Automobile parts recyclers stress the importance of proper installation and certified inspections to ensure safety standards are met. If you suspect a car you're considering was in an accident, make sure you get the airbags checked by a mechanic.

Ways to avoid buying a problem car include:

1. Ask the seller about the car's history. It's more difficult to lie than to omit the truth. If the buyer hasn't asked, a seller may not feel compelled to divulge that information.

2. Ask the seller for a detailed vehicle history. Ask to see a Carfax Vehicle History Report on the vehicle and to view service records. Carfax reports may reveal hidden problems in a car's past, like accidents and salvage titles. Or log on yourself to www.Carfax.com or call toll-free 1-888-4CARFAX to find out more.

3. Look and really examine the details of the car. Is everything properly aligned? Does the car appear freshly painted? If so, ask why. Does all the trim look original and match? Run your hands along the doors, fenders, bumpers and the front and rear hoods to feel for imperfections that might indicate accident repair.

4. Take the car to a trusted mechanic. A physical inspection can uncover problems such as weld marks, which may indicate a potentially unsafe vehicle.

5. Visit a reputable used car dealer. Over 12,000 used car dealers around the country use Carfax to make sure their cars are top-notch. You can locate a dealer by logging on to www.Carfax.com and using the dealer locator.

If you're concerned about a vehicle or worried about a questionable past, walk away. There are plenty of deals to be found. It's better to be safe than sorry.

Keep Your Car Healthy: Check Its Fluids

(NAPS) -- Did you know that over the life of a vehicle, the water pump processes almost one million gallons of fluid? Just as we need to consume water to live healthy lives, a vehicle needs fluids to function properly. So to ensure proper maintenance and help prolong your vehicle's life, check its fluid level.

To keep the heart of the engine functioning correctly, your vehicle needs a proper level of antifreeze/coolant to effectively pull heat away from the engine. So how do you know if your coolant needs to be changed or topped off? Prestone antifreeze experts recommend flushing and filling your engine coolant annually.

But to be sure, you can use Prestone® Test Strips to measure the concentration of antifreeze/coolant in your radiator. Look at your vehicle's owner manual for proper specifications. And if you think there's a leak, use a product like Prestone® Stops Leaks to seal leaks in hoses, radiators and head gaskets. It's a sure way to avoid being stranded roadside with an overheated vehicle, a hefty repair bill and a headache.

Another vital fluid is brake fluid. It's designed to absorb moisture and remove water to prevent internal rusting and corrosion. After only two years, brake fluid can accumulate up to almost four percent water, which can lower its boiling point significantly. Without protection against boiling and extreme heat from friction in the braking system, serious brake problems are possible.

To prevent any unsafe situations, Prestone experts recommend flushing brake fluid at intervals of two to three years or every 30,000 miles, whichever comes first.

Now if your transmission is having trouble shifting or you see red fluid under the front of your vehicle, Prestone experts suggest you check the transmission fluid level immediately. Your vehicle could have a leak. Use a product like Prestone® AFT plus Stop Leak to replenish the transmission and seal any leaks.

Lastly, if your power steering fluid is low, you'll know it when you turn the corner. Check its levels and refill it with Prestone® Power Steering Fluid, the officially licensed power steering fluid of NASCAR®. It stops squealing and helps protect seals and prevent abnormal wear.

Vehicles need to be on proper diets in order to get you safely where you need to go. If you neglect them, they may get "sick" and no function properly. So, take care of your vehicle and check its fluid levels regularly.

Custom Touch-Up Paint For Cars

(NAPS) -- Finding touch up paint for your car can be very difficult. Since thousands of colors have been used to paint vehicles, a number of Web sites have popped-up in recent months to make ordering touch-up paint easier.

There are several sites that offer touch-up paint for automobiles but many Web users have found that PaintScratch.com is the most user friendly. To help the user identify the correct color of paint for their car, the Web site displays all colors utilized in manufacturing each specific car model.

Residents Clean, Paint Wollaston Walkway Tunnel

A group of concerned Wollaston residents made use of the weekend to restore and paint the walkway tunnel which connects Newport Ave. to St. Ann's Rd.

The residents, led by Stella Mahoney and Rita Bailey, organized neighborhood children who painted and decorated the tunnel in an effort to emphasize its importance to the community.

"The idea is to beautify it so that people will be less like to make a mess of it," said Bailey, who said the tunnel is used by many residents and school children in the neighborhood but has been subjected to problems such as trash, broken glass, mattresses, and even needles.

The DPW, Bailey said, has visited the site several times to clean up the mess only to have it return days later, adding that the DPW approved the restoration project.

Bailey singled out the efforts of DPW employee Richard Simone, who volunteered his own time to scrape and prepare the tunnel for painting and who outlined the designs and various cartoon characters for the children.

Thanks also went out to Curry/Ace Hardware of West Quincy which made nearly 400 gallons of paint available free of charge to volunteers.

Gas Station Complaints Placed On File, Owner Receives Praise

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board placed on file complaints at the Sea St. Getty, 346 Sea St., regarding abandoned vehicles, old tires and general appearance.

There were no abutters at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall, but only praise from area residents who said many of the cars are waiting [for parts in order to complete repairs.

They described the station as being "well operated, well run" and said with only two bays, cars sometimes have to be repaired on the asphalt.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who chaired Tuesday's meeting said he had driven by the station and said it looked "unkempt" and asked the owner Elias Ghossoub to make a "concerted effort" to clean it up.

One Houghs Neck resident, a customer said he first met the owner when he had some car trouble as well as personal problems. He said he didn't have any money, but the owner trusted him, fixed the car and told him "not to worry" about the bill.

He continued and added that because the owner and employees are "such good mechanics" and "so diligent" that people from all over the city are coming to the station.

Gorman reminded the owner that his business is in a "residential area" and that it should be kept clean. Ghossoub said since he purchased the business in March of 2000, it has been "part of a learning process" and that he would try to keep it clean.

Presidents At Plymouth South Friday Quincy Puts Scare Into Taunton, 21-14

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School football team almost knocked first-place Taunton from the unbeaten ranks in league play last Friday night.

Almost, however, has been the story for the past three seasons.

Trailing 14-7 in the fourth quarter, Quincy had two drives inside the red zone and two times it came away with zilch, nada — nothing. With 4:13 left in the game, senior tailback Latroy Gordon sealed the game for Taunton with his second touchdown of the night, a 62-yard score, for a 21-14 victory.

For Taunton (4-2, 4-0), it was an important win as Bridgewater-Raynham beat Barnstable to also remain undefeated in Old Colony League play at 3-0.

"We were right there to beat them," said head coach Bob Noble. "They should feel lucky that they won and I think they know that. 'There comes a point when you have to make plays, and in order to beat a team like Taunton you have to make them.'"

Quincy (0-6, 0-2) heads back out on the road tomorrow (Friday) night to take on Plymouth South (2-3-1, 1-2), which is coming off a resounding 37-14 win over North Quincy last Friday.

"There has to come a time when you win games and hopefully that will be this week against Plymouth South," Noble said.

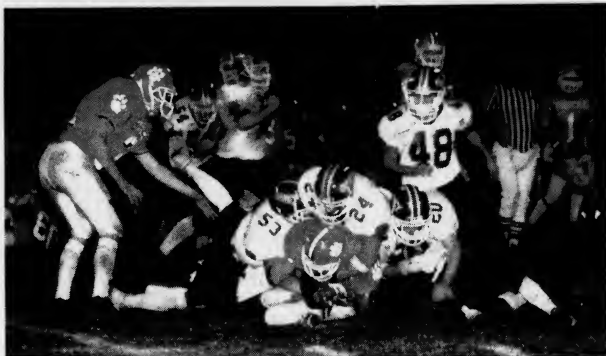

Panther senior back Eric Shanley had a monster game against North Quincy, rushing for 288 yards and three touchdowns, including a 98-yard score. Shanley will command the Presidents' full attention as they've had trouble in the past trying to contain talented backs.

"Shanley is their go-to guy," Noble said. "If you can contain him, you have a good shot at beating Plymouth South. You have to try to keep him from making a big run. Try to make them drive down the field. At the high school level, teams will make mistakes."

"We're going to try to build on what we felt we accomplished last Friday night," he added.

JUNIOR SCOTT KELLEY (28) drags a Tiger defender as he powers his way into the end zone for a 9-yard touchdown that tied the score at 7 in the third quarter. Quincy went on to lose, 21-14, last Friday night at Taunton. (Quincy Sun Photos)

QUINCY'S DEFENSE wraps up Taunton's Latroy Gordon for no gain. Junior linebackers Tom Shruhan (53) and Kris Kamborian (24) combine to make the tackle with senior defensive back Dan Dorsey (20) assisting.

For the first time since the season opener, Quincy displayed an effective ground game against Taunton, rushing for 160 yards. Senior tailback Paul Desmond carried the ball 17 times for 75 yards and junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano had 74 yards on 18 carries, including a 53-yard touchdown run to pull Quincy to 21-14 with 2:53 remaining in the game. He also had a 50-yard run called back earlier.

Lorenzano has made great strides since the beginning of the season. When Quincy went through that 12-quarter scoring drought, Lorenzano was struggling and that's when Noble decided to simplify things as he abandoned the multiple-set offense. Since then, Lorenzano has shown the promise that earned him the starting job.

"Mike Lorenzano is now starting to develop into a leader," Noble said. "He's been more comfortable with a lot of things. He has to do a lot of reading on the fly. He's asked to make decisions based on what the defense presents him. He's going to be another great quarterback for Quincy for the rest of this year and next year."

Quincy came to play from the get-go, holding Taunton to seven points in the first half, a 35-yard run by Gordon. Considering Taunton exploded for 52 points in the first half against North Quincy the previous week, it was an impressive defensive performance by the Presidents.

"[Assistant coach] Bill Reardon did a good job coming up with a defensive scheme to slow them down," Noble said.

In the third quarter, Quincy evened the score at 7 on a 9-yard touchdown scamper by junior tailback Scott Kelley. The Tigers regained their seven-point lead with 14 seconds left in the frame when Gordon hit senior wide receiver Jim Peters for a 17-yard touchdown on a half-back option pass.

Quincy blew its first chance to tie the game when it couldn't pick up a first down on fourth and less than a yard at the Tiger 8. On another drive, Quincy overthrew an open man in the end zone.

"There were a couple of situations where we should've picked up first downs," Noble said.

After Gordon's and Lorenzano's scoring runs, Quincy did get the ball back for one more shot, but it ran out of time.

"I don't believe in moral victories, but that's not to take anything away from the kids," Noble said. "We played very well to tell you the truth."

Men's Drop-In Basketball Program At Atlantic School

The Quincy Recreation Department will supervise a men's drop-in basketball program at the Atlantic School gymnasium beginning Monday, Oct. 30 from 6 to 8 p.m., announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The program will be held every Monday evening throughout the winter, except for holidays. The gym will be open to post-high school age adults. Pick-up teams are formed for games from those in attendance. Locker rooms and showers are available for use. There is a $3 fee payable each week at the door.

North Quincy Hosts Silver Lake Friday

Raiders Fall Prey To Panthers' Running Game

By CHRIS POISSON

Before last Friday night's game, North Quincy coach Peter Chrisom was well aware that the Plymouth South High School football team would like to run the ball as much as possible.

But 43 times? "That's all they did," Chrisom said.

Senior tailback Eric Shanley carried the ball 28 times for 288 yards and three touchdowns to power Plymouth South to a 37-14 win at Veterans Memorial Stadium. As a team, the Panthers (2-3-1, 1-2) finished with nearly 400 yards and five touchdowns on the ground as opposed to just 62 yards on five attempts in the air.

North Quincy (1-5, 1-3) will remain at home tomorrow (Friday) night to take on Silver Lake (2-4, 1-2) at 7 p.m. The Red Raiders will have their hands full again as they have to try to contain back Brandon McPhail.

McPhail is coming off a 189-yard, 2-touchdown performance in the Lakers' 27-9 win over Falmouth last Saturday. The 6-foot-1, 228-pound senior has rushed for 12 touchdowns this season, which puts him in a first-place tie in Division 1 scoring.

"We're just going to try and stop them up the middle," Chrisom said. "They like to run off-tackle. We have to try to slow them down a little."

North Quincy will also have to pay attention to quarterback Denis Hill. Only a sophomore, Hill runs the option extremely well and is also able to make plays down field with his arm.

"They just come right at you," Chrisom said. "They're big up front. And they have a pretty good quarterback who's just a sophomore. He does a good job running the option."

Offensively, the Red Raiders have been moving the ball well and they won't change much against Silver Lake — except cutting back on the turnovers. Last Friday, they turned the ball over four times, with three fumbles resulting into 20 Plymouth South points.

"We were in the game for the most part," Chrisom said. "Three big plays killed us." North Quincy trailed by only seven at the break, 21-14. In the second half, though, Plymouth South pounded the ball with Shanley and senior captain Steve Maccaferri (76 yards) as it held the ball for 15:02 seconds.

"The defense was on the field a long time," Chrisom said. "They were eating time off the clock."

On the opening possession of the second half, the Panthers fumbled but North Quincy couldn't capitalize as it went three-on-out. Plymouth South then put together a 14-play drive capped by senior Jon Waldron's 30-yard field goal to extend the lead to 24-14.

With 9 minutes left in the game, North Quincy still had a chance to come back but that ended when it fumbled on a fourth-and-1 play at the Plymouth South 35. The Panthers followed with a 47-yard TD run by Shanley to make it 30-14 with 2:42 remaining. Plymouth South turned another North Quincy fumble into a score when backup Kyle Perry ran one in from 10 yards out to account for the final score.

North Quincy looked sharp to start the game, orchestrating a 16-play, 65-yard drive that took 7:21 off the clock. It converted on a huge fourth-and-7 play and on two third downs. Senior fullback Dean Zoia ended the long march with a 1-yard scoring plunge for a 6-0 lead (extra point failed).

"I felt we had real good control in the first half," Chrisom said. "We took a chance on a fourth-down play and it worked to our advantage. You have to take those chances. It kept the drive alive. We ran the ball well and threw the ball well. That's what we're capable of doing. We just have to do it on a consistent basis."

Plymouth South tied the game at 6 at the end of the first quarter on a 4-yard touchdown run by Shanley. It took a 14-6 lead with 8:32 left in the half when Maccaferri broke through the defensive line for a 66-yard score and Shanley added the two-point conversion.

On the Red Raiders' next series, senior quarterback Max Repoff (12 for 19, 172 yards) tossed a beautiful ball to senior wideout Joe Holleran for 39 yards and it appeared Holleran was going to score but was stripped of the ball at the 2-yard line. On the ensuing play, Shanley powered his way up the middle for a back-breaking 98-yard touchdown.

North Quincy, however, didn't fold. It recovered a fumble at the Panther 12-yard line and on third down, Repoff connected with Holleran for a 10-yard TD pass on a fade to the left corner. Junior Pat Bregoli caught the two-point conversion pass to cut the deficit to 21-14.

Squantum Storm In Playoff Debut Sunday

The Squantum Storm qualified for the Quincy Youth Football playoffs for the first time in their six-year history.

The Storm will face the powerful Houghs Neck Manets Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium in the first round. Squantum used victories over the West Quincy Elks and North Quincy Apaches and an important tie against the Milton Mustangs to secure the last spot in postseason.

In the other first-round game, the Milton Mustangs will battle the Quincy Point Panthers.

Last weekend, the Panthers rallied from a first-half deficit to defeat the Storm, 14-6. The Storm jumped out to a 6-0 lead when Nissan Wong broke through the line to block a punt and Tim Kennedy picked up the loose ball and returned it 45 yards for a touchdown. Ricky Schifone made a nice block.

Youth Football

The fired up Storm defense, led by Mike Faherty, Paul Graham, Ryan Barter, David Jaehning, Kevin Barry and rookies Kevin Bossart and Steve Spring, dominated the game. But the momentum turned on one play as the Panther quarterback faked a dive, dropped back and threw a perfect pass into the hands of T.J. Pitts, who rumbled 70 yards for the tying score. Joe Ferrara's two-point conversion gave the Panthers an 8-6 lead.

Squantum tried to come back, but it couldn't overcome several penalties and a stiffening Panther defense, led by Jackie Dunlea, Alex and Parker Scott, and John Folino. Pitts added a last second touchdown to close out the scoring.

In the JV game, the Storm posted an 18-6 win. Chris Rooney ran an interception back 105 yards for a touchdown to save the game.

Kevin Bossart scored on a 10-yard touchdown run as Dominic McDougal, Nick Brown and Roger Coufaude threw great blocks. Quarterback Anthony Black connected with his brother, Johnny, on a pretty 15-yard TD pass.

The Storm defense was led by defensive end Matt Jaehning, R.J. Barden and Steve Yovino along with Jay Lewis and Mike Garland, who each made interceptions to stop the Panthers from scoring.

The Panthers scored on Keith Banco's 40-yard run.

In the freshman game, the Panthers earned a 6-0 win.

Brian McQuinn scored the touchdown. Doug Scott was the MVP as he was a force on both sides of the ball. Steve McCormick had a strong game on the line.

For the Storm, James Sullivan, Zack Deegan, Matt Sheridan, J.J. Downs, Adam Blaton, Andrew Jaehning, Ryan Mirabito, Andrew Black, Kyle Tobin, Billy Kiley, Bobby Yovino, Joe Theodore and Dimitri Tsoubanis all turned in solid efforts.

In the previous week, Tim Kennedy's 4-yard touchdown run lifted the Storm to a 6-0 win over the Apaches. For the Apaches, Tom Ross caught a beautiful pass from Brendan Linnane that almost went for a touchdown. Patrick Casper was immense on defense with 10 tackles.

In the JV game, Mike Garland scored four touchdowns to lead Squantum to a 30-0 victory.

The Apaches were led by Jon Eaton, Anthony Gilbody and Paul Kustka.

In the freshman game, the Apaches used two David Thomson touchdown runs and a 35-yard touchdown pass from Tyler Briffet to Richie Groves to post an 18-6 win.

Dominic McDougal scored for the Storm on a nice run.

South Shore Baseball Club Camp Opens Nov. 4

Quincy residents are invited to participate in the South Shore Baseball Club's Battery Club beginning Nov. 4 for four consecutive Saturday mornings at its Holbrook facility.

The Battery Club provides specialized instruction for serious pitchers and catchers between the ages of 8-12.

Pitching instruction will concentrate on proper mechanics, including the windup and stretch, strategy and pitch selections, different grips and its effects on the ball, pick-off moves, fielding and positive attitude.

Catching sessions focus on correct receiving and throwing techniques, pitch selection, blocking low pitches and overall strategy.

Ernie DeGregorio Visits Marshall School

Former Boston Celtics star Ernie DeGregorio made a recent visit to the Clifford Marshall Elementary School to kick off the "Savings Makes 'Cents'" Program sponsored by the Bank of Canton.

DeGregorio encouraged good savings habits and entertained the children with basketball demonstrations and games.

The Bank of Canton will be working with five Grade 3 classes to teach students the importance and basics of money management and provide students with a better understanding of the bank's services. It will also acquaint students with the banking industry and the recent technological advances that have been made in the industry.

Manets Down Elks, Take Over First

The Houghs Neck Manets closed its regular season with an exciting 18-12 victory over the West Quincy Elks in Quincy Youth Football action last Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The win gives the Manets (6-1) sole possession of first place and sets up a first-round playoff match against the Quantum Storm Sunday.

The Manets overcame early penalties and turnovers to score first on a 20-yard pass from quarterback Terrence O'Connell to running back Dean Sandanato. The Elks struck back using a balanced offensive attack to even the score at 6 at the break.

In the second half, the Manets shut down the Elks despite not having the services of their defensive leader, Shayne Murray. Late in the third quarter, Sandanato made an important play when he picked up an Elk fumble and returned to the Elks' 2-yard line. On the next play, O'Connell scored to give the Manets a 12-6 lead.

Midway through the fourth quarter, with the Elks driving deep into Manet territory, defensive tackle Jesse Depina came up with the play of the game when he stripped the ball from the Elks' running back.

The Manets capitalized when running back Joe Keefe scampered 50 yards into the end zone for an 18-6 lead with 3 minutes remaining in the game. The Elks responded with a huge 60-yard scoring pass to pull within one touchdown, 18-12.

The Manets then fumbled on their first play from scrimmage and the Elks drove down to the Manet 35 with a little over a minute left. The Elks' rally came up short when Keefe sealed the game with a huge interception.

The West Quincy Elks freshman and JV teams both remained undefeated this season (7-0) with identical 24-6 victories over the Houghs Neck Manets last Saturday.

Next up for West Quincy is the jamboree Sunday at 11 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In the JV game, the Elks were led by their defense as Nick Malames returned an interception 90 yards for a touchdown and Adam Tragellis returned another interception 20 yards for a score.

Tim Brown and Efrain Melendez each made 10 tackles, while Eric Still (3 tackles), Jade Pina (INT), John Constas and Andrew Restreppo also contributed with strong defensive plays.

Offensively, Ryan Donovan rushed for 97 yards and Matt Boyle completed 3-of-7 passes for 50 yards and a touchdown.

In the freshman game, the Elks rushed for 289 yards thanks to the huge holes opened up by offensive linemen Jesse Skomial, Shayne LaCorte, Darren Jones, John Mullin and Mulligan.

Tim Kerins rushed for a team-high 127 yards and a touchdown, Alex Tragellis finished with 82 yards and two touchdowns and Dennis Martin added 52 yards and a touchdown. Quarterback Dennis Martin completed 8-of-12 passes for 128 yards. He connected with receivers Julian Calaruso (4 catches, 75 yards), Billy Connors and Mike Mattola.

The defense was led by LaCorte (10 tackles), Kerins (8 tackles), Jones (6 tackles), Mullin (5 tackles) and Mattola (5 tackles). Also adding support were Ronnie McKenzie, James Traglina, Nick Anderson and Skomial.

JOE FONTANA of Quincy met superstar Nomar Garciaparra at an interactive baseball clinic prior to the Red Sox game against the Baltimore Orioles Sept. 23. Fontana was one of more than 100 children who won a sweepstakes contest featured at Dunkin' Donuts. In addition to the clinic with Garciaparra and Red Sox coaches, the day's activities also included a tour of Fenway Park, lunch and tickets to the game, an autographed Red Sox hat and the photo with Nomar.

Youth Football League Celebration Oct. 29

The Quincy Youth Football League will celebrate its 10th anniversary Sunday, Oct. 29 at 2 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium following the cheerleading exhibition.

The league is looking for alumni to join the celebration.

Former board members, franchise holders, coaches, players or cheerleaders who would like to participate are asked to call Lynne Garland at (617) 647-5314.

Sacred Heart/North Quincy Basketball Registration

Registration for the Sacred Heart/North Quincy Youth Basketball program will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Sacred Heart Parish Hall, 386 Hancock St.

The program is open to Quincy boys and girls between the ages of 5 to 18. There is an instructional program for ages 5, 6 and 7; a house league for grades 3 through 10 and various travel teams.

For more information call Mark Jaehnig at 472-3311.

The North Quincy girls' soccer team split a pair of games last week to keep alive hopes of a home playoff game in the Division I South tournament.

North Quincy (8-3-4) traveled to Barnstable last Friday and played a near flawless game to pick up a 3-0 win. Last Tuesday, it dropped a 2-0 decision at home to Bridgewater-Raynham.

The Red Raiders hosted Plymouth South Tuesday and today (Thursday) it hosts Martha's Vineyard. Saturday, it closes the regular season against rival Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 7 p.m.

"If we win our last three games, we'll definitely play our first game of the tournament at home," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "Our seeding could be in the five-seven range."

Against Barnstable, North Quincy showed a new system, a short passing attack, to hand the Red Raiders of the Cape their second loss of the season. Sophomore Christina Conley, junior Allie Lacey and senior quad-cap- tain Kellee Conley put constant pressure on Barnstable's defense.

North Quincy capitalized midway through the first half as junior Lauren Sleeth netted her fifth goal of the year on a scramble in front of the net. Sophomore Lauren Kalil got the assist.

The Red Raiders lost junior sweeper Kelly Rice 10 minutes into the game. However, sophomore Jessica Jacques filled in brilliantly and played the final 70 minutes.

In the second half, North Quincy used the sun and wind to its advantage and continued to press the attack. Senior quad-captain Casey Ridge, who played her best game of the year, Sleeth and sophomore Katie Timmins all controlled midfield.

Midway through the half, Kalil took a corner kick and senior defender Jen Conley, a quad-captain, volleyed the ball into the back of the net for her third goal of the year. North Quincy closed out the scoring with less than a minute left when Kalil notched her third assist of the game, finding Kellee Conley in front for her ninth goal of the season. (Cont'd On Page 33)

North Quincy Freshmen Girls Dominate League

The North Quincy freshmen girls' soccer team dominated Old Colony League play this season, finishing with a perfect 6-0 record.

North Quincy (12-4) hosted Dedham Monday and Tuesday it closed out the season with a game against non-league foe Milton.

The Red Raiders got off to a fast start this fall, reeling off six straight wins after dropping its season opener to Marshfield. They were unlucky at home against Whitman-Hanson when they lost, 1-0, to a team they beat, 2-1, in the first meeting. They suffered their third loss at Marshfield.

North Quincy returned to winning form with a 3-2 win at home against Silver Lake and a 5-1 win at Taunton on Columbus Day. The next four wins were against Braintree, Brockton, Plymouth South and Taunton before dropping one at Weymouth.

Coached by Frank O'Donoghue, the Red Raiders are strong at all positions. With Kristina Manganaro and Charissa Wooster, the team has two outstanding goalies. Sarah Gregory is an excellent sweeper and is well supported by corner backs Kristin Grazioso, Amanda Murphy, Heather Cesero (stopper), Caitlin Worley, Megan Means, Mary-Kate Lonergan and Mary-Helena Lombard.

The midfield is solid with Breanne Therrien, Ashley Ridge, Jackie Rhode, Jamie Clifford, Keri O'Connell, Sue Kim, Megan Hennessy, Evan Allen, Kacy Dotoli and Nicole Murray. Katy Faherty, Jen Ryan, Katelyn Murphy, Caitlin Trainor, Joanie O'Mahoney and Caitlin Kyle lead a superb forward line.

With all 26 girls playing in every game, the future of girls' soccer at North Quincy appears to be on solid feet.

Kids With Braces Bite Off More Than They Can Chew On Halloween

As the night of October 31 draws closer, most children start thinking of what costume they'll wear or if their Halloween bag is big enough for all the candy they intend to consume.

But while most kids are planning to devour the mounds of hard and sticky candy they receive on Halloween night, it's no treat for orthodontists who are getting ready to repair mounds of damage that all this candy may cause.

"The few weeks following Halloween are my busiest weeks of the year," says Dr. Gregory Gough, a Massachusetts Dental Society (MDS) member and Peabody orthodontist. "After Halloween, I see more broken brackets and wires than any other time of the year."

October is National Orthodontic Health Month. With that in mind, the MDS is hoping that candy givers and parents will do their part to prevent any orthodontic mishaps that could take place.

While Gough agrees that realistically, you can't tell children not to eat the sweets they've collected on Halloween, avoiding certain types of candy can help prevent damage to a child's braces.

"Truth be told, it's the chewy and hard candy that's the worst, especially for orthodontic patients," Gough says. "It really does the most damage."

Dr. Mel Ehrlich, an MDS member and Framingham dentist, agrees. "A piece of plain chocolate is better to give a child instead of sticky or chewy candy," he says. "Besides the damage it can do to braces, I've seen children lose teeth and fillings from eating that type of candy."

Gough also thinks the quicker the candy is eaten

Study Links Flowers And Life Satisfaction

According to recent behavioral research conducted at Rutgers University in New Jersey, nature provides us with a simple way to improve emotional health — flowers. The presence of flowers triggers happy emotions, heightens feelings of life satisfaction and affects social behavior in a positive manner far beyond what is normally believed.

"What's most exciting about this study is that it challenges established scientific beliefs about how people can manage their day-to-day moods in a healthy and natural way," said Jeannette Haviland-Jones, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology at Rutgers and lead researcher on the study.

A team of researchers explored the link between flowers and life satisfaction in a 10-month study of participants' behavioral and emotional responses to receiving flowers. The results show that flowers are a natural and healthful moderator of moods.

1. Flowers have an immediate impact on happiness. All study participants expressed "true" or "excited" smiles upon receiving flowers, demonstrating extraordinary delight and gratitude. This reaction was universal, occurring in all age groups.

2. Flowers have a long-term positive effect on moods. Specifically, study participants reported feeling less depressed, anxious and agitated after receiving flowers, and demonstrated a higher sense of enjoyment and life satisfaction.

3. Flowers make intimate connections. The presence of flowers led to increased contact with family and friends.

"Common sense tells us that flowers make us happy," said Dr. Haviland-Jones. "Now, science shows that not only do flowers make us happier than we know, they have strong positive effects on our emotional well-being."

Sharing Space

The Study also explored where in their homes people display flowers. The arrangements were placed in areas of the home that are open to visitors — such as foyers, living rooms and dining rooms — suggesting that flowers are a symbol for sharing.

"Flowers bring about positive emotional feelings in those who enter a room," said Dr. Haviland-Jones. "They make the space more welcoming and create a sharing atmosphere."

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"
Will a hearing aid correct my loss right away?

No! You will notice an immediate difference in volume and some sounds will be clearer but it takes time to re-learn how to hear with a hearing aid. Your maximum potential may not be reached for a full year. Hearing is a learned process, the brain needs to store information received from the ear. When you first get a hearing aid, it is foreign to the brain. The brain wants to hear and will learn to the best of its ability, if you give it enough practice. Try to be patient, practice, and keep in touch with your Hearing Instrument Specialist for adjustments and fine tuning. Don't wait too long to get help. The longer you wait, the more difficult it is for the brain to re-learn how to hear again. This is a major reason why a hearing aid can end up in a desk drawer instead of an ear. There are other reasons, most of which can be overcome if your Specialist is dedicated to your success! If you carefully select your Specialist, he or she will carefully select your hearing instrument. Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

United Methodist To Host Children's Sabbath Sunday

Quincy Community United Methodist Church will hold a special worship service Sunday at 10 a.m. to draw attention to the needs of our nation's children.

Quincy Community United Methodist is one of thousands of churches, synagogues, mosques, and other places of worship around the nation celebrating the Children's Sabbath as part of the Children's Defense Fund annual observance.

Started nine years ago, the observance seeks to enlist congregations and religious organizations to work on behalf of children through prayer, service and advocacy. This year's theme is "Joining Hearts, Hands and Voices to Leave No Child Behind."

"We hope the community will join us and that the light we shine will be a beacon of hope and recognition for our children to know they are cherished and cared for," said Rev. Carol Stine, pastor.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center, will have morning worship and church school at 10 a.m. on Sunday.

The Rev. William Harding, pastor, will conduct the service. He will have a few moments with the children of the church school before they go to their classes.

His sermon topic will be

United Methodist

Rev. Carol Stine will have "Miracle Workers" as her sermon title at the 10 a.m. worship service at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Are you a friend? It does not take a special gift. It takes a special grace - the grace of kindness.

A good talk with a close friend can solve problems, or at least put them in perspective before they become overpowering. One of the problems we face in our hectic, moving-about-society is a scarcity of true friends...

Let's think about friendship... A friend is one who is kind, patient and loving enough to listen to what bothers us. A friend is one who does not look down upon us because we feel discouraged or mixed up. A friend listens and hears the need we, ourselves, have difficulty understanding. A friend is one who, simply by letting us share, helps us hear our own words so that we gain a better perspective.

How often have we said to a friend who listened: "You have been such a real help. Thanks a lot." After reflecting, we remind ourselves that our friend has just listened, not only with the ears, but with the heart, and hardly said a word. Yet we were refreshed and encouraged...

Yes, friendship need not be a scarcity to those who truly want to be friendly...

Deware Funeral Homes

Helping Create National

Registry Of Remembrances

The Deware Funeral Homes of Quincy and over 1,500 other Dignity Memorial affiliates across the country have made a commitment to help create a national Registry of Remembrances for the National World War II Memorial.

The memorial, which grew from the efforts of WWII veteran Roger Durbin, will be constructed on the Mall in the Nation's Capitol and the registry will remain on permanent public display. In 1987, Durbin influenced U.S. Representative Marcy Kaptur (Ohio) to share his concern that millions of Americans who worked to win WWII were forgotten because of the lack of a national memorial honoring their sacrifice.

The groundbreaking for the memorial will take place Veteran's Day, Nov. 11, 2000.

Recognizing the ultimate sacrifice of losing one's life in the defense of one's country, the National Funeral Directors Association (NFDA) is supporting a grassroots effort to populate the registry. Anyone who served in the armed forces during WWII, as well as anyone who helped the war effort on the home front, is eligible to have his or her name included in the special registry.

The registry will honor those Americans who worked in defense-related industries or factories, recycled material needed for the war effort or provided other support that helped create the U.S. arsenal of democracy. Anyone can register his or her own name, family members', or friends' names at no charge.

Financial contributions to support the World War II Memorial can be sent to the War World II Memorial Fund, American Battle Monuments Commission, Attn.: GRO48, P.O. Box 96074, Washington, D.C. 20090-6074.

"The Deware Funeral Homes have served veterans who served our country for over 60 years," said Scott Deware, president of Deware Funeral Homes. "We hold dear the sacrifices made to defend our democracy."

Those wishing to register may visit the Deware Funeral Homes, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston, from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Monday-Friday.

Call (617) 472-1137 to arrange other times to register. There is no cost to register.

Your Social Security

Expedite Your Claim For Disability Benefits

By LAURIE ZASTROW

Claims for disability benefits generally take longer than other types of Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) claims. You can expedite the decision on your claim by being prepared before you apply.

It's important that you understand how Social Security defines disability. To be considered disabled under Social Security rules, adults must have a physical and/or mental problem that keeps them from working for at least 12 months or is expected to result in death. The disability rules are the same for both the Social Security and SSI programs.

You can help us give you a faster decision on your claim if you bring certain documents when you apply and by helping us to get any other medical evidence to show that you are disabled. These include:

- your Social Security number;
- names, addresses and phone numbers of doctors, hospitals, clinics and institutions that treated you and the dates of treatments.
- names of all medications you are taking;
- medical records from your doctors, therapists, hospitals, clinics and caseworkers;
- laboratory and test results;
- a summary of where you worked and the kind of work you did; and
- a copy of your W-2 form (Wage and Tax Statement), or, if you are self-employed, your federal income tax return for the past year.

But, don't delay filing your claim for disability payments even if you don't have all this information. We'll help you get the information you need. To find out more about filing for disability, visit our website, www.ssa.gov, and download copies of the publications, Disability Benefits (Pub. No. 05-10029) or Supplemental Security Income (Pub. No. 05-10000). You can also call toll-free at 1-800-772-1213 and request copies of these booklets.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

We need you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A bold approach has served you well in your workaday world, but you'll find that your private life will blossom in a more moderate atmosphere.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your determination soon pays off now that your goals are in sight. But be alert to a possible development that could cause problems if mishandled.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Expect the unexpected this week. Most surprises will be welcome, but even the less pleasant ones can be handled with patience and common sense.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Learn to listen to the truth, even if it upsets your perception of how you believe things are or should be. A family matter requires sensitive handling.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Unsettled situations don't get sorted out while you're catnapping. So stop putting things off, and work out a schedule to help get your life back in order.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Someone close might be preparing to move away. Repress the temptation to try to change his or her mind, and instead offer loving support.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Be careful about finances this week. Invest only when you're sure of your facts. Renewing ties with an old friend turns out to be a very wise move.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new wrinkle appears in a deal you thought had been truly well-ironed-out. Use this delay to dig for any facts that might still be hidden.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) There is still a need for you to be super-wary of commitments. Take things step by step, and reject attempts to get you to hurry up.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) That cautious, conservative side of you is about to be overwhelmed by your equally strong sense of adventure and curiosity. Go with it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Cupid favors both attached and single Water Bearers this week. Help the chubby Cherub do his job by showing a little more affection than usual.

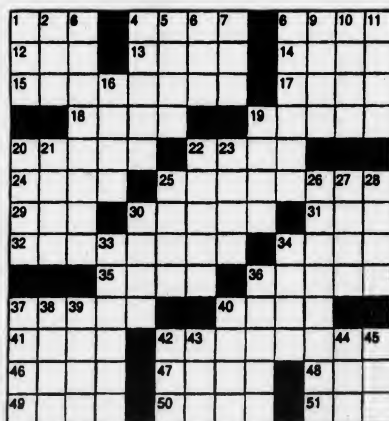

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Changes in your professional life might affect your personal relationships. You need to reassure loved ones that there is no change in your feelings for them.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy your own company, but you also thrive in the presence of others. Counseling and clergy are good career choices.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

the year.

Junior Kathryn MacRitchie made 12 saves in goal for her sixth shutout of the season. Sophomore Erin McFarland, marking supersenior Crystal Kalweit, played an outstanding game to help the Red Raiders blank the high-powered Barnstable offense.

"We played our best game of the year against Barnstable," Bregoli said, "with several players giving us their best efforts of the year, including McFarland, Ridge, Sleeth and Jacques. 'Kali' played a super game, not only on offense but also defensively. Rachel Enos also played inspired soccer for us. Lacey, playing with a brace for her back, showed great courage in her effort. She was a real spark for us offensively."

Against Bridgewater-Raynham, except for a three-minute stretch at the end of the first half, North Quincy played the Old Colony League leaders even or better. But it was the small stretch where the game turned.

The Trojans converted on their sixth corner kick of the first half. On the play, North Quincy may have lost senior defender Stacy Szeszui with torn ligaments in her ankle.

"That would be a big loss as Stacy is playing excellent soccer for us now," Bregoli said.

Fifteen seconds before the half ended, Bridgewater-Raynham scored a back-breaking goal as MacRitchie's dive on a semi-breakaway came up short.

Hospital Union Sets One-Day Strike Date

to reach a fair agreement and avoid a strike, but we need management to work with us to resolve the key issues," said Judy Keith, a physical therapist and member of the Local 285 Bargaining Committee. "Management is not being reasonable on key issues like a retirement plan, fair pay, and working conditions."

Commenting on last week's informational picket, Quincy Medical Center Karen Schwartzman said the hospital was negotiating in earnest to reach a settlement but that it was hospital policy "to handle our negotiations directly across the table and not through the media."

But Ruddick said that, as things stand now, management hasn't been able to demonstrate to the union bargaining committee why rotating shifts are necessary or why QMC should not contribute to employees' pension plans, which Ruddick called "standard practice" for the industry.

"Employees gave up 10 percent (of total compensation) last year to keep the hospital going during its transition from public to private," Ruddick said. "Additional concessions are not acceptable."

SEIU 925 represents two bargaining units at QMC, Clerical employees and Maintenance and Dietary employees. SEIU 285 represents 300 professional and technical employees.

Notice of the strike, Ruddick said, was given to QMC Oct. 20, meeting the requirement that the unions provide at least 10 days notice to the hospital before any labor action.

The employees involved in the labor dispute, Ruddick explained, had a pension plan when the hospital was a public entity but lost those benefits during its transition to the now private Quincy Medical Center.

School Supplies Needed For Deprived Countries

The American Red Cross is encouraging local schools to gather school supplies for students in underprivileged countries and disaster areas as part of its School Chest Program.

For the many Kosovar children, still recovering from the trauma of war, the school year means hope and the return of some familiarity in their lives. With drastically few school supplies available, Kosovo has asked the American Red Cross for its help. Kenya, Mozambique, Bulgaria and El Salvador are some of the other countries also in need.

School chest items should include pencils, jump ropes, rulers, notepads, blackboard erasers, colored chalk, crayons, etc. All materials must be new and of good quality and appearance.

For more information on the American Red Cross School Chest Program, call volunteers Mae Harris or Donie Cahill at (617) 770-2600.

HEATED WORDS

Having your vehicle's heating system checked begins with the cooling system since coolant is what circulates engine heat through the heater core and radiates heat into the passenger compartment. Thus, all hoses and other under-hood components should be checked for coolant leaks. Then, with the engine warm and running and the heater controls set to "high," the technician will feel the heater core's outlet and inlet hoses where they connect to the firewall. A cold heater inlet hose usually indicates that the heater control valve or its vacuum hose is faulty. On vehicles without a heater control valve, the problem is often a blocked hose or coolant passage leading to it. A cold heater outlet hose usually signifies a blocked heater core.

Colder weather is just about here. Make sure your heating system is working properly. Whether you are driving a new car or a used one, LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) is your local auto center that can handle all your automotive needs. We are a shop that treats you like a person and not a number. We're your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: If it takes more than a few minutes for the needle on your vehicle's coolant-temperature gauge to reach the normal operating zone and you get little or no heat, it may be that the thermostat is stuck open and needs to be replaced.

STANDING ROOM ONLY: Over 100 residents attended Monday night's public hearing concerning $65 million in bond appropriations for a new Quincy High School and renovations for Central and Sterling Middle Schools. The crowd appeared evenly split pro and con, with some arguing contamination issues at the Quincy Ave. site were not fully addressed and others arguing that the new QHS site could be safely remediated. The Finance Committee of the Council, meeting immediately after the five-hour session of the Oversight Committee, voted to postpone any bond vote until further testing had been done at the site.

City Gains 1,887 New Voters

72-75% Turnout Seen Here Tuesday

City Clerk Joseph Shea is forecasting a 72 to 75 percent turnout here in next Tuesday's state and presidential election.

He is basing his prediction on:

- A gain of 1,887 new voters since the September primary giving the city a total enrollment of 53,439.

- Going into this week, 1,200 have already voted by absentee ballot and he expects that number to reach 1,400 and possibly more.

- The eight referendum questions. (See Page 12).

"And probably most important of all," he says, "we are electing a brand new president. People come out to vote in a presidential election that don't in municipal elections. And this one is for a new president."

Shea thinks the Al Gore-Joseph Lieberman and George W. Bush-Richard Cheney tickets will bring out a vote to match or top that of 1996.

Quincy's turnout that year was nearly 73 percent with Democrats Bill Clinton and Gore rolling over the Bob Dole-Jack Kemp Republican team, 23,172 to 9,819.

The biggest turnout ever in Quincy, says Shea, was for the John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon battle in 1960 when 93 percent of the city's then 49,447 registered voters went to the polls.

Until Ladder Truck Issue Resolved

Firefighters Union Calls For Construction Moratorium

The Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792 has called for a city-wide moratorium on all current and future construction projects at or above two and one-half stories until issues concerning a new ladder truck are addressed.

A statement released by the union Tuesday called delaying the purchase of a new ladder truck until after an ongoing Fire Needs Study "short sighted and dangerous" and "nothing but a stalling tactic."

After City Council 5-Hour Stormy Hearing

QHS Site Vote Delayed For More Testing

By CRAIG SALTERS

After a five-hour public hearing on the matter, the City Council voted to postpone a vote on $65 million in bond appropriations for a new Quincy High School and renovated Central and Sterling Middle Schools until further testing is done on the new high school's proposed site off Quincy Avenue.

The decision reflects agreement with a School Committee resolve passed last week which urged that construction plans move forward while independent testing be conducted to verify earlier tests and reassure residents.

At issue is whether the roughly 15-acre parcel of land, some of which was a former dumping ground for shipyard owner Bethlehem Steel in the 1940's and 1950, can be successfully "capped" so as to contain significant amounts of asbestos and smaller amounts of heavy metals on the property.

"It's premature to deal with any of these issues before testing," reasoned Finance Committee Chairman Frank McCauley, who convened and immediately adjourned his sub-committee moments after the five-hour hearing of the Oversight Committee, which was run by Oversight Committee Chairman Joseph Newton.

Although the bond issues for the new high school and renovations for the two middle schools are to be voted on in the Finance Committee, the public hearing was held by the Oversight Committee in an effort to avoid redundant hearings.

A crowd of over 100, almost evenly divided pro and con, sat through and participated in the debate. Almost no one disputed that Quincy needed a new high school but some argued that building a high school so close to a capped landfill containing carcinogens was risky and shortsighted; others said

New Restaurant For Quincy Center

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Quincy Center will have a new restaurant at the site of Kevin's on the Heritage for the holidays.

The restaurant at 1495 Hancock St. will be called simply "Pearl" an oyster bar and grill, and will be open by December. It will also have a raw bar and a piano bar.

New owners are brothers Steve and Dave Walsh who between them have had more than 20 years experience including the Marriott in Boston and the Daniel Webster Inn on the Cape, and Turner Fisheries in Gloucester.

Atty. Stephen Coleman said except for some painting and decor, the layout of the establishment and kitchen will be almost identical. The only big difference will be the new raw bar and the entertainment.

He said there will be three function rooms for business meetings that could hold up to 60 persons.

Chairman Joseph Shea said when the restaurant closed last year, he "hated to see it lose", and added "people have missed a restaurant at that location" and said he was "anxious to see it reopen."

Hours of operation for the 180 seat restaurant will be from 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. Walsh said as soon as his staff is established, that may Sunday openings will be in the offing. He said Sundays will still be available for functions.

For Those In High Risk Flu Clinics On Schedule Despite Vaccine Delays

By TOM HENSHAW
Despite delays in delivery of the bulk of the vaccine, the Health Department's flu clinics will go on as scheduled --- but with only Quincy residents 18 years or older in high risk groups eligible for vaccinations.

The second delivery of vaccine (2,000 doses), which was expected to be on hand by Nov. 6, will be delayed until the first week in December in time to be administered to persons in the non-high risk grouping.

The high risk groups are defined as those persons over 65 years of age, those who present physician's documentation of chronic illness and pregnant women who will be in their second and third trimester during the flu season.

For them, the first clinic will be held Tuesday, Nov. 7, from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. at Pagnano Towers, 100 Curtis Ave., and the clinics will continue for as long as the supply of vaccine on hand (1,600 doses) lasts.

"At this time no changes will be made in the clinic schedules in hopes that the bulk of the vaccine will arrive prior to the City Wide Clinic on Dec. 2nd," said the Health Department in an update release.

The department noted that the flu season historically does not start until late December, peaking in February, so the late arrival of the vaccine poses no serious threat to the low-risk population.

"Ample notice will be given if it is necessary to reschedule any clinics due to the continued delays in receiving the vaccine," said the Health Department.

There are four private companies licensed by the federal Food & Drug Administration (FDA) to produce the vaccine but one of the strains of the virus expected this season grew slowly in the laboratory, delaying the start of production.

Then two of the companies had difficulty meeting FDA requirements for the vaccine and one of them went out of business, leaving only one, Aventis Pasteur of Pennsylvania, on the production line.

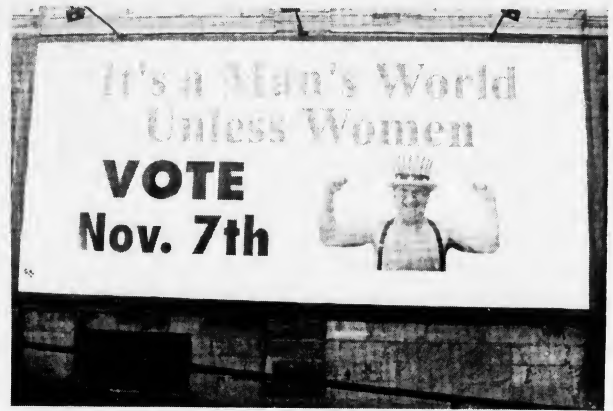

The State Public Health Department recommended the following strategies for the local flu clinics:

- Schedule initial clinics based only on the amount of influenza vaccine they already have on hand.

- Target vaccination clinics only to those at highest risk of complications from influenza.

- Schedule additional clinics in December, pending receipt of further vaccine.

- Encourage healthy people younger than 65 years of age to wait until December or later to seek flu vaccine for themselves.

SEIU Local 925 Postpones One-Day Strike At QMC

The two bargaining units of the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) Local 925 have postponed their one-day strike, confirms Kris Danna, a spokeswoman for Quincy Medical Center.

The two units, one of which represents roughly 130 maintenance and dietary workers while the other represents roughly 30 clerical workers, had earlier set an Oct. 31 deadline for holding a one-day strike.

Danna said that negotiations were going well but that, at the request of the union, further meetings and possible labor actions would be postponed for a short time.

Hal Ruddick, staff director for SEIU Local 285 which represents 300 professional and technical workers at the hospital and which had also given notice of a one-day strike, confirmed that a tentative agreement had been reached between the union and QMC.

Dunkin' Donuts To Move Across Sea St.

The License Board Tuesday approved a change of location for a 24-hour Dunkin' Donuts from 364 Sea St. to across the street at 399 Sea St., pending a report from Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing owners Richard and Paul Cleary said the relocation of the donut shop from "the southerly to northerly side" of the street will have 16,217 square foot piece of land and a 2,072 square foot building.

Fleming said it will seat 12 persons and have 15 parking spaces.

The Cleary's have owned the donut shop on 364 Sea

St. for the past 21 years.

Fleming called the relocation a "more acceptable site" with improved safety, increased site distance and a reduction of a potential left turn, and the elimination of bus traffic

Fleming said plans for the construction of the building would begin soon, and that opening is hoped to be in the Spring of 2001.

'Impact Quincy' editorial is a series of high-impact public service announcements published once a month in The Quincy Sun. The editorials, written by local officials and public health advocates, address critical substance abuse issues such as underage drinking in the City of Quincy.

Impact Quincy's Media Campaign

By KEN TARABELLI

Executive Director, Bay State Community Services
Mayor James Sheets recently described Impact Quincy

as a community-based coalition dedicated to addressing local issues pertaining to substance abuse. I would like to provide further background information and introduce Impact Quincy's latest prevention initiative.

Impact Quincy is a program of Bay State Community Services (BSCS), which was formed in 1991 by the merger of the Quincy-based Survival, Inc. and the South Shore Council on Alcoholism. Each of the original agencies was formed by local citizens and had a 30-year history of providing substance abuse, mental health and social services to the people of Quincy and the Greater South Shore area. In 1995, BSCS proudly became affiliated with Quincy Medical Center and remains thankful for the hospital's continued support.

Bay State Community Services understands the primary importance of family and community in dealing with issues of substance abuse. Most of the agency's programs offer help based on need, regardless of the ability to pay. All are staffed by knowledgeable professionals dedicated to offering meaningful services.

For the past 10 years, Impact Quincy has joined successfully with the community to develop and implement unique substance abuse prevention and education initiatives. Services are structured around six basic groups: the Family Life Alliance, the Early Childhood Alliance, the Youth Alliance, the People of Color Alliance, the Asian American Alliance, and the Gay/Straight Alliance. Each creates a unique approach for engaging the target population, and in this way, Impact Quincy is capable of offering truly accessible and meaningful substance abuse services. The chairman of each Alliance and a representative of the Mayor's Office comprise Impact Quincy's Leadership Team.

Volunteers from Impact Quincy's Youth Alliance have been instrumental in creating a new media campaign that focuses on reducing alcohol use among 12 to 17 year-olds. Local students, parents, teachers, police and other officials will be appearing in newspapers, on billboards and bus posters, and in other media outlets. They will be reinforcing the message that the vast majority of Quincy's adults and teenagers are responsible members of the community and do not abuse alcohol or other drugs.

Quincy is a courageous community that has demonstrated a remarkable ability to deal with difficult issues. Bay State Community Services and Impact Quincy applaud the people of Quincy for stressing the importance of making healthy, educated and responsible choices regarding the use of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs.

The LaRaia Book

There are a few things former Mayor Joseph LaRaia would like you to know about his controversial political autobiography A City Under The Influence.

Including: he'd like to add a chapter.

The book caused a flap when it appeared in 1979. And, 21 years later, it still well remembered. Fondly if you were a LaRaia supporter. Not quite so, if you weren't.

Our recent column recalling the book, LaRaia's version of his turbulent two years as mayor in 1976-77, caught his attention and we got a response by letter which said in part:

"Since I was never interviewed by the local press since its publication, your reviews do not say anything beyond what was initially said back in 1978 (actually 1979) and those reviews were largely critical."

So, we decided to give Joe a call to see what we might have missed back then.

LaRaia, of course, jolted the local political scene when he upset incumbent Walter Hannon in the famous recount election of 1975 by a scant 483 votes. And lost the mayor's office to Arthur Tobin two years later by slightly more than 5,000 votes.

LaRaia, back then and in his book, claimed his enemies tries to steal the election. A court inquest, however, found that it wasn't larceny but errors in the original tabulation election night.

During his two years as mayor, he says his administration was obstructed by his enemies.

"I was there (mayor's office) for only two years," he now says. "It seemed like 10. It was a very active two years. Combative. Challenging. It was never boring. There was so much happening you would think it would take 10 years for it all to happen but it all happened in two."

His book, which followed, he says, "Certainly was a great way of balancing the scales. The odds (of becoming mayor) were definitely against me. I wasn't supposed to be there (mayor's office). I almost wasn't."

There was suspicion, back then, that LaRaia didn't really write the book himself.

"I wrote it," he says. "There was no ghost writer. I took a basic writing course in college (Boston College) and I was confident I could write it."

He acknowledges he did get some professional help in the editing through the Cambridge Word Guild.

LaRaia used thinly disguised characters instead of real names, other than his own, throughout the book. Some thought the names ridiculed easily identified people in and around City Hall. Others found them amusing.

Who thought up the names?

"I did," says LaRaia. "I coined them. They were intended to be humorous—not a protection against lawsuits as some thought. In fact I checked with a lawyer and he said the names were not protection because of the close association to real people."

"Besides, I felt it would get too personal if I used the real names."

LaRaia says the late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre portrayed as Jeremiah Tubbs, the head of a political machine in the book, found it rather amusing.

"He always indicated to me he thought it was funny. If he had any negative feelings he never let it be known to me."

LaRaia recalls talking with the editor helping him one day and the latter saying: "This fellow, Tubbs, the way you write about him you show you have a lot of respect for him."

LaRaia says he knows of at least two people who still have hard feelings over the book. One of them an elected official.

The book was dismissed by some as political hum when it came out.

But LaRaia says it had respectability.

"Northeastern University included the book in its undergraduate government program for four consecutive years," he says.

"Each semester I appeared before the government class and reviewed the book with the students. This experience places the book in an objective setting completely removed from the local scene."

The 185-page book which sold for $8.95 was written over a nine-month period in 1978 and published in May, 1979.

Five thousand copies were distributed over a year and a half, LaRaia says.

"All of them sold except for a few hundred distributed to colleges and universities throughout the country."

LaRaia says he had the book printed himself.

"I really didn't make any money on it. That wasn't my intention. Considering the printing costs and the time I put into it, I broke about even."

LaRaia says he autographed two copies just this year that were bought through the Internet.

The book is actually out of print.

Any thoughts of printing more?

"No plans to do so. But if I did, I would add something to it. Another chapter about another election."

Pressed on what election that was, he replied: "The 1987."

That was the year he challenged incumbent Mayor Frank McCauley and came close to another upset, losing to McCauley by a slim margin of 460 votes.

"I have some thoughts about that one," he says. But doesn't say what they are.

LaRaia still has a few of the books which he is holding onto.

But five copies are available at the Thomas Crane Public Library and one each at the Adams Shore, Wollaston and North Quincy branches.

But it apparently never made it to the Quincy Historical Society where McCauley had a recent signing reception for his new book Quincy, Massachusetts: A Political History 1889-2000. (LaRaia had his signing at Laurie's in Braintree.)

"We don't have it here," Executive Director Edward Fitzgerald said when asked about it. "There is no indication it was ever here. But if there's a copy available I would like to obtain it."

"It should be here because it was an event in Quincy's history, regardless of how anyone feels about the book itself."

LaRaia says he harbors no hostility or ill feelings toward his old political rivals.

"We have a good relationship today," he says. "We laugh about a lot of things that happened."

But, oddly, the book never comes up, he says.

LaRaia, the city's 25th mayor, is now a city assessor appointed by Mayor James Sheets.

Will he hit the campaign trail again sometime in the future?

"There are people today telling me I should run for mayor again," he says.

But, he adds: "Been there. Did it. I won't be doing it again."

Friends and foes usually agreed on one thing: things were never dull whenever he took out nomination papers.

Quincy's Yesterdays Christmas Plans Underway

By PAUL HAROLD

The Merchants' Association's Christmas Decorations and Carnival Committee met this week at Ship Haven's restaurant to plan an expansion of last year's activities.

John McGinn, committee chairman, said that the number of lighted trees along Hancock St. would be increased by 50 percent, with new decorations expanded as far north as Foy's Market and as far south as School St. There was also discussion of beginning the celebrations with Santa Claus parachuting into the square.

Attending the meeting and pledging the full support of the city were D.P.W. Commissioner Ezekiel Sargent and sign department foreman Lawrence Donovan.

RECRUITMENT RALLY, PARADE AND DANCE

A parade, rally and dance were all part of a recruitment promotion by Lt. Col. Frederick Jones of the United Army Veterans. The parade from Elm St. to the Quincy armory headquarters of the 51st Brigade was to inform the public of the need for recruits for all Quincy National Guard companies.

A dance and entertainment followed a display of armaments and a demonstration by the communications company.

HOUSE-WARMING FOR THE DJERFS

More than 100 friends attended a house-warming party for Dr. and Mrs. Charles Djerf, at their new home at 280 Furnace Brook Parkway. The popular young couple were given numerous gifts, including a cash gift from Rev. William Hokkanen, pastor of the Finnish Congregational Church.

Dr. Djerf recently opened his practice in medicine and surgery in the Dimmock Building.

Make Every Effort Not To Sell Liquor To Minors

(A copy of the following letter was sent to The Quincy Sun for publication).

To: All Liquor Stores & Other Liquor Selling Establishments

From: Impact Quincy
15 Cottage Ave.
Quincy, MA 02169
472-6027, X 172

Dear Sir/Madam:

Let me start with a formal introduction of our organization and its goals and hopes for the future. Impact Quincy is one of many programs of Bay State Community Services, Inc., a non-profit organization. In 1999 the city of Quincy was selected by the Governor of Massachusetts and the Department of Public Health as one of 23 communities to receive new funding to combat substance abuse, especially among youth.

The fact of this grant was announced at the City Hall ceremony, where Mayor

James Sheets welcomed this wonderful news in his remarks. Police Chief Thomas Frane praised Impact Quincy for its close ties to the community, emphasizing how well the upcoming Impact Quincy media campaign will correspond with their own Community Policing efforts and programs like "Cops in Shops."

In addition to our immediate goal of reducing underage drinking Impact Quincy's media campaign hopes to increase community awareness on this issue, and to change social norms perceived to be contributing to the above problem.

As you all know, on March 2, 2000 a "sting operation was conducted by the Liquor Inspector of the city of Quincy Police Department, on 19 package stores throughout the city. An underage youth was sent into an establishment selling alcohol, and an attempt was made to purchase a six pack of beer with a ten dollar bill marked by police. The teenager did not have any form of ID on him. As a result of this "sting" operation three establishments violated MGL Ch. 138, Sec. 34 by selling an alcoholic beverage to a minor.

The City of Quincy Licensing Board, standing by its policy regarding the sale of liquor to minors, issued in 1992, suspended liquor licenses to three establishments that failed the "sting" operation. It was the first offense for all three stores, and all stores received a seven-day suspension.

These are the types of issues that Impact Quincy is not only highly attentive to but is also very concerned about. Our hopes are that in a near future there are not going to be any successful "sting" operations in the city of Quincy. All local Liquor Selling Establishments will uphold the law and rally to protect our teens. We closely followed the outcomes of the above "sting" operation, supporting and praising establishments that would not sell alcohol to the youth without the proper proof of age.

We are asking all of you to be vigilant in your daily sales and to make every effort possible not to sell alcoholic beverages to minors. As Chief Frane said, "The true fabric of a community is represented in their children." Please help us keep the youth of the city of Quincy safe.

Set an example for other cities that will become a measure of conducting business in the future everywhere!

QHS, NQHS Athletic Directors Say 'Thank You'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the Athletic Departments at both Quincy High School and North Quincy High School, we would like to publicly acknowledge both Furnace Brook Golf Course and Presidents Golf Course for their support of the student/athletes that play for the high school golf teams.

Both professional staffs, Mike McBroom and James Antonelli at Furnace Brook and Arthur Cicconi and Don Small at Presidents, have been very helpful with the young players, providing clinics, advice and hospitality. The Furnace Brook Golf Course Board of Directors and the Norfolk County Commissioners are to be applauded for helping to make a sport like golf accessible to all students. With their support, both golf teams have been able to host interscholastic matches with other high schools as well as some practice rounds.

With the growing popularity of golf today, we are most thankful for the tee times that have been made available to the Presidents of Quincy High School and the Red Raiders of North Quincy High School.

Allerton House Residents Producing Cable TV Program

A group of four residents of Allerton House at Hancock Park Assisted Living Residence in Quincy recognizing a need for informational programming on issues of importance to seniors have answered this need by hosting, producing, and taping a bi-monthly cable television program.

The program, entitled Quincy Seniors Moving Forward, airs on Quincy Access Cable Channel 8 Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m.

Residents Alice Dwinell, Margaret Connelly, Fred DiBona and Eileen Gallagher comprise the cable television program production team.

The program has featured several community leaders, all knowledgeable on senior issues, including Sister Jane McVeigh, counselor at Sisters of the Good Shepherd Maria Droste Counseling Center; Ed Flynn, executive director of South Shore Elder Services; John Mather, director of Quincy Housing Authority; Jane Mudge, director of the SHINE program, who answered questions and concerns regarding the health insurance needs of seniors, and many other well-informed community officials.

To prepare for such programs, the cable volunteers meet with the guests prior to the taping and also research current issues associated with each show topic.

Dwinell, who hosts the program with Peter Neville, Allerton House at Hancock Park marketing director, said she can offer help to seniors, especially in the area of housing options. "I've felt all along that I am in a position to give the perspective of a senior citizen in need of assisted living or some other form of senior housing. By my involvement in Quincy Seniors Moving Forward, I am able to identify areas of concern to senior citizens and call of the appropriate community officials to answer these concerns."

Allerton House at Hancock Park is a 42-unit assisted living residence owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group, a senior and rehabilitative healthcare service on the South Shore. Welch Healthcare is a founding member of AURUM, a post-acute network of senior care services.

Quincy Retired Teachers Assn.: A Humble Beginning To A Major Milestone

By CRAIG SALTERS

When Dr. Henry Patterson, Jr., president of the Quincy Retired Teachers Association, asked for silence at a luncheon held last week at the Neighborhood Club, he only had to ask once.

No doubt part of the reason was Dr. Patterson's deep, commanding voice, but perhaps another factor was that he was addressing over 200 retired Quincy teachers, who appreciate just how hard it is to get a large group's attention.

The QRTA, the oldest such teachers' organization in the state, held its 50th Anniversary Observance to celebrate a half century of community involvement and advocacy for retired teachers.

The QRTA began in 1950 when an initial group of 19 retired teachers gathered at the Ship's Haven restaurant to socialize and discuss common concerns. "They missed each other," explained Jean Ann Phinney, QRTA member and chairwoman of the luncheon, on the humble beginnings of what is now a 300 member organization with a vaunted scholarship program that now boasts $1,860,868 in principal and, since its creation in 1977, 327 scholarships awarded to North Quincy and Quincy High School seniors totaling over $450,000.

Phinney praised the foresight of earlier members, who built the scholarship fund through bake sales and penny drives, but noted the fund's assets soared after the bequest of $1,272,000 from the estate of Harry Beede, former principal of the Broad Meadows School, and his wife Louisa.

The luncheon featured several distinguished guests, including members of the Quincy City Council and the School Committee, Superintendent Eugene Creedon, and Paul Phillips, president of the Quincy Educational Association.

One particular highlight of the afternoon was Mayor James Sheets official proclamation that it was QRTA day in the city of Quincy. "I wish that there was some way to measure the positive change that you have caused in the lives of young people," Sheets said. "You are how we pass on our values and attitudes. You are the glue that keeps it all together."

Although the scholarship fund receives the lion share of attention when it comes to the QRTA, Phinney emphasized that the group has other important roles to play, such as the publication of a newsletter and retiree advocacy at the state and local level. "We just received dental benefits this year," said Phinney, who served 29 years as a teacher and principal at the Point Webster School, retiring in 1987.

But amidst recollections of the past 50 years and discussion of what lies in store for the next 50, there was good food and conversation among those who share a common bond: a long-standing dedication to education in Quincy.

"This city was very good to me," said Mary Catherine Iannoni, an English teacher and counselor at both Broad Meadows and Central Middle Schools. "I loved their kids."

can you pass this good health quiz?

- 1 Do you have a primary care doctor?
- 2 Do you have access to Boston's best hospitals—Brigham & Women's and Children's?
- 3 Does your doctor's practice offer a 24/7 nurse advice line or urgent care?

There are immediate steps you can take toward living a healthier life. Start by choosing a doctor you're comfortable with. One who has access to world-class hospitals like Brigham & Women's and Children's Hospital Boston. A doctor whose practice offers both urgent care and a 24/7 nurse advice line.

You can have all of this at Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. It's not an HMO—it's a group of doctors and other caregivers focused on your good health. And Harvard Vanguard accepts many types of insurance. To find a doctor that's right for you, visit www.harvardvanguard.org or call 1-888-876-HVMA today.

Firefighters Union Calls For Construction Moratorium Until Ladder Issue Resolved

"We need another ladder truck," said William Ariente, president of Local 792. "We only have one ladder truck now (stationed in Wollaston) that will reach most of the high rise buildings in the city. Unless we have the proper tools, we cannot do our jobs.

We need a second ladder truck. Where it is to be assigned is up to the chief and the mayor. It is not our decision."

Ariente's call for a "second ladder truck" refers to the union release which claims current equipment is either in disrepair or insufficient to the task of the high rises sprouting up in the city, especially in the neighborhood of West Quincy.

Chief Thomas Gorman disagreed with that assessment. "We have two ladder trucks of 110 feet and one of 75 feet, and reserve trucks of 85 and 90 feet," Gorman said.

Gorman said that he did in fact want a new ladder truck, as did the mayor, but that the current equipment was enough to safely protect the city, adding that the newer buildings met much stricter fire codes than in years past and contained built-in sprinkler systems.

Although Gorman agreed that the city could use a new ladder truck, he took issue with the method the union was going about obtaining one. "Nothing is accomplished by setting a building moratorium," Gorman said. "If they (union members) have a concern, they should sit down with the mayor and hammer it out."

Mayor James Sheets said he respected Chief Gorman's assessment as chief fire officer in the city and would "follow his lead" on the issue, adding that he was still in favor of a fourth ladder truck for the city, the appropriation for which is in committee at the City Council.

Henry Bradley Speaker At Montclair/Wollaston Meeting

Henry Bradley, director of Veterans Services for Quincy and national vice commander of the American Legion, will be the guest speaker Thursday, Nov. 2, at the meeting of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the community room at Work, Inc., 3 Arlington St. at the corner of West Squantum Street.

Bradley will speak on the Community Based Outpatient Clinic, recently opened at the Quincy Medical Center, which was established by the federal government because local veterans found it difficult to get into Veterans Administration facilities.

Bradley, a Quincy police officer for 20 years, has been past commander of the Morrisette American Legion Post as well as past commander of the Norfolk County and Massachusetts Legion organizations.

He is a veteran of the U. S. Air Force and has completed 36 years of service with Active, National Guard and Reserve programs.

POLLS OPEN AT 7 A.M.

POLLS CLOSE AT 8 P.M.

Attest: JOSEPH P. SHEA
City Clerk

HELPING TO GET out the vote are Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, Joseph Lydon, chairman of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee; and William Keener of the Squantum Community Center who recently registered 16 new voters in that ward.

The count in that election see-sawed all night into the following morning before Kennedy was declared the winner.

Shea thinks next Tuesday could be similar as polls continue to show a tight election as the campaigns go down to the wire.

Shea feels the voter turnout here Tuesday would be higher than his 72-to-75 percent prediction if there were more local contests.

There are only three with Quincy residents involved.

Democratic incumbent William Delahunt, Quincy's first Congressman since John Quincy Adams, is seeking his third term challenged again by Eric V. Bleicken, Yarmouth Republican. Two years ago Delahunt defeated Bleicken with 70 to 30 percent of the 10th Congressional District vote.

City Council President Paul Harold, Democrat, seeks the Norfolk County Register of Deeds office Barry Hannon of Braintree is leaving after 30 years. Harold is opposed by Republican Bruce Olsen of Stoughton, a former county commissioner.

Daniel M. Dewey of Squantum, chairman of the Republican City Committee, and Walter F. Timilty, Jr., Milton Democrat, are contenders for Norfolk County Clerk of Courts. Nicholas Barbadoro, of Braintree, a former Quincy resident, is stepping down from that post after 19 years. Timilty is his assistant clerk.

Running for re-election unopposed are five Quincy Democrats:

State Senator Michael Morrissey, Reps. Bruce Ayers, A. Stephen Tobin and Ronald Mariano, and County Commissioner John Gillis.

William O'Donnell, Norwood Democrat, is also unopposed for re-election as county commissioner as is Governor's Councillor Christopher A. Iannella, Jr., Boston Democrat.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy has drawn five opponents in his re-election bid; none considered a threat.

Carla A. Howell, Wayland Libertarian; Jack E. Robinson, III, Boston Republican; Dale E. Friedgen, unenrolled of Worcester; Philip Hyde, III, of Somerville, Timesizing Not Downsizing; and Philip F. Lawler of Lancaster, Constitution Party.

The other Presidential tickets in addition to Gore-Lieberman and Bush-Cheney are:

Browne-Oliver, Libertarian; Buchanan-Higgins, Sr., Reform Party; Hagelin-Tompkins, unenrolled and Nader-LaDuke, Massachusetts Green Party.

The ballot is two-sided and is the largest ever in size, says Shea.

"Voters and poll workers should handle it with care," Shea says.

He says he is not expecting any problems but will have a computer technician on duty just in case.

He urges voters to study the eight questions before going into the polling booths.

"We are worried there could be long lines if they wait to study the questions at the time they vote."

He is hopeful to have Quincy's final tabulation by 10 p.m. instead of the usual 9 p.m. next Tuesday.

The city's 30 voting precincts will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Nearly 10,000 Registered Good Turnout Seen For Kids Voting

Nearly 10,000 Quincy public and parochial school students are registered to cast ballots in the Kids Voting program in next Tuesday's Presidential election.

And Arthur Keough, Quincy coordinator, thinks more than half of them will.

"I am hopeful this will be our most successful year yet," he says. "I am looking forward to over a 50 percent turnout from the kids."

Quincy, which pioneered the Kids Voting program in Massachusetts, is participating in its fifth election under it.

Students in grades kindergarten through 12 will cast their ballots Tuesday, following the same procedures their parents will.

Participating with the public schools this year are the city's four parochial schools: St. Ann's, St. Joseph's, St. Mary's and Sacred Heart.

Youngsters in kindergarten through grade 8 will vote with their parents at the city's regular voting polls from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.

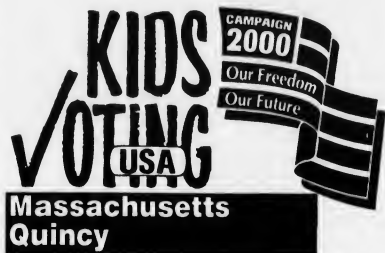

High school students will vote during school hours from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at their respective schools.

Keough said an estimated 200 volunteers will be on hand to help the young people at the voting polls.

He said the volunteers are mainly from business partnerships with the schools, parents and high students.

"I want to especially thank the business partnerships for all the help they have given us in the Kids Voting program," he said.

Quincy began the Kids Voting program with the 1995 city election. Youngsters since then have voted in the 1996 Presidential election, the 1997 city election and the 1998 state election.

In the 1998 election, 3,698 or 36.7 percent of the student registered voters cast ballots.

The kids will have their own ballots which will be counted separately from those of the adults.

Keough said the questions on the kids' ballots have been simplified. Copies of the questions were sent to the middle and high schools along with copies of the "Information for Voters" booklet distributed by Secretary of State William Galvin to enable those students to study the questions ahead of time.

Twelve other communities in Massachusetts have joined with Quincy in the Kids Voting program: Boston, Brewster, Chatham, Eastham, Orleans, Plymouth, Randolph, Richmond, Springfield, Stoughton, Truro and Wellfleet.

Kids Voting is a non-profit, grassroots education program that gives young people actual experience in the election process by casting ballots alongside their parents in a real election.

City's Registered Voters Now 53,439

Quincy's official voter registration is now at 53,439.

City Clerk Joseph Shea reports 1,887 new voters were registered since the September state primary election and are eligible to cast ballots in the Nov. 7 election.

The city is still a Democratic stronghold but the unenrolled are gaining ground.

Democrats now number 25,996 a gain of 647 since the September primary.

Unenrolled are now 19,529, a pick-up of 1,204 since the primary.

Republicans are now 7,494, up only 11.

The other parties total registration now stands at:

- Libertarian: 237
- Inter Third Party: 108
- Reform: 37
- Green: 13
- Conservative: 7
- Socialist: 5
- Massachusetts Green: 1
- Timesizing Not Downsizing: 1

JQ Adams Last President Elected By House Vote

By TOM HENSHAW

If the 2000 presidential election is as close as the pundits predict, the new chief executive could be elected, not by the people, but by a House of Representatives which is dominated by Republicans.

This is possible under the 12th amendment to the Constitution which specifies that, if neither candidate gets a majority in the Electoral College, the election will be thrown into the House, with each state getting one vote in the process.

It has only happened twice before with our own John Quincy Adams in 1824 the last to gain the corner office with a preponderance of friends in the lower house of Congress giving him victory over Andrew Jackson.

There were four candidates that year, all members of the Democrat-Republican Party --- Adams, Jackson, Henry Clay and William Crawford.

When the last electoral vote had been counted,

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

Jackson had 99 and Adams had 84. But Clay had 37 and Crawford 41 so Jackson's large plurality counted for nothing in the face of the Constitutional requirement that the winner have a majority of the vote.

The final decision was left up to the House and Adams came up the winner.

In the following election, however, when Jackson ran as a Democrat against Adams, now a National Republican, it was Jackson who gained the electoral nod, 178 to 83.

The first time the House was called on to decide a presidential election was in 1800 when Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr, both Democrat-Republicans, finished in a flatfooted tie, 73-73, in the Electoral College.

The House picked Jefferson, touching off a feud that led to the death of Alexander Hamilton in a pistol duel with Burr.

Those were the days when the man with the largest number of electoral votes became president and the second finisher became vice president. The 12th Amendment, ratified in 1804, changed all that to separate the two offices.

The only other time the House was involved in choosing a president was in 1876, when it first appeared that Samuel Tilden, the Democrat, had defeated Rutherford B. Hayes, the Republican.

But the electoral votes of four states, Oregon, Florida, Louisiana and South Carolina, three of them former Confederate states only recently readmitted to the Union, were in dispute, so Congress was asked to choose a commission to rule on the dispute.

Since there were eight Republicans and seven Democrats on the commission, Hayes was given all four states and he prevailed over Tilden by a single vote, 185 to 184.

In one of his first actions as president, Hayes withdrew the Union occupation forces from the South, as his part of the bargain, thus ending the Reconstruction period that followed the Civil War.

QHS Site Vote Delayed For More Testing

the site needed to be remediated regardless of the school project and the technology was there to do the job properly.

"We know what is there and that it can be remediated," said Councillor Timothy Cahill, a member of the mayor's School Building Needs Task Force which recommended the Quincy Ave. site in 1997 and reaffirmed its choice this summer as alternative sites were proposed.

Margaret Hanley, the Licensed Site Professional (LSP) from GEI Consultants, Inc., hired by Bethlehem Steel, the company responsible for the clean-up, presented her case that, if handled properly, there was no danger either in the relocation and capping of the asbestos or to the future safety of the site. Stating that over 450 environmental samples had already been taken at the site, Hanley argued that the cap would achieve a state of "no significant risk" and would in fact lessen the environmental dangers that currently exist.

WILLIAM PHELAN
'Not the legacy we want.'

MARGARET HANLEY
'No significant risk.'

Public Works Commissioner David Colton echoed Hanley's confidence and added that it was common practice to build both private and public buildings over capped landfills, some of which could contain toxins.

Colton also read a letter from Mayor James Sheets urging councillors to approve the bond measures and warning that delay, or a change in the plans, could jeopardize the city's 90 percent reimbursement status with the state that it currently enjoys.

Speaking on the issue Tuesday, Mayor Sheets said that "If this plan is changed in a manner that jeopardizes the 90 percent — and I believe that a change would — then we will be unable to proceed and have to consider other options." Sheets added that the new options, such as a renovation of Quincy High School as Quincy High School, were "not educationally sound but would allow us to operate within the budget we have."

Jo-Ann Bragg, vice-chairwoman of the School Committee, advocated strongly for construction plans to move forward so as not to affect school opening dates but said the School Committee's resolve for independent testing was a way to reassure residents who have genuine concerns about the site. It also provided, she said, a way to debunk rumors and misinformation that surrounded the project.

Argument against the project, however, was equally strong.

"I find it hard to believe that the single most contaminated four and one-half acres in this entire city is the spot where we should put a high school," said William Phelan, a School Committee member who has ardently opposed the site and spoke Monday night in his capacity as parent, resident, and taxpayer. "This is not the legacy we want and not the message we want to send."

Phelan cited numerous accounts and two environmental reports which, he said, contradicted Hanley's claims and warranted better explanations than those previously received.

Houghs Neck resident Julie Berberan asked the council to "please not put a school on that site" and Maura Peterson of Newton

St. put it simply: "You're building on known human carcinogens. You think you can control it until something goes wrong."

Before the hearing, roughly 30 residents staged a demonstration in front of city hall opposing the proposed school site.

Many Quincy High School teachers and administrators came out in support of the project and said the city couldn't afford not to build. "I am confident of the plan and the state's ability to oversee it," said Linda Day, a teacher at Quincy High School for more than three decades.

The remediation plan at the new QHS site calls for roughly 12,000 cubic yards of contaminated soil to be placed atop other contaminated soil, reducing the area of contaminated soil from seven to four acres. The contaminated soil would then be marked and capped with a minimum of three feet of clean soil, in accordance with Department of Environmental Protection standards.

Homecoming For John O'Connor South Coastal Bank Opens Here Monday With Pledge To Community

In an age of buyouts and billion dollar bank mergers, South Coastal Bank opens its new office at 1259 Hancock St. in Quincy Center this Monday with a pledge of community and personal service.

"We want to bring a community focus back," said John O'Connor III, chairman, president, and CEO of South Coastal Bank, on the bank's decision to locate in Quincy Center at the former site of the US Trust branch. "We are delighted to be back in the city and we are delighted to serve the Quincy community and Quincy business community. We have deep roots here and we intend to build upon them."

To do that, O'Connor said, South Coastal will offer customers veteran bankers and support staff who will recognize clients by name, be available to discuss financial questions, and provide a "year after year" continuity that O'Connor called rare in today's banking industry. "That's what we offer that the megabanks don't," said O'Connor, whose resume boasts two years as Bank Boston's director of small business for Southeastern Massachusetts and five years as a regional president for Citizens Bank, where one duty was handling the bank's small business lending for the state.

O'Connor assumes the duties of chairman of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in January.

The Quincy banking office will be managed by Elaine duJardin, a long time Quincy resident with many years experience in retail banking, and be staffed by an assistant manager, three tellers, and a "swing person" who all have ties to the city. "This is home for me," said duJardin, who is a committee member for the Quincy Medical Association Education fundraiser, a member of the Quincy Business Council, and organizer of the Lion's Club annual road race.

O'Connor emphasized that, being a community bank, decisions on loans would be made at the local level, in contrast to larger banks where the loan authority is largely centralized. "Here, you'll speak with someone who has the authority to make a decision," O'Connor promised.

"Small businesses need personal service," continued O'Connor, who recalled that, less than a decade ago, there were smaller banks in the city who knew business owners on a first-name basis. "What was once a great banking community in Quincy has evaporated," O'Connor said. "But we see that the opportunity to bring that back is real and it is now."

O'Connor said he expects the new location -- which will feature an ATM machine and a Night Deposit Box -- will do brisk business thanks to the Quincy Center MBTA station and the large volume of pedestrian traffic. O'Connor also said the bank should benefit from the third tower being constructed for Presidents Place and an eight-story luxury apartment

SOUTH COASTAL BANK opens for business Monday at its new banking office at 1259 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Taking pride in the new location are John O'Connor, chairman, president, and CEO of South Coastal Bank; and Elaine duJardin, who will manage the Quincy office. Both O'Connor and duJardin have strong Quincy roots and promise a return to community banking. (Quincy Sun photo/Trish Bossart) building currently planned for the area adjacent to the Munroe Building.

To celebrate their new location, South Coastal Bank will hold an opening gala Monday, Nov. 13 from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Center site. The public is invited.

In addition to the its 1259 Hancock St. location, South Coastal bank will also open a new banking office the same day at 405 Washington St. in Braintree, bringing the total number of offices to five.

South Coastal Bank remains an independent mutual bank, chartered by the state and owned by its de-positors. In September, the bank changed its name from Rockland Savings Bank to South Coastal Bank to better reflect its South Shore roots and its full-service banking philosophy.

Founded in 1868, South Coastal Bank has branches in Braintree, Carver, Quincy, Rockland, and Scituate.

VA Mortgage Program Offers Veterans Special Benefits

By CAROL BULMAN,
President
Conway Financial Services
We've been receiving many requests lately for information about the VA mortgage, and I thought it might be timely to review some of the requirements and the advantages of this loan program. The VA Guaranteed

Mortgage Program serves our United States Veterans and armed forces, as well as spouses of veterans who died of a service-connected disability. It offers mortgages of up to with zero downpayment to purchase a home.

The United States government guarantees each VA loan 100 percent, which means it will step in to bail out the lender if the veteran defaults on the mortgage. The guarantee comes from a fund, similar to an insurance fund, which is partially funded by the government and partially contributed to by the veteran. The veteran's contribution is called a "funding fee," paid at closing or financed with the mortgage. (The veteran who is 100 percent disabled due to an injury received during a U.S. conflict is exempt from this fee.)

Contrary to popular belief, the money for a VA mortgage does not come directly from the VA or U.S. government. The government is actually not the lender, but the guarantor. The mortgage money comes from large investors, such as banks, mortgage companies and insurance companies who are willing to make these high-risk, 100 percent loans because of the government's insurance.

The VA loan remains a very popular program among qualified veterans. The advantages include both 100 percent financing and flexible qualifying standards. Rates are comparable to conventional interest rates and the attorney fees are capped at a ceiling required by the VA. The VA loan is one of the last remaining programs that allows a new buyer to "assume" the loan and the responsibility of the mortgage payments. It's important to note with regard to the assumable option that the original VA buyer, now the seller, should have a "release of liability" executed at the passing to assure that their credit is protected in the event that the new buyer defaults.

The VA program has undergone two significant changes in the last decade, including the ability of a veteran to use his or her eligibility more than once, as long as the original loan is paid in full. It is also okay for the buyer to pay his or her own points. At one time the veteran could pay just one point, which added to the complication of doing business with the VA loan.

Remember to have your Certificate of Eligibility with you when you apply for your VA loan. If you do not have your certificate, your lender will give you a form to send into the VA to get a replacement.

If you are a veteran and you would like to determine whether the VA loan is right for you, please call us at Conway Financial Services and we will provide you with the information you need to make that decision.

For more information and for a copy of Carol's book, "Mortgage Sense," call CFS at (781) 681-9400 or (888) 831-1181.

South Shore, Plymouth Realtors Merging

The South Shore Association of Realtors®, Inc., and the Plymouth County Board of Realtors®, Inc., have voted to merge effective Jan. 1, 2001.

The announcement by Presidents Donna T. Wood (PCBR) and Joyce Baker (SSAR) of Quincy indicated the merger will likely place the Realtor organization as the second largest in Massachusetts, with membership of 1,500 and jurisdiction from Quincy to Cape Cod Canal.

"Our boards, members, affiliates, employees, customers, clients and the public we serve will benefit from the merger of these two fine organizations," Wood said.

Baker noted, "The organizations have always had common goals and will better serve its members by providing additional services, while applying a concentrated networking opportunities to affiliates."

The merged board will concentrate efforts on member services, education, technology and the protection of private property rights.

Following the meeting, Wood and Baker planned to establish a transition team to complete implementation of the merger. Headquarters for the Realtor organization will be in Pembroke, while maintaining a presence in Braintree.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

"I hear what I want to hear". How would you know? This statement is commonly used by people who have not yet come to terms with their hearing loss! It is painful to hear it, because I know that they are years away from trying to correct their loss. Most people are unaware how an uncorrected hearing loss can affect their lives. The results of a recent survey of over 4000 hearing impaired people and their significant others have been published. Some of the highlights are as follows:

- People with untreated hearing loss register significantly higher levels of depression, anger and frustration, anxiety, and other negative emotions than do people with comparable hearing loss who use hearing aids.

- Nearly half of the hearing aid wearers surveyed reported improvement in their overall quality of life attributable to their use of hearing aids. More than 60% of the family members or close friends reported that hearing aids had improved the lives of users.

You cannot afford to ignore a hearing loss. Live your life to its fullest and be healthy! Now you go and spread the news! Steve

Treating Traumatic Brain Injuries

Every 15 seconds a person in the United States sustains a Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI).

A TBI is caused by an external physical force that may produce a diminished or altered state of consciousness, which results in an impairment of cognitive abilities and/or physical functioning. It can also result in the disturbance of behavioral or emotional functioning. Brain injury can affect a person cognitively, physically and emotionally.

An estimated 5.3 million Americans — a little more than 2 percent of the U.S. population — currently live with disabilities resulting from brain injury. According to the Brain Injury Association, Inc.:

- It is estimated that one million people are treated for TBI and released from hospital emergency rooms every year.

- Each year, 80,000 Americans experience the onset of long-term disability following TBI.

- More than 50,000 people die every year as a result of TBI.

- Vehicle crashes are the leading cause of brain injury. They account for 50 percent of all TBI's.

- Falls are the second leading cause, and the leading cause of brain injury in the elderly.

- The risk of TBI is highest among adolescents, young adults and those older than 75.

- The cost of traumatic brain injury in the United States is estimated to be $48.3 billion annually. Hospitalization accounts for $31.7 billion, and fatal brain injuries cost the nation $16.6 billion each year.

With the risk of TBI highest among adolescents and young adults, concussions in sports are an extremely serious issue. Concussions are common in many different sports, including soccer, football, hockey, basketball and gymnastics.

Studies have shown as many as 20 percent of high school football players have concussions each season, and according to the NCAA, one in five college football players suffers a concussion each season — more than 250,000 concussions annually. The occurrences of these concussions are affecting our children and something needs to be done.

There are many early signs of concussions that should be looked for in a sporting arena. These symptoms include confusion, dizziness, vomiting, headache and nausea. Later signs of concussions are persistent headaches, poor attention, irritability, ringing in the ears, restlessness, depressed mood, lightheadedness, memory problems, blurred vision, fatigue and anxiety. Caregivers of children with concussions should:

- Stay with a child for 24 hours after an injury.

- Wake the child every few hours during the night or while resting to check communication.

- Only give medication after consulting a doctor. Avoid aspirin; it can cause internal bleeding.

Call the doctor or go to an emergency facility immediately if any of the following occur:

- Short-term memory problems.

- Not waking up.
- Convulsion or seizure.
- Repeated vomiting.
- Severe head or neck ache.

- Obvious personality changes.

- Stumbling and lack of coordination.

- Weakness in arms or legs.

- Ringing in ears.
- Blurred vision.
- Bothered by loud noises or bright lights.

Tricky Presidents Treated To First Win

Quincy Rallies For 19-18 Thriller Over Plymouth South

By CHRIS POISSON

There was no need for the Quincy High School football team to celebrate Halloween Tuesday — it did so last Friday night.

The Presidents tricked almost everyone in Plymouth South as they rallied from an 18-point deficit to treat themselves to a 19-18 thriller for their first win of the year. Junior quarterback Mike Lorenzano, who was named Player of the Game by a local radio station, completed 8-of-16 passes for 130 yards and a touchdown and he also rushed for two to lead Quincy in the come-from-behind victory.

Although most Halloween costumes are trashed after one day, Quincy plans on wearing its winning wardrobe for the remaining three games of the season.

"It's a great testament to the kids and not giving up," said head coach Bob Noble. "Down 18-0, we very easily could've packed it in. We didn't. All the credit goes to the kids. This should boost our confidence for the rest of the season. Hopefully, we can continue to play like this over the next three games."

Quincy (1-6, 1-3) returns home tomorrow (Friday) night at 7 p.m. to take on Silver Lake (3-4, 3-2), which is fresh off a 41-13 shellacking of North Quincy. Like Plymouth South, the Lakers like to run the ball and they do so effectively.

Silver Lake will pound the ball inside with senior back Brandon McPhail and then use its dangerous option attack led by sophomore quarterback Denis Hill and senior back Ryan Gadles.

"Week after week, every team seems to have a stud running back," Noble said. "Last week it was [Eric] Shanley and this week it's McPhail and Gadles. And they're young quarterback is doing a very good job."

Although Hill and Gadles run the option almost to perfection, the 6-foot-1, 228-pound McPhail is the team's main weapon. Against North Quincy, he rushed for 96 yards and picked up his 12th and 13th touchdowns of the season.

"He's a heck of a player," Noble said. "Obviously if you don't stop him, you don't stop them. You can make comparisons between Plymouth South and Silver Lake; they're going to try to pound you with the football."

"Is this a team we can beat? Sure we can," he added. "Hopefully, we start out a lot faster than we did against Plymouth South."

It looked like Plymouth South was going to steamroll the Presidents as it built an 18-0 advantage with 5:50 left in the first half thanks to touchdown runs of 38, 20 and 30 yards from Shanley.

After Shanley's third TD, Quincy put together a drive highlighted by Lorenzano's 43-yard pass to senior wideout Peter Turowski.

issued by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Police.

His grandfather, John Valencius of Quincy, a life member of the yacht club at 93 years old, was his program sponsor.

Lorenzano ended the drive with a 13-yard touchdown pass to senior wideout Gregg Walsh. Junior Tom Shruhan's extra point made it 18-7.

The Presidents made it 18-13 at halftime when Lorenzano found the end zone from 12 yards out on a QB draw. On the drive, Quincy caught a huge break. On fourth-and-20 at the Plymouth South 40, Turowski made an 18-yard catch, but the Panthers were called for roughing the passer which gave Quincy a first down at the 12.

"Mike Lorenzano had a great game on offense," Noble said. "His first touchdown got us right back in the game. Michael has really played well the past couple of weeks. He's maturing as a quarterback."

In the second half, Quincy punted on its first possession but the ball touched a Panther and senior Joe Cox recovered the fumble at the Plymouth South 35. On fourth-and-3, Lorenzano hit John Page for 17 yards down to the 12. Senior tailback Paul Desmond (12 carries for 65 yards) reeled off a 10-yard run and Lorenzano scored the game-winning touchdown on a 2-yard QB sneak.

"A couple of breaks went our way for a change," Noble said. "We capitalized on their mistakes and scored. That was a big thing we had to do."

Plymouth South was unable to figure out Quincy's defense in the second half, picking up only one first down. Shanley, who finished with 199 yards rushing, had only 44 over the final two quarters.

"Shanley ran wild on us in the first 15 to 16 minutes of the game," Noble said. "Once again, Bill Reardon made some good adjustments defensively that took away from what they were doing."

"They like to run the football. They don't really want to pass. Once we shut down their running game, they were limited with what they could do."

Quincy came up with an interception late in the game to end Plymouth South's hope of a comeback. Senior defensive lineman Brad DiMartino deflected Brian Kalaher's pass on fourth down at the Plymouth South 20 and senior tri-captain John Alves made the interception to seal the game.

Brian Buckley Chairman Of Mass. Senior Games

Brian Buckley, director of Athletics at North Quincy High School, was recently named the new chairman of the board of the Massachusetts Senior Games.

He replaces Guy A. Pelegrielli, Jr. of Pittsfield, retired Registrar of Probate in Berkshire County. Buckley, 49, heads a 25-person board that oversees both the Massachusetts Summer and Winter Games, which attracted over 2,000 senior athletes, ages 50-97, this year.

The Massachusetts Senior Games will celebrate its 10th anniversary during the Summer Games at Springfield College from June 14-17, 2001.

"I'm delighted with the opportunity to serve an organization that does such a wonderful job in making athletic competition available for our senior population," Buckley said.

He said his chief goal as chairman will be to "try and increase the number of participants and to reach out to seniors in areas of the state where they still aren't that familiar with the Senior Games."

BRIAN BUCKLEY

"The games are a wonderful outlet to help seniors stay healthy, which I believe increases their chances of living longer lives," he added.

Buckley says he will be an active chairman and anticipates the day that he becomes eligible to compete in the games. He turns 50 the day before Christmas, which means he will be eligible to compete as an athlete during the 2001 Massachusetts Senior Games. With a 9 handicap, he is looking forward to competing in golf.

A graduate of Boston State College, Buckley first served as Youth Coordinator for the town of Holbrook and held a similar position while serving as Council on Aging Director in Quincy.

He moved into his new position as North Quincy athletic director after 18 years as COA Director. He worked closely with Barry Welch, Quincy's Recreation Director, in organizing the Quincy Senior Olympics, which was used as a guideline in the organization of the Massachusetts Senior Games in 1992.

"Organizers of the Massachusetts Senior Games came to us asking for information about the Quincy Senior Olympics so that they could incorporate some of the things we did in order to get their games off the ground," Buckley said.

Buckley also serves on the Executive Board of the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association, the board of directors of the American Cancer Society and is co-director of Coaches vs. Cancer.

He had coached basketball at Curry College, Quincy Junior College, Boston College High School and Archbishop Williams High School.

Buckley and his wife, Nancy, reside in Quincy. They recently celebrated their 23rd anniversary.

North Quincy Haunted By Mistakes Raiders At Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday

By CHRIS POISSON

Coming soon, the North Quincy High School football team starring in "Mistakes Hurt Us." A sneak preview was shown last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Let's take a look at a scene:

Trailing 14-7, North Quincy received the ball first in the second half and it appeared it made the necessary adjustments when it struck for 21 yards on the first play to move into its opponents' territory. But three plays later it fumbled and the other team, of course, capitalized as it marched down the field for a score.

Actually, a lot of the other scenes were similar to this in North Quincy's 41-13 loss to Silver Lake. For the second straight week, the Red Raiders have defended the run this season, Chrisom believes it's Florence and Smith they have to try to slow down.

"Mistakes hurt us. It's as simple as that," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "We have to play four quarters of football. We can't expect to play a half. We thought we made some adjustments in the second half, but the mistakes hurt us. They come back and haunt us."

North Quincy (1-6, 1-4) will have to be mistake-free Saturday afternoon if it has any thoughts of upsetting Bridgewater-Raynham on the road. The Trojans, coming off a 33-16 win at Falmouth, are tied with Taunton for first place in the Old Colony League at 4-0.

"They're coming off a big win two weeks ago against Barnstable and last week against Falmouth," Chrisom said. "They're trying to make a run for the league title. It's going to be a tough game."

Bridgewater-Raynham boasts the OCL's best defense, having given up only 91 points in eight games this season. Earlier in the year it shut out Quincy, holding them to under 100 yards in total offense and five first downs.

Offensively, the Trojans have a couple of solid backs in juniors Rich Florence and Luther Smith. Their quarterback, junior Ryan Post, has an explosive target to throw to in junior wideout Kach Nwosu. With the way the Red Raiders have defended the run this season, Chrisom believes it's Florence and Smith they have to try to slow down.

"They run a multiple-set offense and do so many things out of it," Chrisom said. "We have to take away their running game and force them to throw the ball."

Against Silver Lake, North Quincy got off to a strong start. After forcing the Lakers to go three-and-out to open the game, the Red Raiders engineered a seven-play, 62-yard scoring drive capped by junior tailback Pat Bregoli's 1-yard run off right tackle for a 7-0 lead. On the drive, senior quarterback Max Repoff converted a third-and-23 play with a 56-yard pass to senior quad-captain Joe Holleran.

"We have to sustain that over four quarters," said Chrisom, as his offense vanished after the first drive thanks to costly penalties and turnovers.

The Lakers answered on their ensuing possession when sophomore quarterback Denis Hill darted in from 9 yards out on an option play with 1:04 left in the first. The extra point failed. Silver Lake regained the ball with an interception and 10 plays later senior back Brandon McPhail rumbled 14 yards for a touchdown with 5:58 left in the half. Hill rushed for the two-point conversion to take a 14-7 lead.

After taking the 21-7 lead early in the third, Silver Lake went 76 yards on five plays that ended with senior Ryan Gables' 7-yard TD run with 36 ticks left for a 28-7 lead. Three plays later, the Lakers picked off another North Quincy pass that led to a 4-yard touchdown run by sophomore Kevin Whealan.

North Quincy managed to get back on the scoreboard when sophomore fullback Chris Dolbear broke free for a 42-yard TD run with 16 seconds left in the game. Silver Lake, however, embarrassed the Red Raiders when Whealan returned the ensuing kickoff 85 yards for a touchdown to account for the 41-13 score.

Mite A's Bounce Hyde Park

The Quincy Mite A travel hockey team bounced back from a 4-1 deficit to beat a very aggressive Hyde Park team, 5-4, and remain undefeated on the season.

Brian Bowes scored the game-winner on an assist from Matt Bridgeman with just 21 seconds left in the game. Seamus McKenna lit up the scoreboard in the third as she netted three goals to tie the game at 4.

Victoria Virtue, Kevin Magoon and Bridgeman

Lynda Wilson Anchors Roger Williams To Win

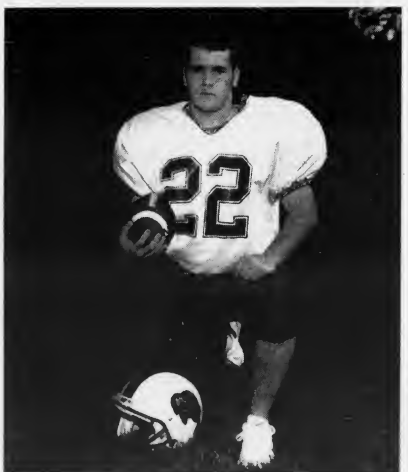

Lynda Wilson of Quincy helped the Roger Williams University women's cross country team capture top honors at the recent Regis College Invitational in Weston.

Wilson, a freshman, placed third (20:36) in the 12-team event as the Hawks tallied 28 points for their second straight first-place finish.

played outstanding defensive hockey to backbone Quincy's comeback. Bowes scored Quincy's first goal on a pass from Mathew Rodriguez. Goalie Matt Brundige made 15 saves.

In previous action, Quincy battled to a 2-2 stalemate with Tri-County. McKenna scored the first goal unassisted and Derek Murphy scored the second with an assist from Zac Helfrich. Brundige stopped 16 shots between the pipes.

FRESHMAN MATT REGGIANNI of Quincy is a member of the men's football team at Nichols College. Reggianni is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School and the son of Patricia and Joseph Reggianni.

NORTH QUINCY OCL all-stars, from the left, Kellee Conley, Allie Lacey, Jen Conley and Casey Ridge will lead the Red Raiders into the first round of the Division I South tournament. Kellee Conley scored the OCL's only goal in Sunday's 2-1 loss to the ACL All-Stars. Jen Conley made her third straight appearance in the all-star game.

North Quincy Hosts Tourney Game Friday Girls' Soccer

The North Quincy High School girls' soccer team topped city rival Quincy, 4-0, last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium to finish the season with a stellar 10-4-4 record and its fourth straight tournament appearance.

North Quincy will most likely be seeded eighth and host either Durfee or Whitman-Hanson tomorrow (Friday) at 2:30 p.m. The tournament pairings will be announced today (Thursday).

Starting all eight seniors against Quincy, the Red Raiders play quad-captain Kellee Conley score her team-leading 10th goal of the season, beating Quincy goalie Kerry Eaton from close range. Conley, who has 23 career goals, was sent in on a beautiful pass by junior midfielder Lauren Sleeth.

Five minutes later, junior forward Allie Lacey headed in a perfectly crossed corner kick from sophomore Lauren Kalil. It was Kalil's team-leading seventh assist.

The Red Raiders, playing against a fierce wind in the first half, used their short passing game to perfection and controlled play. Seniors Casey Ridge and Julia Matos played well as did sophomores Rachel Enos and Erin McFarland.

Leading 2-0 at halftime, North Quincy started three pairs of sisters and two cousins to begin the second half. Jen and Christina Conley, Casey and Ashley Ridge, Laura and Julia Matos as well as cousins Kelly Rice and Colleen Lahar all played the first 10 minutes.

Christina Conley scored her sixth goal of the year 15 minutes into the half, slotting a pass from senior Jen Djerf into the net. Sleeth closed out the scoring when she took a Lahar pass and rocketed a 20-yard shot past Eaton.

Quincy had several quality chances to score in the second half, but goalie Kathryn MacRitchie came up big twice to keep the Presidents off the scoreboard and preserve her seventh shutout of the year.

North Quincy received a strong performance from senior Stacy Szesuil, who missed the previous three games with an ankle injury.

Earlier in the week, North Quincy split a pair of home games. It was beaten soundly by Plymouth South last Tuesday and then it pounded out a 7-2 win against Martha's Vineyard last Thursday.

In the Plymouth South game, the Red Raiders were flat early and fell behind 3-0 at the half. North Quincy played better in the second half, outshooting the Panthers but coming up short as both Kellee Conley and Lacey hit the post. Freshman Jenn Ryan turned in a strong effort as did Sleeth and sophomore sweeper Jessica Jacques.

In the win over Martha's Vineyard, North Quincy got great second-half performances from Djerf and sophomore Katy Mercurio. Djerf tallied two goals and two assists while Mercurio added two goals from difficult angles.

The Red Raiders scored first with three-time OCL all-star Jen Conley taking a back pass from her sister, Christina, and blasting a 25-yard shot into the top corner. Lacey followed with a redirection of a McFarland cross into an empty net. Lahar scored her third of the season.

Diana Berberan, Laura Matos, Kelly Coleman, Katie Timmins, Kate Markhard and Caitlin Herlihy also played well.

North Quincy Boys End Season With Win Over Milton

The North Quincy High School boys' soccer team wrapped up its disappointing season on a positive note Monday with a 3-2 victory over Milton.

North Quincy (7-11, 5-9) finished the season with three straight wins, but came up two games short of a state tournament berth. Last Saturday, it knocked off rival Quincy, 5-2, and last Tuesday it defeated Plymouth South, 2-1.

"We've had an amazing streak of bad luck this year with several serious injuries, questionable calls in critical situations and just plain bad bounces of the ball," said head coach Robert Dano. "It would have been easy for the kids to give up, but they love this game and they still love to win. I think this shows a lot of pride in themselves, and as far as I am concerned, that's the mark of a winner."

Junior striker David Rochon powered the Red Raiders in their final three wins as he blasted eight goals in that stretch to finish the season with 21, placing him either first or second in Old Colony League scoring (final stats not available).

In the Milton game, Rochon netted a pair of goals and junior Stephen Pizzi added the other. Against Quincy, Rochon scored four goals to pace the Red Raiders' attack.

Rochon scored his first goal with an assist from senior Ryan Graeber, who played forward instead of goal because of a shoulder injury he suffered earlier in the season. Senior midfielder Charlie Acton set up Rochon's second goal and North Quincy added its third when Pizzi knocked home junior Adam O'Hara's cross. Quincy scored once in the first half with Washington Morisset finishing a Peter Lucier cross. North Quincy goalie Pat Lahar turned in a strong effort after playing in goal for most of the season for Graeber.

In the second half, Rochon scored twice, one on a penalty kick and the other unassisted after weaving his way through several Quincy defenders. Quincy scored its second goal of the game when Matt MacNeil headed in Steve Ramponi's cross.

In the Plymouth South game, Rochon scored both of the goals in the final eight minutes of the game.

"David just simply won that game for us," Dano said. "Both goals were the result of David's foot skills and his ability to find the net."

The game was also highlighted by the outstanding debut of junior Eric Stanton in goal.

their ballots on Election Day.

The Ballot Box is the best instrument to attack the problems of our time -- whether it be in a presidential election or local election. The Ballot Box is the best way to legislate and clarify issues.

The right to vote is the most fundamental of all our rights because the behavior and performance of officeholders, at every level of government, is dictated by the knowledge that periodically they must come before the bar of public opinion in the polling booths. The caliber of men and women in public life is a direct reflection of the wisdom and judgment exercised by the voters.

Pre-arranging: peace of mind for every family

ONE GUARANTEE TWO OPTIONS

As early as 1940, we began helping families pre-arrange their funeral expenses. So, the concept is not new to us. But today, there are payment options that some funeral homes don't offer.

Irrevocable Trusts—Many financially secure persons appreciate making one payment or several payments over a short time period. For these persons, we can offer an interest-free plan and payments spread over twelve months. (Endorsed by Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a way to reduce assets and meet state and federal requirements for Medicaid or nursing home care.)

Flexible, Tax-Free Insurance Plans—Budgeting your payments over additional time offers an affordable way for other families to pre-arrange. We can help structure an individualized plan with reasonable premiums, payable within three, five or ten years.

With either pre-arrangement option, protection begins immediately. Since 1917, we've provided the highest degree of understanding and personal assistance to South Shore families. Call us at 617-773-2728 for a free pre-arrangement consultation. We'll help find a plan that suits your family's individual needs.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A once-harmonious relationship appears to be hitting some sour notes. Spend some time together to see why things have gone off-key. What you learn might surprise you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You feel a need to make some changes. Good — you can do it on a small scale (some new clothes, for example), or go big and redecorate your home and/or office.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Control your tendency toward early boredom. A situation in your life might be taking a long time to develop, but patience pays off. Stay with it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel you're on an emotional roller coaster this week. Don't fret; just ride it out and let things settle down. A Pisces shows understanding.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Do something different for once — compromise. A stubborn stand on an important issue proves counterproductive. You need to be open to new ideas.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A friend offers advice that you perceive as an act of betrayal. But before you turn against the messenger, pay attention to the message.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A year of riding an emotional pogo stick finally settles down. Use this calmer period to restore frayed relationships and pursue new opportunities.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your words can sting, so be careful how you respond to a friend's actions. A calm approach could produce some surprising facts.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful about whose secrets you're being asked to keep. They could impose an unfair burden on a straight arrow like you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While you prefer taking the tried-and-true course in life, be adventurous this week and accept a challenge that can open new vistas.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your strong sense of justice helps you deal with a job-related situation. Stay with your principles. A Sagittarius emerges as a supporter.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You need to build a stronger on-the-job support system to persuade doubting colleagues that your innovative proposals are workable.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You might not say much, but you're capable of extraordinary achievements. You are a loyal friend and a devoted family person.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Third Asian American Job Fair Saturday

The third Asian American Job Fair will be held at the State Street Corporation complex in North Quincy Saturday between 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

"The Fair welcomes everyone. It offers an updated program for those seeking employment," said Betty Yau, producer of the fair.

"At first, the fair primarily attracted semi-established Asian Americans seeking entry level jobs. Now the fair is geared to attract both semi-established and established Asian Americans with clerical, technical and professional skills."

This year, according to Yau, an MBA graduate of Umass Boston and CEO of Yau's Marketing Services, she hopes to offer recruiters Asian Americans with a strong work ethic, loyalty, and commitment to education.

Yau hopes to draw on the thousands of Quincy, Dorchester and Metropolitan Boston areas Asian American residents who are part of the 233,239 residents in Massachusetts, an increase of 60 percent in the past decade.

For more information, call 617-770-3310, or fax 472-2574.

TIME TO RETIRE?

Vehicle owners commonly rely on reduced tread depth to signal the need for new tires. While tread-wear indicators provide a foolproof way to know that tires need to be replaced, it is certainly a good idea to replace tires prior to obvious need. Vehicle owners should also look for any abnormal signs of wear, and address the cause, before it leads to new tires. What may not be so obvious to drivers is that hitting potholes at high speeds may harm the inner structure of the tire to the point that it may require replacement without any visible indication. And salt and ozone, which can leave sidewalls dry and cracked, can compromise the life expectancy of any tire.

It is important to be aware of your tire conditions. Safety begins where "the rubber meets the road." If you need service, LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern test equipment and ASE Certified technicians. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon-Fri 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm.

HINT: Regular tire rotation, every 6,000 to 8,000 miles promotes more uniform wear for all tires on a vehicle.

While the final outcome nationwide was still in doubt late Tuesday night, there were no questions in Democratic Quincy as the Al Gore-Joseph Lieberman ticket breezed by Republicans George W. Bush and Dick Cheney

The vote for the Democratic vice president and senator was 23,117 or 62.44 percent. The Texas governor and the former Secretary of Defense has 11,282 or 30.47 percent.

Massachusetts Green Party candidate Ralph Nader who was seen taking some votes away from Gore polled 2,064 votes or 5.57 percent.

Quincy Congressman William Delahunt cruised to his third term in the 10th Congressional district. His vote in Quincy was 29,470 or 83.53 percent to Yarmouth Republican Eric Bleicken's 5,773 or 16.36 percent.

Some 73.6 percent of Quincy's 53,439 registered voters went to the polls and some were still waiting in line at several precincts at the 8 p.m. closing to cast their ballots.

City Council President Paul Harold got a big jump-start in Quincy in his bid for Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

Harold racked up a 28,516 to 5,045 lead over Stoughton Republican Bruce Olsen or 84.88 to 15 percent.

Returns throughout Norfolk County were incomplete at press-time but Harold appeared well on his way to winning the post Barry Hannon is leaving after 30 years.

According to his supporters, Harold won Milton but at least a 3-to-1 ratio. In Randolph, Harold polled 8,280 votes to Olsen's 2,720.

Sees Quincy Ave. Site Safe For New QHS Sheets: Plan Changes Could Jeopardize New Schools

By CRAIG SALTERS
Mayor James Sheets reiterated his position that, once cleaned and capped, the city's parcel of land off Quincy Ave. is a perfectly safe place to build the new Quincy High School.

And any changes to the $60 million dollar project, the mayor warned, could jeopardize the city's 90 percent reimbursement status with the state and might result, he said, in an option no one wants to see: no new schools for Quincy.

"If this plan is changed in a manner that jeopardizes the 90 percent - and I believe that a change would -- then we will be unable to proceed and would have to consider other options," Sheets said, reaffirming statements made last week after a stormy public hearing on the matter by the Quincy City Council. "One option would be to go back to Quincy High School and renovate it as Quincy High School and go back to Central Middle School and renovate it as Central Middle School.

JAMES SHEETS

"No one wants that option, but four years ago I made a commitment to renovate the schools ... and we have to do something."

The current plan calls for a new Quincy High School to open in September of 2004, at which point the former QHS would be renovated into a new Central Middle School with renovations also made at Sterling Middle School.

The appropriations for the project sit in committee at the Quincy City Council as councillors, school committee members, officials, and residents await the results of further site testing, done by the engineering firm of Weston & Sampson Engineers, Inc., of Peabody, tests requested by the School Committee and which begin this week.

Proponents of the project say that the contaminated fill on what was once a Bethlehem Steel dump site can be remediated safely; opponents charge that there are more contaminants on the site than officials claim and that a disturbance to the site could release harmful dust containing asbestos and other contaminants into the air.

The mayor's comments follow a four hour meeting at City Hall Monday night in which residents, led by School Committee Member William Phelan, voiced their displeasure at the city's plan to build a new high school on the former dump site.

Phelan was polite but tenacious when, citing a conflict of interest with IRA (Immediate Response Action) authors Weston & Sampson, he again and again requested that an independent firm handle the new testing.

Phelan also called into question a city letter claiming that "the DEP, due to the high-profile public nature of the project, has provided an extensive critique of the work performed to date by the LSPs of both GEI (engineers hired by Bethlehem Steel) and Weston & Sampson" although the DEP's Jack Miano, in response to Phelan, said that the DEP's role was limited to the IRA and the suppression of dust during excavation and capping. "Who wrote this?" Phelan asked the roughly 70 residents who attended the meeting. "Was it you, Mr. Colton?"

DPW Commissioner David Colton responded that he did not write the document but had reviewed it and stood "by every word in it," adding that other DEP officials besides Miano had been consulted on the project.

Colton, who along with Weston & Sampson Project Manager Kerry Tull made most of the presentation on the IRA and the project in general, said there was no reason to hire a new engineering firm to test the site given Weston and Sampson's longstanding track record of excellence with the city.

"Weston & Sampson is not a construction firm; they do not do remediation work," Colton explained after the meeting. They're in the business of designing and monitoring construction contracts and there's no more profit for them either way (whether more contaminants are found or not).

The purpose of Monday's night meeting was to gather public input on the IRA plan to move and cap the asbestos-contaminated fill on the site. Those wishing to write their comments for the public record can do so by writing to: Kerry Tull, Weston & Sampson, 5 Centennial Drive, Peabody, MA 01968 or emailing him at tullk@wseinc.com.

The DEP's Jack Miano can be reached by calling (978) 661-7734.

Deadline for comments is Nov. 26.

READY FOR A CHANGE?

Regular oil changes are key to engine longevity. All engines are subject to a buildup of pollutants in the engine oil, including water, fuel, dirt, acids, worn metal particles and other combustion by-products. While oil's primary role is to lubricate engine parts, oil changes are necessary to rid the engine of pollutants and to replenish additives. Beyond that, owners who run their engines in extreme conditions (very hot or cold temperatures or for extended towing) may want to consider the use of synthetic oil. Unlike conventional petroleum oil, which is refined from crude, synthetic is developed chemically from compounds. Its benefits include superior thermal stability, resistance to thickening at low temperatures and resistance to breakdown under high heat conditions.

Regularly scheduled maintenance, such as oil changes, can greatly extend the life of your car. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be well informed about every system of your car. Traffic Study First Step For Solving Traffic, Pedestrian Hazards Plans For Redesigned And Safer Sea St.

By CRAIG SALTERS
After nearly a year of data collection and analysis followed by extensive community input, the city's Traffic and Parking Department is set to present a comprehensive Traffic Operational Assessment for Sea St. to Mayor James Sheets.

The assessment, prepared by Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon at the request of Ward 2 Councillor Gregory Hanley, will offer a blueprint for solving the traffic and pedestrian problems associated with Sea St., long known as one of the most dangerous roads in Quincy.

Planned improvements include:

- Reconfiguration of the intersection of Curlew Rd. and Sea St.
- The addition of a right-turn lane at the intersection of Sea St. and Quincy Shore Drive.
- Reconfiguration of Sea St. at Narragansett Rd. and Samoset Ave. and/or the relocation of pedestrian signals from Stop and Shop Pharmacy to the intersection of Sea St. and Murphy Memorial Drive (site of Quincy Youth Hockey Arena).
- The construction of a connecting road from Murphy Memorial Drive which would run behind the hockey rink and the Quincy DPW Yard.

• The use of raised medians, widened sidewalks, plantings, and other "traffic calming" devices along Sea St., a good percentage of which is 60 feet wide.

"We want to take a fresh look at Sea St. and try to calm traffic down and still handle capacity," said Gillon. "The road has a series of long, flat sections (where drivers pick up speed) along with serious horizontal and vertical curves and that's a dangerous combination."

So dangerous, in fact, that the assessment lists 72 reported accidents of varying degrees along the Sea St. corridor from Jan. 1, 1998 to Jan. 1, 1999; this in addition to the six pedestrian fatalities which occurred between 1994 and 1998.

According to the assessment, the road handles roughly 12,000 cars in each direction daily for an approximate total of 24,000. There is a pronounced "morning peak" between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. when about 1,700 vehicles make the

POSSIBLE NEW ROADWAY: A connecting road beginning at Murphy Memorial Drive and traveling behind the hockey rink, the Naval Reserve building, and the DPW Offices at 55 Sea St. is one idea suggested in the Traffic and Parking Department's Traffic Operational Assessment for Sea St. The roadway, which became a possibility thanks to a morning commute west-bound off the peninsula. The evening peak, which is more spread out since school has let out for the day, occurs in the opposite direction between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m., when almost 1,850 utilize Sea St.

On average, there is one vehicle every two seconds on Sea St., which is bad news, said Gillon, when you consider that it takes the average person 15 seconds to cross the street. Raised medians, which would separate the crossing into two distinct directions and provide a "refuge" for the pedestrian, provide one method of tackling the problem.

"The safety of Sea St. is what it's all about," said Hanley, a first-time City Councillor who requested the study during his first year in office so as to begin the implementation process during his second. "We spent nine months testing flow rates, speeds, cars per hour, and then we went to the neighborhoods to find out their concerns and apply them to the statistics. Jack (Gillon) used his engineering skill and his statistics to find out what can be done, but we listened to the residents as to what should be done."

(City of Quincy Traffic and Parking Department) separate DPW wetlands reconfiguration and restoration project, would ease congestion and increase traffic safety, especially for DPW employees who have been involved in several accidents over the years trying to move onto Sea St. from their site.

Hanley and Gillon took the rough data and held public meetings in Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, and Merrymount to get feedback on the proposal. The meetings, both Hanley and Gillon agreed, improved the proposal, from an increased awareness of the traffic needs at Sea St. and Curlew Rd. to new crosswalks at morning commute west-bound off the peninsula. The evening peak, which is more spread out since school has let out for the day, occurs in the opposite direction between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m., when almost 1,850 utilize Sea St.

On average, there is one vehicle every two seconds on Sea St., which is bad news, said Gillon, when you consider that it takes the average person 15 seconds to cross the street. Raised medians, which would separate the crossing into two distinct directions and provide a "refuge" for the pedestrian, provide one method of tackling the problem.

"The safety of Sea St. is what it's all about," said Hanley, a first-time City Councillor who requested the study during his first year in office so as to begin the implementation process during his second. "We spent nine months testing flow rates, speeds, cars per hour, and then we went to the neighborhoods to find out their concerns and apply them to the statistics. Jack (Gillon) used his engineering skill and his statistics to find out what can be done, but we listened to the residents as to what should be done." (City of Quincy Traffic and Parking Department)

Hanley and Gillon took the rough data and held public meetings in Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, and Merrymount to get feedback on the proposal. The meetings, both Hanley and Gillon agreed, improved the proposal, from an increased awareness of the traffic needs at Sea St. and Curlew Rd. to new crosswalks at

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Nov. 12, 1799, Andrew Ellicott Douglass, an early American astronomer born in Vermont, witnesses the Leonids meteor shower from a ship off the Florida Keys and records it in his journal. His journal entry is the first-known record of a meteor shower in North America.

• On Nov. 11, 1918, World War I ends as Germany signs an armistice agreement. The war's tolls are 9 million soldiers dead, 21 million wounded and 7 million taken prisoner or missing in action.

• On Nov. 7, 1940, the Tacoma Bridge in Washington, the third-largest suspension bridge in the world, collapses. Miraculously, none perished when the bridge collapsed into the waters some 200 feet below.

• On Nov. 7, 1944, Franklin D. Roosevelt is re-elected president of the United States for a record fourth time. However, only two months into his fourth term as president, he dies, resulting in Vice President Harry S. Truman becoming president.

• On Nov. 8, 1960, in one of the closest presidential elections in U.S. history, Sen. John F. Kennedy wins 49.7 percent of the popular vote, surpassing the 49.6 percent received by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

• On Nov. 6, 1962, the General Assembly of the United Nations adopts a resolution condemning South Africa's racist apartheid policies and calls on all member states to terminate economic and military relations with South Africa.

• On Nov. 9, 1965, the biggest power failure in history occurs as all of New York State, portions of seven neighboring states and parts of eastern Canada are plunged into darkness. The Great Northeast Blackout begins at the height of rush hour, delaying millions of commuters, and trapping thousands of people in office buildings, elevators, trains and subways.

Council Presidency Jockeying

Next year's city council presidency has turned into what appears to be a political horse race with some jockeying going on behind the scenes.

Ordinarily it wouldn't be much of an issue to get excited about.

Once upon a time a first-term council president could pretty much count on a second one-year term out of colleague courtesy.

But Paul Harold, in his first term, appears to have no such guarantee.

Freshman Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley, who was a key vote in Harold's election as council president last January, now wants the job.

And he has been off to an early start trying to put the necessary votes together.

Now Harold is countering to line up his own block of votes.

Five are needed to nail it down.

At last report neither appears to have a firm five. Reportedly there is some wheeling and dealing going on with major committee chairmanships involved which could commit and/or shift votes.

Veteran Frank McCauley says he is with Harold if the latter wants that second term.

But, if for some reason Harold decides he doesn't want it or things get deadlocked, McCauley says: "I'm available for a draft."

But Harold appears definitely interested. And apparently doesn't want to be remembered as a council president who served only one term.

The fact that Harold decided to run for Norfolk County Register of Deeds apparently got Hanley's political juices flowing.

He apparently figured that if Harold won the county job -- as he was a heavy favorite to do -- he wouldn't have the time to serve as council president.

Harold feels he can handle both without a problem.

Hanley's bid for the council presidency is an unusual move. He won't complete his first year in office until the end of December.

Usually freshmen councillors with council presidency ambitions bide their time for experience before making the move.

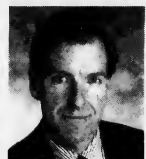

Hanley seems to have had somewhat a change of heart about the presidency.

Challenging Peter Kolson for the Ward 1 seat last year, he was critical of Kolson serving four years as council president. Ward councillors should concentrate on their constituents, he felt.

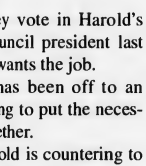

But now, he says: "It (the council presidency) would give me more leverage to help my ward."

And vows: "If I make it, I'm going to make things happen."

Under the present council rules, a president now can not serve more than two one-year terms.

HAROLD

McCAULEY

So, if Hanley did win the presidency it would be for only two years at the most, not four or more.

He apparently feels he could still concentrate on his constituents.

No other names have come up as candidates for the presidency.

Dan Raymondi says he doesn't want it. And being as effective from the floor as he has been, he apparently doesn't need it.

Tim Cahill has not indicated any interest in the job he once wanted.

RAYMONDI

CAHILL

But Raymondi and Cahill could be key votes in determining who will wield the gavel next year. So far they haven't hinted where they stand.

If it somehow should come down to a compromise candidate, McCauley certainly can produce impressive credentials.

He has 26 years elective service: eight as mayor, 10 as city councillor (six at-large, four ward) and eight as a school committee member.

He is tied with Mayor James Sheets for the third highest length of service in the city's history. They are topped only by Nathaniel Hunting and Frank Anselmo who had 36 years and 29 years respectively on the school committee.

McCauley also served as chairman of the 78-community MBTA Advisory Board and chairman of the school committee as mayor.

"I have a little experience," he muses.

Oddly, despite all that experience and service the council presidency has escaped him.

He made one bid for it back in 1966 but lost the gavel to George Burke. McCauley could put together only three votes: his, Walter Hannon and John Koegler.

He's willing to have another go at it.

HENRY: "HANK" BRADLEY, newly elected National Vice Commander of the American Legion, will be honored Sunday, Nov. 19.

BRADLEY

Bradley, Quincy's Veterans Services director, will be guest of honor at a Homecoming, 2 to 6 p.m. at the Nonantum Legion Post, 295 California St., Newton.

Bradley is past Legion state commander, Norfolk County commander and Morrisette Post commander.

Tickets for the Homecoming are $25 per person and can be obtained by contacting Past National Commander John "Jake" Comer, 45 Lancaster St., Quincy, or by calling him at 471-3534.

A RECEPTION FOR John Gillis, Norfolk County Commissioner and former long-time Quincy city clerk, is set for Tuesday, Nov. 14, 6 to 9 p.m., at the Granite Rail, 16 Cottage Ave., Quincy.

Tickets are $30 per person and may be obtained from William Draicchio, 20 Glynn Terrace.

Scenes From Yesterday

POSTMARKED IN 1924 this postcard is a view of Quincy Square looking north on Hancock Street showing the major commercial buildings of the time. The old Quincy Savings Bank building on the right with its Quincy granite columns and entryway is now the home of several businesses including The Quincy Sun. The English Tudor styled Adams Building was the first multi-storied building built in Quincy Center. At this time F.W. Woolworth's 5 & 10 Cent Store was located there on the street level. Traffic was not an issue when this picture was taken; perhaps it was a Sunday. But there were a variety of vehicles on the left: horse and team, bicycle, truck, autos and an electric trolley.

Build The New School On A Safe Site

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I implore all citizens of Quincy to contact their City Councilors and School Committee representatives and speak out against the siting of the new Quincy High School on land located off Quincy Avenue adjacent to Faxon Park. The construction of this building and the proposed taking of Faxon Park land represents an offense against common reason.

Pay close attention to the City Council and School Committee meetings and you will hear ample discussion of the old quarries filled with toxic waste, asbestos (a known carcinogen), lead and mercury — what is acceptable and what is not. Capping the soil, remediation, airborne particles, allowable legal levels of molecular toxins!

Who, on any of these elected boards is a chemical or biological engineer? Who can completely comprehend the science involved in these toxic waste sites? Why is the City Council and School Committee even considering a site with life-threatening hazards? Help them out. Call and give them your input and insight.

The City's outside engineering firm has concluded that this site can be "remediated" and built upon. Does that come as a surprise? We paid them to tell us what we wanted to hear. Of course, it can be built upon. So, too, could the Love Canal in upstate New York be built upon as well as contaminated areas near some industrial parks in Woburn and Holbrook. Please, just don't ask to live near these areas today.

Unquestionably, our elected officials have a difficult job. Constantly in the public eye and second guessed at every turn. I am not questioning their integrity or sincerity. I am questioning their zealotry. Hazardous waste is hazardous waste no matter which way it's covered, buried or moved.

Additionally, for years there has been talk of "open space" preservation. Yet, today the City proposed to trade the 75 acres of natural parkland of Faxon Park for a 21 acre "field" (make no mistake, that is what it is) next door to the current Vocational School. This "trade" is apparently necessary because the proposed site of the new school, as purchased, is not large enough, the expense to clean the entire area is too great or the land grab was planned all along. Faxon Park was deeded to the residents of the City for their recreation into perpetuity. The City now proposes to blast a great many of the hills and valleys and level (plateau was the term used by the City's Park Department) it for football, baseball and two 72 car parking lots! Don't worry about open space — just bring in the asphalt.

Why build a school on a toxic waste site endangering our children and destroy the second largest and possibly most beautiful park in the City? Misdirected zeal? We have all heard by now that the State will reimburse 90 percent of the construction cost under a program whose time may be running out. This is a difficult program for our elected officials to ignore. Imagine — the perception would be that they voted against schools, against the future, against children!

The real question is — and this is very serious business: Does this short-term fiscal benefit (90 percent state reimbursement) outweigh the long-term health risk of every child and teacher at this proposed site for generations to come? Not by my reasoning.

Build the new school on a safe site. Let's be creative. If this school is absolutely necessary, then build it on the site of the Koch Recreation Complex or Adams Field. Those sites are centrally located and within walking distance to numerous existing ballfields. Take the Park Department trucks currently stored at the Koch Complex and park them up at the Quincy Avenue site. The engineers said the area was safe, didn't they?

Quincy's Yesterdays

Veterans' Day Speaker Warns Of Sputnik

By PAUL HAROLD

Col. Richard McLaughlin, the main speaker at the Veterans' Day program at the Adams Academy, warned of the menace of Russian advances in missile systems and what it meant for U.S. defense.

While McLaughlin called the launching of the sputnik "a stunning achievement," he also said that the U.S. should not get hysterical about it. He said that Americans should realize that they were on the threshold of a new epoch and should not be left behind in developing new technologies.

McLaughlin was introduced by Col. Charles Hedges.

NEW BOOKMOBILE READIED

Thomas Crane Public Library's head librarian Gertrude Callahan said that the new $25,000 bookmobile was being readied for service, with its display on Nov. 17 as part of National Book Week.

The bookmobile would serve those areas where branch libraries had closed: Baxter, Lakin Square, Manet and the Montclair, Atherton Hough, Merrymount and Cranch Schools. George Zeiba was named head librarian for the bookmobile, assisted by Joan Ferraguto.

TEMPLE BETH EL GROUNDBREAKING

In ceremonies this week, ground was broken for the new $250,000 Temple Beth El on Hancock St., in the geographic center of the city. The temple would be built by Ambrosia Contractors of Quincy, with completion expected in June of 1958.

Participating in the ceremonies were Rabbi David Jacob and Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. Building committee and fund drive committee members included George Sooper, Dr. Joseph Goldman, Dr. Israel Edelstein, Dr. Isadore Schwartz and Dr. Edward Ginsburg.

Invited guests were Rev. Bedros Baharian, City Councilors James McIntyre, Edna Austin and Councillor-elect William Ellis.

QUINCY-ISMS

Internationally-known architect Carroll Coletti died this week at age 52. He designed many public buildings in the U.S. and Europe, including numerous buildings in the city. Those buildings in the city included the administration building at Quincy City Hospital, the addition to the Thomas Crane Library, Rice Eventide Home, Beechwood Knoll School, the Houghs Neck Fire Station and the addition to the Wollaston School. . . Z. Cranston Smith, chairman of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce's Traffic and Parking Committee, proposed a 300-car parking area, north of the Bargain Center. It would require the taking of 23 parcels of private property on Faxon Ave., Saville Ave. and Huntley Rd. at the cost of $400,000.

Councillor-elect Joseph Brett said he would seek to block the proposed $2 million addition to the city hospital. . . An estimated 500 attended the dedication of Lt. Irving Patten Park at North and South Bayfield Roads. Patten was one of three residents of those streets killed in World War II. The others were his brother, Lt. George Patten and Sgt. William Hampton. Charles Flagg was general chairman of the dedication that began with a parade from the Parker School. . . Mrs. Sumner Hirschberg was chairman of the Cranch School PTA open house. . . City Manager Edward Lewis asked the City Council for funds to hire five new policemen to implement the five-day week for the police. The five-day week was approved by a ratio of two-to-one as a ballot question in the recent city election. . . The fire department responded to a call at the home of one of its own for a TV fire at the Hynes Ave. home of Nicholas Malvest. . . Matteo Pannarelli was conferred with the first degree at the North Quincy K of C. . . Mrs. Korbey Kemp was the first woman commander of the 75-member Quincy AMVETS Post. . . Rep. Mary Newman addressed the Quincy's Women's Republican Club at the Woodward School. Mrs. Frank McCausland was club president. . . Christian Education week was celebrated at the Wollaston Lutheran Church. The only Protestant parochial school on the South Shore was established in 1947 as a kindergarten and expanded to include grades one through six. . . First-time candidate Edward Mann thanked voters for his election to the School Committee.

Autumn Antique Show At Woodward School Nov. 17, 18

The Woodward School for Girls will present an Autumn Antique Show Friday, Nov. 17 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 18 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at their 1102 Hancock St. location.

Funds raised from the show, which is organized by Hartman House Antiques of East Bridgewater, will help maintain and preserve the historic school building.

Friday night's "preview party" will be $15 per person and will kick off with a wine and cheese reception sponsored by the Woodward

School Alumni Association. Included in the admission price will be a free verbal appraisal (one per admission) by Jerry Hartman and a door prize donated by the Alumni Association.

The night will feature 28 selected dealers exhibiting their collections and all items at the preview party will be for sale.

On Saturday all exhibitors will have been restocked from the previous evening and admission will be $4 per person. Verbal appraisals will be $10 per item and the kitchen will be serve hot and cold lunches as well as snacks for the duration of the show.

A wide variety of collecting will be represented, including: prints and paintings, American and European furniture, Staffordshire, antique maps, vintage linens, pottery, and porcelains.

Antique clocks, oriental rugs, and jewelry will be shown by specialty dealers.

The Woodward School is listed on the National Registry of Historic Sites.

For more information on the event, call Sue Hartman at (508) 378-7388.

DR. STANLEY MIKAL'S "Mealtime -- Boston Fish Pier" took first place in the Oil and Acrylic category of the Quincy Art Association's Members' Show held as part of the recent Quincy ArtsFest 2000. Dr. Mikal, who has painted as an avocation his entire life but has started exhibiting only recently, is a 47-year resident of Squantum.

Quincy Symphony Orchestra Opens Season With Fall Concert

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of music director and conductor Yoichi Udagawa, will present the first concert of its 47th season Friday, Nov. 17 at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center at North Quincy High School.

The program will include "Café Neon" by Steven Karidoyanes, Violin Concerto in D Major by Ludwig van Beethoven, with Kristina Nilsson, violin soloist, and Symphony No. 7 in D Minor by Antonin Dvorak.

The presentation of "Café Neon" will be a World Premiere Performance. Karidoyanes is well known locally as conductor of the Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra. His compositions have been performed throughout this country and abroad.

Single tickets, available at the door the night of the concert, are $12 for adults and $8 for students and seniors. Admission for a child, 12 or under, accompanied by an adult, is $5.

Season subscriptions, good for three classical concerts, are $25 for adults and $20 for students and seniors.

North Quincy High School is located at the corner of Hancock and East Squantum Sts., across the street from the North Quincy "T" Station. The school is handicapped accessible. Parking is free.

For more information call (781) 925-4319.

GLORIA KAVELL is understandably proud of her Baxter Ave. garden, which has been a labor of love for the Quincy Point resident for more than two decades. Others are taking notice as well, with Kavell earning the most nominations for the Park Department's "Neat Neighbor" contest three years in a row.

A HALLOWEEN THEME graces Gloria Kavell's Baxter Ave. garden as she pauses to enjoy the beauty of autumn in New England. "As long as I'm outside, I'm happy" says Kavell, who works four or five hours per day keeping everything in her garden just so.

A Life In Full Bloom For Baxter Ave's Gloria Kavell

By CRAIG SALTERS

As a St. Joseph's grade schooler growing up in Quincy Point during The Great Depression, Gloria Kavell — then Gloria DiLorretto — was forced to take all her classes on the first floor and was not allowed to take gym class.

The school, in full agreement with Gloria's parents, feared that even the slightest exertion might upset her rheumatic heart condition which had left two of her heart valves non-functioning since birth.

Kavell, now approaching her 80th birthday in the Baxter Ave. home she was born in, remembers what she did as soon as the school day ended: run down to Fore River Field to boat, skip rope, play tennis, and, best of all, roller skate.

"My friends and I would jump over manhole covers," Kavell recalls. "One time we even flew down the Fore River Bridge and jumped the curb. Thank God there were no cars in those days."

Seven or so decades later, Kavell hasn't changed a bit, although her idea of fun, thankfully, has matured.

"I'm out here three or four hours a day," Kavell says of her meticulously manicured lawn and garden, which recently earned her the most nominations for the city's "Neat Neighbor" contest for the third consecutive year. "People ask how I can do it, but I love it, so I'm not afraid."

Kavell has spent the last 21 years mowing, planting, cutting, trimming, and weeding in the garden which sits on her 17,000 square feet of property. At any given time her garden is alive with roses, forsythia, Japanese quince, marigolds, begonias, spider plants, and a variety of impatiens. She says it strengthens her heart.

"As long as I'm outside, I'm happy," Kavell declares. "There are so many people who are couch potatoes who think I'm crazy. They're crazy."

Kavell is the daughter of Nicholas and Virginia DiLorretto, lifelong Quincy residents who moved into the Baxter Ave. home when it was built in 1917. The love of gardening, she says, is a gift from her father. "This was my dad's love. He grew red salvia and had the greenest lawn. It was gorgeous," Kavell remembers.

So when her 90 year-old father became ill in 1979 and could no longer take care of the garden himself, she ignored her heart condition and her arthritis and the worries of her protective father and did the job herself. "How could I let it go?" she asks today. "It was his life."

After that, Kavell says, she spent many a morning gardening while her father sat in the shade to keep her company. She took care of her father, as she had done years earlier with her mother, until his passing in 1984.

Years later, Kavell became a caretaker once again when her husband Anthony, a superintendent of a steel warehouse first in South Boston and then in Braintree, became ill with a serious infection and needed home care. Kavell continued to garden, this time with husband Anthony to keep her company, until his death in June of 1998.

If Kavell is proud of her garden, and prouder still of her family, she is proudest of her husband. "He was a wonderful man," she says. "When he met me, he asked me to go steady and I said, 'When you get out of the Navy, you can call me.' After the war, he comes back and asks, 'So, would you like to go steady?' and he never left my side for an hour after that."

A machinist's mate in the Navy during World War II, Anthony Kavell fell in love with airplanes and got his pilot's license after the war. "We flew every Sunday and I just loved it," Kavell said. "We'd fly around the house just to say hello. People said we were nuts but I'd fly around the world with my husband: he was that capable."

As a result of her heart condition, Gloria and Anthony had no children of their own but Kavell, a 1940 Quincy High graduate, doesn't let that bother her. "I have a wonderful family," she says, "especially my nephew. Without him I'd be lost."

And there's neighbors and friends, Kavell says, and, of course, the garden, which is so well-known in the area that it has its own political history. "There was a Councillor John Quinn who used my yard for political pictures," Kavell says with a laugh. "And one time Councillor (James) Sheets walked by on a very hot summer day and said, 'Hello, I'm running for Congress' and I said, 'I don't think you're going to run for anything. I think you're going to pass out. You need a cold drink.'"

The cold drink and conversation, Kavell said, has led to a friendship and correspondence with the former councillor, former representative, and current mayor.

In between caring for family, flying the skies with her husband, and keeping arguably the city's best garden, Kavell also found time to work as manager of Wauters and Schindler's Stations on the corner of Hancock and Granite Sts. until her marriage in 1951. Kavell remembers taking the bus to apply for the job only to be told that 35 other people had applied for the job and that she didn't stand a chance. "I got the job the next Tuesday," she says.

Asked to explain her passion for life, Kavell offers one possible answer: "I was a miracle baby."

She goes on to explain that at birth her doctor, who would also become her godfather, told her parents that there was no heartbeat and advised an instantaneous baptism. Amidst the chaos, Kavell said, the good doctor thought best to check her once again and was miraculously able to detect the faintest of heartbeats.

80 years later, Kavell sleeps in the room she was born in and tends the garden of her father, keeps the home of her parents, and cherishes the memory of her husband. "I just love it," Kavell says once again. "I just love it, so I'm not afraid."

And to think a report sits in a dusty file cabinet somewhere attesting to the fact that Gloria DiLorretto Kavell has only half a heart.

Sometimes doctors get it wrong.

Delahunt Child Citizenship Bill Will Become Law

After months of negotiations, the U.S. Senate has unanimously approved legislation authored by Cong. William Delahunt to confer automatic U.S. citizenship on children adopted from abroad and on other foreign-born children of American parents.

The Delahunt bill, which recently passed the House, would eliminate the need for these families to undergo the bureaucratic naturalization process. This is especially important for families that have already completed the exhaustive documentation required to adopt a child from overseas.

"After what these parents have been through in bringing their children to the United States, the naturalization process is an extra burden they shouldn't have to bear," Delahunt said. "Once the adoption is finalized and a child arrives in the United States, that child is an American and should be treated as an American."

The bill would grant automatic citizenship to all foreign-born children who are under 18 years of age; admitted to the United States as lawful permanent residents; and in the legal and physical custody of at least one parent who is a U.S. citizen. Parents would no longer be required to submit an application to have their children naturalized.

The bill passage comes on the heels of another Delahunt victory on international adoption reforms. Last week, the House and Senate approved a Delahunt-sponsored measure to implement the Hague Convention on Intercountry Adoption, a 50-nation treaty to safeguard and streamline the overall process. This past Friday, in an Oval Office ceremony, President Clinton signed the Hague Treaty bill into law.

In addition to cutting through red tape and years of delay, the bill would help prevent the tragic consequences experienced by some adoptive families.

Under immigration "reforms" enacted in 1996, children who have lived in the U.S. since infancy but were never naturalized are subject to mandatory deportation -- and permanent separation from their families -- if they commit certain crimes.

WJDA's Roy Lind Signs Off After 39 Years

ROY LIND, long-time South Shore radio favorite, signs off for the last time with mixed emotions at WJDA last Friday as he stepped into retirement after a 39-year career with the station during which he hosted Party Line and served as program director. Many friends came by during a special two-hour Party Line to wish him a long, happy retirement. Lind, who grew up in Quincy, is now a Scituate resident.

(Quincy Sun Photos)

CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM DELAHUNT and Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth were among those who dropped by to wish Roy Lind a happy retirement during his last Party Line program. Delahunt brought a commendation from Congress.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS presented a proclamation designating Friday as Roy Lind Day in Quincy and thanked him and WJDA for their coverage of Quincy and for getting essential information out to residents during storms and other emergencies.

FAMILY MEMBERS WERE on hand for the retirement celebration of Roy Lind. With him here are his wife, Joan; daughter, Marcia Short; son, Jim Lind; and granddaughter, Danielle Lind.

THE WJDA STUDIO was crowded with well wishers. That's Roy's granddaughter, Danielle, trying on the earphones. Directly behind him are Roy's daughter, Marcia Short, wife Joan and son Jim Lind. Others in the crowd include Fr. William McCarthy, St. John's church; John Noonan, chairman Quincy Council on Aging; Robert FitzGerald, South Shore Buick; and George White, Quincy Christmas Festival parade chairman. Lind will be the grand marshal of this year's parade.

BOB CURRY, of Curry Hardware, couldn't resist coming by with a bucket of toilet and other cleaning materials to help Roy Lind "keep busy" during his retirement. Roy looks like he's giving it some serious thought.

Traffic Study First Step For Redesigned And Safer Sea St.

"The project is designed so that any one piece could be developed as an isolated improvement or incorporated together," Gillon said. "There are also many fine tuning options within each location."

Gillon said the project's flexibility, combined with its comprehensive scope, will be assets as the project moves into its engineering phase and, hopefully, funding phase.

In terms of funding, Gillon emphasized that Sea St. pedestrian improvements were a top city priority, having been one of four projects listed by the city on the Transportation Plan for the Boston Region, making the project eligible for a combination of federal and state funding.

Using very preliminary estimates, Gillon predicted the improvements at Curlew Rd. would cost $80,000; the new lane at Quincy Shore Drive would cost $30,000; and the possible connecting road somewhere in the area of $120,000. "They're doable projects," said Gillon, who added a realistic timeline for the projects would be between three and five years.

The Boston region of the Transportation Plan includes Boston beyond Rte. 495 and has an annual budget of $40 million. In addition to the Sea St. improvements, the three other Quincy projects listed are: the ramp at Crown Colony; an "MBTA Bus Priority Signal System" which would use existing technology to pre-empt traffic signals to keep buses on schedule; and increased off-street parking in Quincy Center, which is defined as a "Concentrated Development Center."

Gillon said that perhaps the most ambitious improvement, the connecting road at Murphy Memorial Drive behind the DPW offices, which would decrease congestion, was a "once in a lifetime opportunity" given the DPW's salt marsh remediation project at Broad Meadows, which DPW Commissioner David Colton said is being funded by the Army Corps of Engineers, who severely damaged the wetlands in the 1940's when they dredged the Town River.

With the project's new walking paths and bicycle paths, as well as its re-defining of the wetlands, now was the perfect, and probably last, time to consider building the connecting road, Gillon said.

"We either do the road now or know that it is never going to happen," Gillon said.

Children's Corner Specializes In Dance, Drama, Voice

By CRAIG SALTERS

In the days of old-style football, a "triple threat" was a player who could run, throw, or kick and was generally considered the most valuable player on any team.

That same versatile philosophy lies behind the new Children's Corner Dance, Drama, and Voice Studio, 7 Foster St., which opened its doors the first week of September.

"The philosophy of many studios is to specialize," says John McDonald, Jr., owner of Children's Studio and president of JM Productions, the production team behind the successful dinner theater shows at Raffael's restaurant. "But we include the three disciplines. In order to be successful, performers need to audition. In order to audition, they need to be triple threats: sing, dance, and act."

Children's Corner boasts a fully-mirrored dance studio as well as voice and drama studios and a reception area. Students from Grades 4 through 12 complete a 20-week program incorporating dance, drama, and voice which culminates in a live public performance at the end of each session.

The 30 students currently enrolled in Session I will perform "What A Millennium." Applications are still being accepted for Session II, which runs February to June, which will feature a show entitled "Oliver Twist Meets Annie Warbucks."

"It's really fun and a good experience," said David Finnegan of Wollaston, a student at the Atlantic Middle School. "I like being in a play and all my teachers are great."

Fellow student Michael Ryan, whose mom works at the school, said the best part so far was learning songs and dances from the 1920's, 1930's, and 1940's. Kayla Zaniboni remarked that she's already learned about "Improv" theater and "not singing through my nose."

The instructors at Children's Corner are all part of the dinner theatre team at Raffael's. In fact, McDonald says, the idea for the school came from parents who would watch the Raffael's show and ask McDonald how and where their son or daughter could be trained in the performing arts.

"We have a very professional attitude," McDonald says of his instructors. "We're all educators in some way or another. We've all come from the classroom."

McDonald himself is the drama instructor and his experience with the discipline dates back to his days as president of the Drama Club at North Quincy High School. He then attended Boston State College and the University of Massachusetts-Boston, earning his degree in education.

After college, McDonald taught middle school and high school drama and oral communication at the Woodward School for Girls, eventually becoming chairman of the Art Department and the assistant to the headmaster.

From there, it was on to New York where, after a brief period working for a film and modeling company, he landed the job as personal assistant to actress Isabella Rossellini. During the 1990's he worked both on Broadway and in touring companies, serving as personal assistant to such actors as: Lauren Bacall, Faye Dunaway, Marisa Tomei, Cher, Parker Posey, Matthew Broderick, Julie Harris, and Charles Durning.

Laurie O'Connell Graf, a former student of McDonald's who has also served as a teacher, counselor, and dean at the Woodward School, is the dance instructor at Children's Corner. Voice instructors include Kathy Teevens-Fitzpatrick, Sheila Fahey, and Ann Kenneally.

In addition to the student who knows at an early age that he or she wants a career in the performing arts, McDonald emphasizes that the school is suited for those who just want to develop their talents with professional instructors or for parents who want their children in an educationally-friendly environment. "The performing arts builds great interpersonal skills and tackles the common fear of public speaking," says McDonald. "Also, the students are not specialized by age groups but intermixed, which provides a wider experience and maturing influence for everyone."

Tuition for the 20-week program is $400 and can be paid weekly, monthly, or in-full at the time of registration. For more information or to register, contact Children's Corner at (617) 786-SHOW or toll-free at (888) KIDS-ART.

"This is just the beginning," says McDonald of Children's Corner, explaining that future plans include musical instrument lessons, adult evening classes, and morning pre-school classes. "The center is going to grow and mature but you have to start small. This is just phase one."

Keynote Speaker Former Attorney General Bellotti

Veterans Day Parade, Ceremonies On Saturday

Former Lieutenant Governor and Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti, a Navy veteran of World War II, will be the keynote speaker Saturday as Quincy honors its veterans of all wars with a parade ceremonies at the Adams Academy Building.

The parade will step off at 10:30 a.m. at its traditional starting point at Hancock and Schools Streets and proceed down Hancock Street to the Adams Academy at the corner of Hancock, Dimmock and Adams Streets.

The observance, commemorating the 82nd anniversary of the signing of the Armistice ending World War I on Nov. 11, 1918 at 11 a.m., is sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council, which represents all of the Quincy veterans organizations.

Bellotti served as lieutenant governor from 1965-69 and as attorney general from 1975-87 and has been a trial attorney in the Litigation Section of the Boston office of the law firm of Mintz, Levin, Cohn, Ferris, Glovsky and Popeo.

He won the prestigious Louis C. Wyman Award from the National Association of Attorneys General at the nation's most outstanding attorney general in 1981 and served as president of the association in 1984-85.

He has a degree from Tufts University and a law degree from Boston College. He was chosen by the editorial staff of the Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly as one of the most influential lawyers of the past 25 years.

Henry Bradley, director of veterans' services in Quincy and national vice commander of the American Legion, will be master of ceremonies and Thomas Stansbury, past commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council, will be chairman.

Leif Thornton, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, is parade marshal, aided by Vice Commanders Joseph Brooker, senior, and John Joyce, junior... David Minkovsky of the Jewish War Veterans Post, will be officer of the day, assisted by Thomas Eames.

John Joyce will be sergeant at arms, Peter Stonis, past commander of the QVC, will be aide to the

FRANCIS BELLOTTI

Rita's Luscious Coffee Cake

At a recent shower where a delicious brunch was served, our daughter Rita brought a luscious coffee cake that disappeared almost before it was put on the table. It was that good and not difficult to make.

Rita's Coffee Cake
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 9 x 13" baking pan, sprinkle with flour

Ingredients
4 ounces margarine
1 1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
3 cups flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 cup milk

For the cake, cream the margarine and sugar until light and fluffy. Add the eggs one at a time and then the dry ingredients. Add milk slowly (if using a mixer on slow speed) then mix on high speed for 30 seconds.

Topping
1 cup flour
4 ounces margarine
1 1/3 cups brown sugar
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Combine flour, sugar and cinnamon first, either in a food processor or a blender (or by hand). Add the margarine by cutting it up a little at a time, blending until just to oatmeal consistency. (do not overprocess)

Spread half the batter on bottom of greased and floured pan and top with half the topping.

Pour remaining batter on top spreading evenly. Sprinkle with remaining topping. Bake for 40-50 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean. Cut in squares. It can be kept in the refrigerator for days and put in microwave when ready to eat.

QUINCY SCHOOL Supt. Eugene Creedon (left) was honored Sunday as the Quincy Jewish War Veterans' 50th recipient of its "Citizen of the Year Award" at a breakfast at Beth Israel Synagogue. With him are Irving Isaacson, program chairman and Past Commander Dr. Bertrand Shaffer who together presented the award, and Mayor James Sheets, one of the speakers.

CITY COUNCILLOR Daniel Raymondi, keynote speaker, describes School Supt. Eugene Creedon as a "builder of bridges for our youth."

Honored As Jewish War Veterans 'Citizen Of The Year' Eugene Creedon 'Builder Of Bridges' For Youth

School Supt. Eugene Creedon was cited as "a builder of bridges for our youth: as he was honored Sunday as the 50th annual recipient of the Quincy Jewish War Veterans "Citizen of The Year Award".

Daniel Raymondi, Ward 2 city councillor and former school committee member, keynote speaker at the awards breakfast at Beth Israel Synagogue said:

"As we all know, the public schools are under assault from the political world and our teachers face a variety of challenges each and every day in our classrooms.

"We are extremely fortunate that in this curious environment, Eugene Creedon continues to work, continues to build bridges for the young people of our community and continues to excel.

"First among Superintendent Creedon's concerns is the future and well being of our children. That every child is special. That no child shall be left behind.

"Under his leadership, Quincy sets the standard for excellence in class size...a model for other communities to emulate. Quincy sets the standard for access to technology...connecting classrooms to a network of learning that extends beyond boundaries to the whole world over the Internet.

"Gene, you have given back to your community. You have improved the lives of many and you have built bridges for our youth. You have made Quincy a better place and for that we are all grateful."

Attending the breakfast were city and state officials, representatives, past recipients of the award, awareness, family and friends.

Mayor James Sheets recalled an article in a Boston newspaper entitled "A Crush On Quincy: and said he was curious to learn the source of the favorable quotes in it.

It turned out to be realtors, he said, who said that "families want to move into this city primarily because of the public school system."

"That's the legacy that you have been such a part of," he told Creedon.

School Committeeman Michael McFarland said in his experience with Creedon, he found "when it comes time to cut a budget here or there, the kids come first. They always did and they always will."

McFarland, also read a letter from Arthur Tobin, former mayor and now Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin who was unable to attend. In it he cited Creedon as "the right person at the right time to become school superintendent."

And, he added: "You have steered a steady course in rebuilding our schools and restoring pride in accomplishment to both students and staff."

Rev. George Bergin of the Miramar Retreat House in Duxbury, a former classmate of Creedon referred to him as "a gentle giant."

"His high school teacher described him as the most ferocious tackle the football team ever had," Fr. Bergin said. "And he was unstoppable in he classroom."

"That kind of tribute has followed Gene throughout his career in education and service to the community."

World War II POW veteran and community activist Robert Noble read a letter from his daughter, Andrea, and her husband, Roger White, describing how much Creedon means in the life of their autistic five-year old son Roger, Jr.

"Over the past two years, Mr. Creedon has helped us with some vital decisions regarding Roger's education," they said.

"Mr. Creedon and his staff are an integral part of Roger's team. Their role is no less important to us than that of Roger's doctors."

Noble and his wife, Gloria, are past recipients of the JWV award.

Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Stephen Tobin brought citations from the Senate and House of Representatives.

Congratulations were read from Creedon's brothers, Bernard of Greenport, N.Y. and Lawrence, former school superintendent now of Arlington, Va., both of whom were unable to attend.

Creedon was also congratulated by Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue, Dr. Bertrand Shaffer, commander of the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post, Irving Isaacson, past commander and program chairman; Leonard Lit, state commander Jewish War Veterans and Paula Wolf, president state Jewish War Veterans Auxiliary.

"I am very, very humbled by this honor," Creedon said, adding he would share the award with "the administrators and teachers--and everyone--in the Quincy Public Schools."

Creedon had praise for parents, too: "Family life is critically important. Raising children in good family life is the condition which you have to have if you want to see your children be successful."

It remained for his daughter Susan to list the things that his children, including Erin and Patrick have learned from their father, culminating in this priority advice:

"Follow your passions and do what you love and you'll go very far."

Neighborhood Housing Services Homebuyer Workshop Nov. 18

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHFA & HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First Time Homebuyers' Workshop in Collaboration with National City Mortgage Saturday, Nov. 18 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Abington Town Hall, 500 Gleniewicz Way, Abington.

Lunch will be provided. Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within budget, negotiating the best offer, and determining the best mortgage program for individual needs. Each participant will have the opportunity to meet individually with mortgage professionals from National City Mortgage, local Realtors, and attorneys. Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required. Space is limited. For more information or to register for the workshop, contact Debbie Kidd at Neighborhood Housing Services, 617-770-2387.

Clean HVAC Systems Before Winter

Before shutting your windows for the season, it is a healthy idea to get your heating, ventilation, and air-conditioning (HVAC) system cleaned.

HVAC systems can act as a collection source for a variety of contaminants—mold, fungi, bacteria and dust—that can cause health problems. Cleaning the air ducts will prevent the build up of dust contaminants and materials from being recycled throughout your HVAC system.

To determine if your air ducts need to be cleaned, follow these three simple tests:

1. Remove the register from the floor or wall vent.
2. Insert a mirror into the duct and hold it at a 45 degree angle.
3. Shine a flashlight straight into the mirror.

By looking into the mirror, a homeowner should be able to see far into the duct. If you see accumulated dust, debris, mold or mildew, it may be time to call a certified HVAC system cleaning contractor. Make sure the company is a certified member of the National Air Duct Cleaners Association (NADCA), an organization that tests the knowledge of contractors for safe and effective HVAC system cleaning. Avoid advertisements for "$150 or less" whole house specials.

For more information, or a list of certified HVAC system cleaning companies, write to NADCA, 1518 K Street, N.W., Suite 503, Washington, DC 20005 or visit www.nadca.com.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Know The Hidden Signs Of Childhood Epilepsy

It's not unusual to see a child daydream, or appear distant and unresponsive — or for a toddler, just learning to walk, to suddenly fall for no apparent reason. But when these seemingly common behaviors occur often or in patterns, they actually may signal that a child is having seizures.

The Epilepsy Foundation considers the hidden signs of childhood epilepsy to be a significant problem nationwide. To help parents and caregivers of young children recognize the common and little-known signs of epilepsy, the Epilepsy Foundation is launching the Kids & Seizures: Know the Hidden Signs campaign during National Epilepsy Month, November 2000.
